Time of Parley Put at Two Hours After Jury Heard Testimony on Open Gambling at Taverns.

By ROBERT H. COLLINS
Of The Post-Dispatch Staff.

A high-ranking East St. Louis police officer conferred secretly with a member of the St. Clair county grand jury at the height of the jury's investigation of the East St. Louis police department, the Post-Dispatch was told today.

State's Attorney John J. Hoban of St. Clair county said he has three witnesses who saw the meeting between the two men.

"The police officer and the juror conferred at 7:30 p.m. on Aug. 21, just two hours after the jurors had heard testimony about open gambling in many East St. Louis taverns," Hoban said.

Hoban said he would question the juror and the police officer "as soon as possible."

"I have reason to believe that Judge Farmer also has some questions he wants to ask them," Hoban added.

Gambling Charged.

Circuit Judge Harold O. Farmer impaneled the grand jury, which charged that open gambling is permitted in many East St. Louis taverns with "the full knowledge of the police department and elected officials of the City of East St. Louis."

The jury also charged that gamblers are permitted to operate through a "regular pay-off system."

The three witnesses will testify that the police officer, in his own automobile, stopped in front of the home of the juror, Hoban said.

"The witnesses said the juror got up from his chair on his front porch and went out and got into the car with the police officer," the prosecutor continued.

He quoted the witnesses as saying that the juror and the police officer then drove to a "secluded area, where they talked 15 to 20 minutes." The police officer then returned the juror to his home, the witnesses were quoted as saying.

"This conference between the police officer and the juror took place at a very crucial time," Hoban said.

"It was when witnesses had just been heard on the open gambling charge, and it was just two days before the jurors were to write their report," he added.

'Leak' Reported.

An investigation is underway into reports that one and possibly two members of the St. Clair county grand jury "leaked" information about the jury's secret proceedings to outsiders, the Post-Dispatch has disclosed previously.

"There is a distinct indication that there was tampering with this jury," Hoban said.

He refused to name the party or parties whom he suspects of obtaining information from inside the grand jury room. He referred to "jury tampering" as a serious charge.

In School Vote Contest

Discrepancy Found in One Precinct, Chairman Says—Recheck as Ordered by Court Still Going On.

Dr. Robert Rainey may gain a seat on the Board of Education as a result of a recount of some votes cast in the School Board election last April 7, the Post-Dispatch was told today.

Dr. Rainey, a surgeon, was defeated by Mrs. Louis W. Buckowitz by 28 votes, on the basis of the official vote count.

However, a discrepancy in the official tabulation has been uncovered in a recount by the Board of Election Commissioners.

Michael L. Galli, chairman of the Election Board, said the discrepancy is in one precinct. He declined to name the precinct or to describe the extent of the discrepancy.

Recount Not Finished.

Galli said it could not be determined yet whether the discrepancy was sufficient to alter the outcome of the election because the recount is not finished.

Other sources told the Post-Dispatch, however, that it appeared that Dr. Rainey would be declared the winner.

The recount is being conducted in compliance with a circuit court order issued after Dr. Rainey filed a suit contesting Mrs. Buckowitz's election to the School Board.

Galli said he met with Circuit Attorney Thomas F. Eagleton last Saturday and informed him of the irregularity.

He added that the Election Board would "conduct a preliminary study of any matters it deems necessary pertaining to the conduct of the judges and clerks in that one precinct."

Galli said the Election Board today completed the recount of all ballots cast in Wards 18 through 28, as ordered by Circuit Judge O. P. Owen.

Absentee Count Tomorrow.

The recount of absentee ballots cast from all of the city's 28 wards will begin tomorrow, Galli said, and should be completed within a week or 10 days.

When the retabulation is completed, the Election Board "will report to the circuit attorney and the grand jury any matters which it feels may require investigation concerning the violation of state election laws," Galli said.

In addition to ordering the recount of absentee ballots from all wards and regular ballots from 11 wards, Judge Owen directed the Election Board to remove the stickers from the ballots cast in the ninth precinct of the Twenty-sixth Ward.

The numbers on the ballots were to be compared with the corresponding numbers opposite the names of voters in the precinct's ballot book.

Galli said this has been done, but he declined to say whether the discrepancy that was uncovered was in that precinct.

Absentee Ballots Challenged.

In his suit, Dr. Rainey challenged some of the absentee ballots, contending that the affidavits attesting to the inability of a voter to go to the polls were invalid.

In the ninth precinct of the Twenty-sixth Ward, Dr. Rainey's petition said, more than 28 votes —Mrs. Buckowitz's margin of victory—were counted illegally in her favor.

In the official count, Mrs. Buckowitz was credited with having received 34,852 votes and Dr. Rainey, 34,824.

Daniel L. Schlafly, the Rev. John J. Hicks and Charles J. Dyer were the other candidates who won seats on the School Board in the April 7 election.

Their victories are not at issue in the suit, and only the ballots containing a vote for either Dr. Rainey or Mrs. Buckowitz, wife of the Tenth Ward Democratic committeemen, are being recounted.

CLOSE STUDY OF HOUSING BILL BEGUN IN LONDON BY EISENHOWER

Action Not Expected for Several Days — President Host to Mme. Pandit—Takes Golf Practice.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Sept. 1—Having made an unprecedented television appearance with Prime Minister Macmillan in the drawing room at No. 10 Downing street, President Eisenhower worked today for the most part in seclusion on White House business.

In the comparative quiet of Winfield house, Ambassador John Hay Whitney's residence in Regents Park, Mr. Eisenhower took care of the routine chores that follow a President wherever he goes.

He began a close study of the $1,769,000,000 housing bill passed by Congress last week. It represented a compromise effort to meet his objections to an earlier housing bill which he vetoed. He has until Sept. 11 to sign the new bill and final action on it was not expected for several days, possibly not until he returns to Washington some time next week.

In the afternoon he was host to India's high commissioner in London, Mme. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, sister of Prime Minister Nehru, and a number of other guests at tea.

He also spent some time knocking a golf ball around the spacious grounds of Winfield house.

Dinner Tonight.

Tonight he is giving a dinner for wartime companions, including Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, who has in the recent past been sharply critical of Mr. Eisenhower's conduct of war in Europe. It will be the first time the two have met since Montgomery aired his differences with the supreme commander of the allied forces.

To have omitted Montgomery from the guest list would have been to accentuate the dispute. Since the official visit concluding early tomorrow morning has been an exercise in total harmony, the President would never have done that. As the President and Prime Minister insisted in their telecast, British-American relations have never been so good and, begining with the outpouring that greeted Mr. Eisenhower on his way from the airport when he arrived, the British public has been out prove it.

The telecast, carried by all British networks and viewed by an audience estimated to be larger than any since the coronation, was a warm-hearted affirmation of British-American friendship. It touched only glancingly on international problems when the President said with respect to Berlin and the Communist threat there, "We really have to be firm."

The atmosphere was both gentlemenly and relaxed as the two heads of government chatted with no reference to notes. Both wore dinner jackets and black ties preparatory to the dinner given by the Prime Minister immediately after the television appearance.

Catch in His Voice.

As the President concluded with "God save your gracious queen and all her people," there was a distinct catch in his voice. It was a sentimental occasion meant as a substitute for the usual formal and often meaningless communique and for the

DEFENSE CHIEF IS SAID TO HAVE OFFERED OWN RESIGNATION

Nehru Aid Has Been Accused of Softness Toward Reds — Premier May Announce New Cabinet.

NEW DELHI, Sept. 1 (AP)—India, beset by Red Chinese aggressive moves, was thrown into a crisis today by reports that the heads of all three of India's military services were resigning in a dispute with Defense Minister V. K. Krishna Menon.

Governing Congress Party leaders in Parliament said they had heard Menon had given Prime Minister Nehru a letter containing his own resignation and giving Nehru a free hand to deal with the situation.

The report of the resignations of the service chiefs was carried by a newspaper. There was no immediate official confirmation of either report.

Informants close to the Indian White House, the residence of President Rajendra Prasad, said Nehru may announce the resignation of his full cabinet to Parliament tomorrow in order to solve the difficulty. Then he might announce the formation of a new cabinet leaving out Menon or giving him a new portfolio, these informants said.

Official confirmation of this also was lacking.

Resignation Demands.

Some Indian newspapers demanded some weeks ago that the controversial Menon resign because he had not spoken out against Communist Chinese actions in suppressing the Tibetan revolt. He often has been accused of taking a soft approach to Communism.

The speaker of the Lower House refused to permit debate on the report until Nehru could be present. The Prime Minister went to the airport today for a brief meeting with Pakistan President Mohammed Ayub Khan, and it was indicated he would not appear in parliament until tomorrow.

Although Menon was in the House, he refused to say if the report were true. He said he had discussed it with Nehru and the Prime Minister wished to deal with it himself.

The report was published by the British-owned Statesman of Calcutta and New Delhi. It said the army chief of staff, Lt. Gen. K. S. Thimayya, had decided to resign after repeated differences with Menon and that navy and air force commanders likely would do likewise.

Charge of Politics.

The paper said Thimayya had accused Menon, one of Nehru's most trusted aids, of promoting junior officers over their seniors and of injecting politics into the defense ministry.

Newsmen inquiring for Thimayya were told he was in conference. There was a similar response from the office of Vice Adm. R. D. Katari, the navy chief of staff.

The air force chief, Air Vice Marshal S. Mukherji, is in London. His office said it had no information on the report.

Nehru outlined his policy toward Red China yesterday in an extensive speech in Parliament. The reaction of some observers to his statements was that he was following a policy of "speaking softly" while getting a stick ready.

Among other things Nehru said India will not raise the issue of Tibet in the United Nations and did not feel it should be raised there. The Dalai Lama, exiled Tibetan ruler, declared Sunday that he had no alternative but to appeal to the United Nations because the situation in his country had become immeasurably darker since last March when the Red Chinese crushed a Tibetan uprising.

Invasion Report Denied.

In Calcutta, Premier Jigmi Dorji of Bhutan, denied reports that his mountain nation had been invaded, as reported yesterday. "I would have known if that had happened," he said.

New reports of Chinese movement along India's borders appeared in New Delhi newspapers today.

The Times of India said Indian forces have attacked Chinese Communists near Longju, where

HOUSE OK'S TABLET FOR DOCTOR WHO TREATED BOOTH

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (UPI)—The House has voted to make partial amends—almost 100 years late — to Dr. Samuel Alexander Mudd, who was imprisoned in a barren Florida island fort for treating the injured leg of John Wilkes Booth, assassin of Abraham Lincoln.

The House approved and sent to the Senate yesterday legislation for the erection of a memorial tablet honoring Mudd's service to yellow fever victims in an 1867 epidemic at Fort Jefferson, Florida.

Mudd was granted an unconditional pardon by President Andrew Johnson in 1869. Representative Alvin M. Bentley (Rep.), Michigan, who got interested in the case because a Mudd relative is one of his constituents, introduced the bill.

ATLANTIC IS SAID TO WIDEN A YARD EVERY 1000 YEARS

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Sept. 1—An international congress of ocean scientists was told yesterday that North America is probably moving away from Europe at the practically imperceptible rate of a yard or so every 1000 years.

A rift running down the middle of the Atlantic Ocean is widening, and molten rock from inside the earth is rising to fill the gap.

"Tensions in the rift tend to show a continuous drifting apart of the continents," Dr. W. Maurice Ewing, head of Columbia University's Lamont Geological Laboratory, said. Despite this, Dr. Ewing indicated he was not completely convinced that continents do shift their position.

30-DAY WEATHER OUTLOOK: COOLER THAN USUAL HERE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP)—The Weather bureau said yesterday its 30-day outlook for September calls for temperatures to average above seasonal normals over the western half of the nation and also over the middle and North Atlantic states.

Greatest departures from normal are expected over the Northern Plains and the far Southwest, the bureau added. Near normal temperatures are anticipated for the remaining area except for below normal in the middle Mississippi valley.

Precipitation is expected to exceed normal over the eastern third of the nation, but be deficient over the western half. In the remaining areas, normal rainfall is indicated, the bureau said.

BOILERMAKERS HEAD OUSTED AT GRANITE CITY

Willard A. Herzing Removed, Committee Named to Look Into Charges.

Willard A. Herzing, controversial president of Boilermakers Union Local 575 in Granite City, was removed from office yesterday by the union's international president.

Notice of Herzing's dismissal was posted on the union bulletin board at the A. O. Smith plant on the outskirts of Granite City. The notice was signed by William A. Calvin of Kansas City, the international president.

"It would be unethical to give out a statement as to the charges against Herzing," he told a reporter.

Committee Named.

Calvin said he has appointed a three-man committee to consider the charges against Herzing. The committee must meet in Granite City within 10 days to hear evidence.

If the committee decides that Herzing is guilty of the charges against him, the removal from office will become permanent and further action may be in order. However, if the committee dismissed the charges, Herzing will be reinstated, Calvin said.

Local 575 has a membership of about 1500 men, employees of the Smith plant.

Calvin's notice named Flarce Warfield as president pro tem. The appointment is only for the period pending a decision of the trial comimttee. If Herzing's dismissal is upheld, a special election will be held to name a new president.

Warfield, 29 years old, lives at 2932 Dogwood drive, Granite City. He confirmed that he has taken over the union but declined further comment.

Warfield Quit Union Post.

Warfield formerly was a vice president of the local. Until recently, he was a close ally of Herzing's, but he quit as vice president about three months ago, apparently after differing with the president.

Calvin said the trial committee includes Leo Brown, business manager of Local 158, Peoria, Ill.; Walter Manis, business manager of Local 374, Hammond, Ind., and Harold Maupin, business manager of Local 105, Cincinnati.

Letters to the three, informing them of their appointments and of the charges against Herzing, were mailed yesterday, Calvin said.

Calvin was asked about re-

5 IN CONGRESS ASK U.S. TO MOURN ON KHRUSHCHEV VISIT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (UPI)—Five congressional leaders called on Americans today to mark Premier Khrushchev's visit to the United States with a period of national mourning for the victims of Communist terror.

Their joint statement also announced formation of a Committee for Freedom of All Peoples.

The five were Democratic Senators Paul H. Douglas of Illinois and Thomas J. Dodd of Connecticut, House majority leader John W. McCormack of Massachusetts and Republican Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire and Representative Walter H. Judd of Minnesota, a Republican.

They called for "the holding of religious services in the cities through which he (Khrushchev) passes and throughout the nation as one means of mourning for the victims of Communist terror and of expressing America's dedication to world-wide freedom."

25 FIRE STATIONS BURN EACH YEAR; ALARMS LACKING

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Sept. 1 (UPI)—An official of the International Association of Fire Chiefs revealed today that about 25 fire stations go up in smoke every year.

Why?

"Because, many, many fire stations have no fire detection system," said the official who asked that his identity be withheld. He is attending the fire chiefs' eighty-sixth annual convention here.

"As a result of not having a detection system, if a fire breaks out on the roof of a fire station the watchman on duty often doesn't find out about it until someone who has spotted it from the street comes running into the station," he said.

CHARGES RADIO OFFICIALS TOOK DOMINICAN FEE

Federal Indictment Says Three Got $750,000 to Put Propaganda on MBS.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP)—Three former officials of Mutual Broadcasting System were accused today of accepting $750,000 to put out political propaganda favorable to dictator Trujillo's Dominican Republic over the radio network.

The accusation was made in an indictment charging them with failure to register with the Justice Department as agent for a foreign principal.

Attorney General William P. Rogers announced that the indictment named the following:

Hal Roach Jr., former Mutual board chairman;

The indictment named as co-conspirators, but not as defendants, Mutual Broadcasting System, Inc., and Radio News Service Corp., described as having been organized by the three indicted Mutual officials. Also named as a co-conspirator was Otto Vega, an official of the Dominican Republic government.

In New York, Robert F. Hurleigh, president of Mutual, issued this statement:

ATTLEE FORGETS TO PAY CAB FARE TO 10 DOWNING ST.

LONDON, Sept. 1 (AP)—Clement Attlee, former prime minister of Britain, forgot to pay his cab fare last night.

It happened as Lord Attlee arrived at 10 Downing Street to attend a dinner given by Prime Minister Macmillan in honor of President Eisenhower. As Attlee stepped from his cab, photographers swarmed around and asked him to pause for a picture. Attlee smiling agreed.

Then he turned and walked into the residence. At that point his driver pushed his way through the photographers and inquired: "Do you mind if I get paid?" However, Attlee had already disappeared.

An attendant whispered something to the driver, who nodded, smiled, returned to his cab and drove off.

The word was that the driver had been told to return later for his money.

Real Confusion in Hospital: Five Babies Named Stoltzfus

LANCASTER, Pa., Sept. 1 (AP)—When they counted the babies in the maternity ward at Lancaster General Hospital yesterday, the confusion was understandable. There were five infants named Stoltzfus and four of their mothers were Miss Stoltzfuses before they were married. Two of the fathers are brothers.

Last Friday Mr. and Mrs. Amos Stoltzfus had their first child, a daughter. The mother is the former Miss Fanny B. Stoltzfus. Saturday morning Mrs. Mark Stoltzfus gave birth to a girl, her third child. Later the same day, her sister-in-law, Mrs. John Stoltzfus had her fifth child, a son. Both women's maiden names were Stoltzfus.

The third Stoltzfus birth Saturday was to Mr. and Mrs. Chester Stoltzfus. Mrs. Chester Stoltzfus, the former Rachel Stoltzfus, had a son, her second. Mr. and Mrs. Omar F. Stoltzfus completed the tally with their second son on Sunday.

In the Pennsylvania Dutch-Amish country, the name Stoltzfus is as common as Smith is everywhere else.

HOLIDAY WEEKEND TRAFFIC DEATHS PREDICTED AT 450

CHICAGO, Sept. 1 (AP)—The National Safety Council estimated today that 450 persons would be killed in next weekend's three-day Labor day holiday.

The estimate, covering 78 hours from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Monday, is 30 higher than the actual toll for Labor Day weekend last year.

The council said virtually all the 71,000,000 motor vehicles in the United States are expected to be on the road in the weekend. Last year, it estimated 68,000,000 were on the highways.

Mr. 'Eisengower' Hasn't Learned How to Pronounce 'Kroosh-choff'

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio, Copyright, 1959.

In his television appearance at 10 Downing street last night, the President called him "Krookcheff." This is even further from the correct pronunciation than "Kroos cheff," which is the commonest form used in the West.

The correct pronunciation is "Kroosh-CHOFF."

GOLDWATER SAYS MITCHELL HINDERS LABOR BILL CONFEREES

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1—Senator Barry Goldwater charged angrily today that Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell has placed a "stumbling block" in the path of Senate-House conferees trying to work out a compromise labor reform bill.

What aroused Goldwater, an Arizona Republican, was an exchange of telegrams yesterday between Mitchell and Richard J. Gray, president of the AFL-CIO buildings trades department, in which Mitchell appeared to be siding with forces in the committee attempting to ease restrictions on picketing by the construction craft unions.

Goldwater is bitterly opposed to the plan, which is being pushed vigorously by Senator John F. Kennedy (Dem.), Massachusetts, and three other Democratic Senators among the conferees.

The Senate-House conferees failed to arrive at a full compromise at this morning's session, but they set another meeting for mid-afternoon.

'Biggest Bomb So Far.'

Goldwater, emerging briefly from the closed-door conference in the capitol, told reporters that "Mitchell has thrown the biggest bomb so far."

"I think he should have conferred with some Republicans before he sent such a telegram. It's a stumbling block today. How he can say that it (the picketing concession) is the Administration viewpoint when the Administration is in Europe, I can't understand.

"The telegram is giving us headaches. There were no hearings on the question of the construction trades picketing. Moreover, the President indorsed the Landrum-Griffin bill in its entirety and construction union picketing is not mentioned in the bill."

In his telegram to Gray, Mitchell said that "our position remains unchanged and we advocate the passage of the Administration recommendation" with respect to picketing of building sites.

This recommendation from the Administration proposals has been adopted by Kennedy. It deals with a problem peculiar to the construction industry—the presence of several employers on a job, one of whom may have a dispute with a union.

A Supreme Court decision held that when picketing of one employer affected the other employers on a building job, as it does when all union craftsmen honor the line, it was an unlawful secondary boycott. The proposed amendment to the compromise bill would reverse this decision.

Last Jan. 29, in a labor message to Congress, President Eisenhower requested enactment of legislation to exempt such building trades picketing from the secondary boycott provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act. His recommendation was spelled out in the Administration labor bill which went to the Senate bearing the names of more than 30 Republican senators, including Goldwater. The Senate-passed labor bill written by Senator Kennedy contained substantially the same provision.

Goldwater on several occasions has attempted to disassociate himself from the terms of the Administration bill and was instrumental in keeping the picketing provision out of the "tough" Landrum-Griffin bill passed by the House last month.

Secret Conferences.

Leaders of both contingents on the conference committee conferred secretly through yesterday evening on counter-proposals and counter-counter-proposals intended to break the committee deadlock and produce a bill which the Senate and House could ratify.

It was apparent that backers of the two rival bills before the committee—the "tough" House-passed Landrum-Griffin bill and the "milder" Kennedy-Ervin measure approved by the Senate—hoped to avoid a decisive showdown in the Senate because of uncertainty on each side of how many votes it could muster.

The Senate, depending on the procedure followed, presumably would have a choice between supporting the Kennedy-Ervin provisions or instructing its seven conferees to approve the Landrum-Griffin bill provisions to control picketing and secondary boycotts and to set the limits for state and federal jurisdiction in labor disputes involving interstate commerce.

SYMINGTON HITS AT BAR ON BOOK BY AIR GENERAL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (UPI)—Senator Stuart Symington criticized the Defense Department yesterday for blocking publication of a controversial book on national defense by Gen. Thomas S. Power, chief of the Strategic Air Command.

The Missouri Democrat, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, told the Senate that "in a democratic government the people have the right to all truth which does not help a possible enemy." The department's decision, he said, would deny that right.

Symington offered a list which he said showed that at least 15 top military officers had published books since 1890 when on active duty. Included were Gens. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Douglas MacArthur.

The Defense Department ruled out publication of Power's book, "Design for Survival," on the grounds that it would be "inappropriate" for him to discuss problems affecting his and other military commands when he was on active duty as S.A.C. commander.

EISENHOWER SIGNS FEDERAL AGENCIES FINANCE BILL

Included in the total is $500,575,000 for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Lion Claws Trainer Again.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 1 (AP) — A circus lion named Caesar clawed his trainer for the second time yesterday. The trainer from Williamsport, Pa., billed as Prince El Kigordo, was operated on at a local hospital. Caesar also hurt the same trainer in Springfield, Mass., May 1.

CAMBODIA KING, QUEEN NEARLY BOMB VICTIMS

PHNOM PENH, Sept. 1 (AP)—The King and Queen of Cambodia narrowly escaped death last night when a bomb disguised as a gift went off. Three of the palace staff were killed and three injured.

King Norodom Suramarit and Queen Sisowath Kossanak watched as Prince Norodom Vakrivin began opening the package. It was addressed to the Queen "from a Hong Kong friend."

Prince Vakrivin and a servant were killed. The King's valet died during the night. Three persons in the room below were wounded.

There was some indication the bombing was a crude attempt to whip up anti-American sentiment. One official said the package carried the card of an American engineering firm which participated in construction of a highway recently built with United States aid. Officials agreed the card was a disguise.

An official announcement said an "Asian foreigner" delivered the package to Prince Vakrivin yesterday. Inside was a lacquered box, and in it a second box, locked with a key and bound with tape.

TWO RULINGS BY NLRB ON PLYMOUTH PLANT HERE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 — The National Labor Relations Board today rejected a claim by Local 2 of the International Union of Operating Engineers to represent four steam engineers employed at the Plymouth assembly plant of Chrysler Corp. near Valley Park, Mo.

The board ruled that the Valley Park plant represented a consolidation and relocation of two plants operated by Chrysler in Evansville, Ind. As a result, employes of the Valley Park plant, including the steam engineers, are part of a nationwide unit of production and maintenance employes of Chrysler who are represented by the United Auto Workers Union, the board said.

It dismissed a petition filed by Chrysler seeking to have all employes of the Valley Park plant established as a separate bargaining unit. It said such action was barred under terms of a national contract between Chrysler and the UAW. The board said the new St. Louis county plant is expected to have a full force of about 3800 employes at work by nevt December.

MOB SEIZES LARGE AREA IN DOWNTOWN CALCUTTA

The rioting began when police used batons and fired tear gas to disperse 10,000 students marching past the residence of the chief minister of the state. The demonstrators carried signs denouncing the police for using clubs and tear gas on leftists and Comunists yesterday when they were protesting against the government's food policies.

Police cars were set on fire and 80 policemen and a number of agitators were injured.

Gromyko Included, Along With Premier's Family and 39 Soviet Newsmen.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP)—A Russian entourage of around 100, including Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and his wife, will accompany Premier Khrushchev to the United States. This was announced by the State Department today. Press officer Lincoln White said 50-odd Russians will be in the official party and there will be 39 Soviet newsmen assigned to cover the visit.

The Soviet Premier's wife, two daughters and son are coming with him.

In a 20-man list of senior officials in the Khrushchev party, besides Gromyko, are the Soviet Atomic Energy, Education and Health chiefs. The Soviet party is due here Sept. 15.

Novelist Mikhail A. Sholokhov, reported by Moscow to have been invited to make the trip, was not on the list supplied to the State Department by the Soviet Foreign Affairs Ministry. White said nothing official about him had yet been received. Sholokhov wrote a controversial novel whose publication is reported to have been held up because of Communist party objections.

Son-in-Law Included.

A. I. Adzhubei, son-in-law of Khrushchev and editor of the government newspaper Izvestia, is among the senior officials listed in the Soviet party. Others include:

V. P. Yelyutin, minister of higher and secondary specialized education.

G. A. Zhukov, chairman of the state committee for cultural relations with foreign countries.

V. S. Yemelyanov, chief of the main administration for the use of atomic energy.

N. A. Tikhonov, chairman of the Ukrainian regional economic council.

A. M. Markov, professor and member of the collegium of the ministry of health.

Three assistants to Khrushchev, interpreter O. A. Troyanovsky, P. A. Satyukov, editor of Pravda, and eight foreign affairs ministry officials.

White was asked whether the 39 Soviet newsmen would have to have places on the press plane scheduled to accompany Khrushchev on his tour of the United States.

Will Be Accommodated.

"I suppose these people would have to be accommodated on the press plane," he said.

Aside from the Russians, there are nearly 300 journalist applicants for coverage of the tour.

At the conclusion of his visit Khrushchev will deliver a one-hour address on Sunday, Sept. 27, at 5 p.m. (St. Louis time) over the NBC television and radio networks.

He will speak in Russian and his remarks will be translated a few sentences at a time.

The broadcast will originate in the NBC studios in Washington and will not be carried by any other networks, NBC said.

U.S. Is Preparing to Declare First Atlas Unit 'Combat Ready'

Announcement and Training Firing Are Believed to Have Been Delayed Because of East-West Talks.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (UPI)—The United States is preparing to declare its first intercontinental ballistic missile unit "combat ready."

After a two-month delay to fix mechanical troubles, the first part-strength Atlas I.C.B.M. squadron is being turned over to the Strategic Air Command at Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.

The unit has five missiles—three mounted on launching pads and two spares. Later squadrons will have 10 missiles.

Each of the three missiles kept at the ready at Vandenberg will be assigned a Russian target just as startegic bombers are. That means each rocket will be kept upright on its launching pad with its guidance system always set to direct the missile and its hydrogen warhead to its Soviet target more than 6300 miles away.

Mystery About Delay.

There was considerable mystery about the Defense Department's delay in declaring the first Atlas unit part of the nation's war arsenal. Such an announcement seemingly would increase United States prestige and give more cold war bargaining power.

Some quarters apparently were apprehensive about announcing military readiness of the missile and going ahead with a training shot in the current period of East-West diplomatic negotiations.

They seemed worried about the possible international repercussions of making the announcement and training firing while President Eisenhower is talking with Western leaders in Europe or while Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev is visiting the United States later this month.

After five failures in a row at Cape Canaveral, Fla., in the spring, Atlast tests were suspended. Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy said then there would be a two-month delay beyond the July 1 deadline for making the weapon operational.

When tests were resumed at Cape Canaveral, four shots in succession of the combat version Atlas-D came within a mile of their targets, an authority said.

If the four successful test shots had come earlier in the summer, the squadron at Vandenberg would have followed up quickly with its training launch over the Pacific missile range. However, the delay pushed the time for the training shot into the period of the Eisenhower trip to Europe and the Khrushchev visit here.

The S.A.C. squadron is about ready for its training shot, perhaps in a week, but there was no indication whether the Pentagon would give the go ahead.

The Defense Department has refused to concede that Russia has I.C.B.M.s on the firing line ahead of the Unied States. When McElroy announced the two-month delay in June, he said the Russians were having trouble, too. Khrushchev has said Russia had I.C.B.M.s in "serial production," the step before mass production.

First of Nine Units.

The Vandenberg unit is the first of nine Atlas squadrons now planned and on order. The second squadron, at Warren Air Force Base, Cheyenne, Wyo., will have 10 missiles and six launchers. The remaining squadrons will have 10 missiles and nine launchers.

Warren will get two more 10-missile, nine-launcher squadrons later. Other announced Atlas bases will be at Offutt A.F.B., Omaha, Nebr.; Fairchild A.F.B., Spokane, Wash.; Lincoln A.F.B, Nebr.; Forbes A.F.B., Topeka, Kan., and Shilling A.F.B., Salina, Kan.

The Atlas flies more than 15,000 miles an hour. It is 800 feet long and weighs 100 tons when filled with fuel. It has three liquid fuel rocket engines with a total thrust of 360,000 pounds.

Upper Nile Water Rises.

CAIRO, Sept. 1 (UPI)—Heavy rains sent the Upper Nile toward flood crest today. About 500 irrigation engineers were recalled from vacation by the Egyptian ministry of public works to reinforce teams manning the river embankments.

75,000 SALK SHOTS STOLEN AT MEDICAL CENTER

Serum, Sent to Montreal to Check Epidemic, Must Be Kept at 40 Degrees.

MONTREAL, Sept. 1 (AP)—Health officials were puzzled today by the theft of 75,000 shots of Salk vaccine sent here to help check a poliomyelitis epidemic.

Officials said four masked men, who robbed a research center of 10,000 vials yesterday, would have a hard time selling the vaccine—even though it is valued at $50,000.

The vaccine must be kept at 40 degrees Fahrenheit or it will degenerate after 48 hours. If given then it could cause a violent reaction, but doctors said it would cloud over and could be spotted easily.

Officials said the theft is a severe blow to the anti-polio campaign. "Children will be the victims," said Dr. Adelard Groulx, head of Montreal's health department.

The vaccine was sent from Connaught Laboratories in Toronto last week for 59 municipal clinics planning to give second shots to children and teenagers.

With 17 new cases admitted to Montreal hospitals over the weekend, the polio total for the year is 554. There have been 30 deaths.

There was speculation that the robbers planned to set up a black-market operation, hoping to sell the vaccine to private doctors at inflated prices. Dr. Forte said the robbers probably had a ready market for the vaccine but "no medical person would buy it from an unknown."

The men, armed and wearing nylon stocking masks, broke into the laboratory in a Montreal suburb and overpowered watchman Artolis Beland as he was making his 3 a.m. rounds. They locked him in a monkey cage and began looting.

Beland said one of the robbers talked as though he had some knowledge of medicine. They smashed a padlock on the refrigerator vault to reach the vaccine.

Dr. Forte said the thieves "knew what they were doing. They took only the vaccine ready to be shipped."

WASHINGTON U. STAFF MEMBERS GET LETTERS ON MILL CREEK SUIT

Pamphlets Also Sent—Material Supports Court Action to Bar Sale of Land to St. Louis U.

Washington University faculty members have received letters and pamphlets supporting a pending suit to block sale of any Mill Creek Valley redevelopment property to St. Louis University, the Post-Dispatch learned today.

The letters, on stationery of the Public Funds for Public Uses Committee, Inc., bear the signature of Peter Kintzele, secretary of the committee. He is one of the three plaintiffs who filed the suit.

The letters and pamphlets were mailed Aug. 27, three days after the suit to bar sale of the Mill Creek property to the university was filed in circuit court.

Text of Letter.

Text of the letter follows:

"The legality and propriety of the Mill Creek award to St. Louis University has disturbed many citizens. I think you will find the inclosed pamphlet interesting as well as informative and hope you will read it.

"Your connection with Washington University gives you a special concern with education carried out in the American tradition, which includes separation of church and state. It is that separation which we are anxious to preserve."

The pamphlet inclosed in the letter was one prepared by Victor B. Harris, attorney and secretary of the St. Louis Chapter of Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State.

It is entitled, "Don't Knock the Door Off the Hinges!" and is an attack on the award of the Mill Creek tract to St. Louis University.

'Will Open the Door.'

In the pamphlet, Harris said in part that "if we allow" the award of the Mill Creek property to St. Louis University, "it will open the door to a deluge of similar claims by the Roman Catholic Church."

"In short," he said, "the Mill Creek principle not only opens the door to complete support of church institutions, but knocks the door clear off the hinges."

Kintzele, a real estate dealer, 3514 Longfellow boulevard, denied that the letters and pamphlets were mailed out with the intention of gaining support for the pending suit.

"Nothing could be farther from the truth," he told a reporter.

The pamphlets were printed about a year ago, Kintzele said. Several hundred copies were mailed out recently "to educators and interested citizens," he added.

"We did send copies to some of the faculty members at Washington University," he said, "but just to inform them of the issues involved."

Other plaintiffs in the pending suit, besides Kintzele, are Charles A. Neighbors, 5044 Bancroft avenue, and Marion J. LaHeist, 5926 Cates avenue. Both are members of the Public Funds for Public Uses Committee, Inc.

Harris said yesterday that Kintzele, Neighbors and LaHeist, in filing suit to block sale of the property to the university, "acted independently of any control by me, or the P.O.A.U."

"However," Harris said, "I am grateful for their efforts in behalf of religious freedom and, as an interested citizen, I shall support them."

Statement By Harris.

Harris, in his statement, said St. Louis University was paying only 7 cents on the dollar for the property, with the public paying the other 93 cents.

"If this is not a give-away, how else could it be termed?" Harris asked.

"St. Louis University claims that it submitted the only bid for the 22 acres and that no one was 'frozen out' in Mill Creek. It is true the university submitted the only bid. But they neglect to say that the university was the only institution permitted to submit an offer.

"The redevelopment plan limits its use of the 22 acres to 'the expansion of the campus of the St. Louis University'. In other words, the area may be used only to expand the university's campus.

"To say the university is entitled to this vast area because no one else wanted it is a distortion of the true facts of the Mill Creek deal."

Irvin Dagen, attorney for the St. Louis Land Clearance Authority, said after the suit was filed that it would be "contested to the highest court."

The authority, Dagen said, followed all local, state and federal regulations in advertising for bids on the Mill Creek area. St. Louis University submitted the only bid for the 22-acre site it sought, he pointed out.

Missouri-Illinois Forecasts

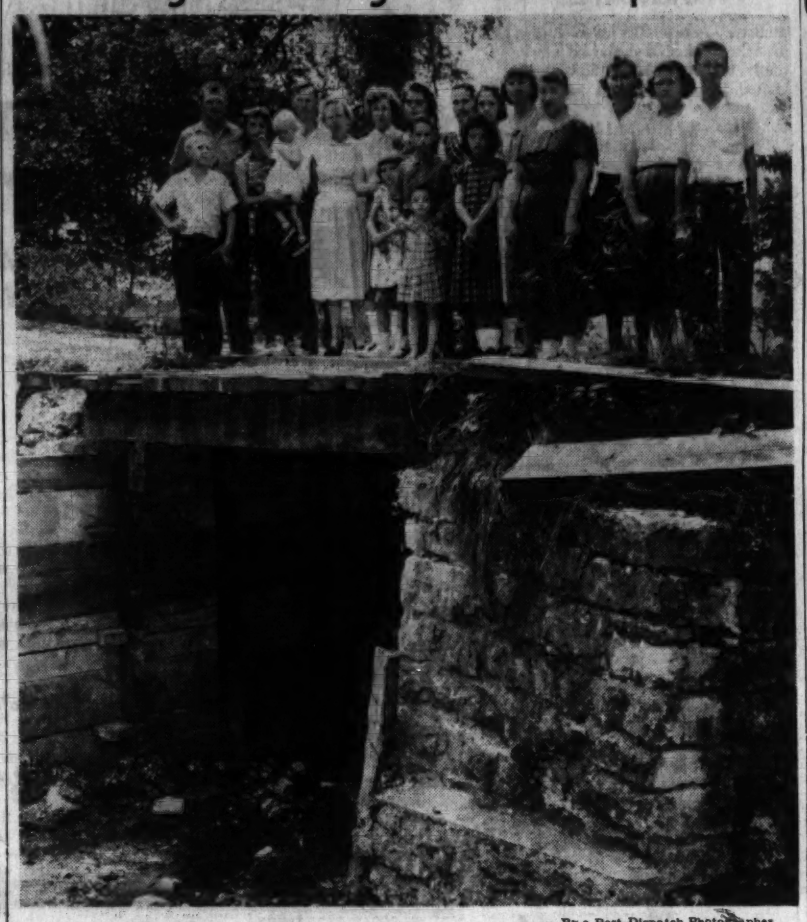
Illinois: Cloudy with occasional showers and a few thundershowers tonight; occasional rain ending and becoming partly cloudy tomorrow afternoon or night; not much change in temperatures; low tonight 65 to 72, highs tomorrow mostly in the 70s.

Bridge Causing School Dispute



—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

Parents stand with their children on rickety wooden bridge on Lions Den road. Bridge is considered unsafe for school busses, and parents have complained that Jefferson county officials reneged on their promise to replace it.

HARPER REPLACES MOORE AS CHIEF JUDGE OF DISTRICT

United States District Judge Roy W. Harper today became chief judge of the Eastern District of Missouri, Eighth Federal Judicial Circuit.

He replaces Judge George H. Moore, who is 81 years old and has been chief judge since 1942. Now on vacation, Judge Moore told a Post-Dispatch reporter before leaving: "When I return you will find me on the bench conducting my court in the usual manner."

Judge Harper becomes chief judge under a new law that prohibits federal judges more than 70 years old from serving as chief judges. The law became effective Aug. 6.

Judge Harper announced today that each December he will establish a pool docket of all old cases. The docket will be called each following February and the cases assigned for trial, or other disposition, as quickly as possible, the judge explained.

DEMONSTRATIONS BY UNION AGENTS OF PRUDENTIAL

After parading back and forth, they returned to work. About 170 of Prudential's 219 salesmen here are members of Local 60 of the Insurance Agents International Union, AFL-CIO, which is negotiating a new contract with the insurance firm in Washington, D. C.

The union's contract with Prudential expired July 6. At issue, the union said, are proposals on pay, dismissal practice and grievance procedure. Union members recently rejected a company contract proposal.

A spokesman for Prudential here issued a statement in which he said the agents are not on strike. "Many of our agents have refused to participate in this demonstration, feeling either that the company's offer is reasonable or that this type of display only serves to reduce their professional status," the spokesman said.

Jefferson County School Head To Seek Return of 9 Absentees

Jefferson County School Superintendent Clyde Hamrick said today he will intervene to try to get nine children from rural Lions Den road back to school.

Mothers of the children kept them home from school yesterday and today as a protest against the failure of county officials to repair the road and make it safe for use by school busses.

Mrs. Melda Parr, spokesman for the mothers, said the children will remain at home "until we find a way to get them in and out of here."

"I can see their position," Hamrick said. "They're riled up, and they want somebody to do something about their complaint.

"I'll see if there's something I can do. I'll try to talk to them and solicit their co-operation."

Hamrick said he was not certain when he would be able to get in touch with a representative of the parents.

Ervin Hagemann, who has been dealing with county officials for the parents, said he talked to the parents yesterday and all agreed "to stick this thing out."

Fox school, where the children were to enroll, began its second day of classes today. Hagemann said the children will attend "when a bus comes in here and gets them."

George E. Baxter, superintendent of Fox Consolidated School District 6, said a wooden bridge on Lions Den is unsafe. He said a bus route has been worked out to serve the Lions Den residents but it cannot go into effect until the bridge is replaced.

Baxter and Hagemann said County Judge J. H. (Jack) Tiley promised last April to have the bridge repaired in time for the opening of school. Tiley said yesterday he did not remember making such a promise. He added that the bridge would be built "as soon as possible."

Baxter telephoned Hagemann and urged him to get the children to school and to give the county another 30 days to replace the bridge.

"We are not purposely keeping the kids at home," Hagemann said. "We have them dressed and ready for the bus. When no bus comes, they can't get to school.

"If we start hauling them, we'll wait five years for a bridge. Maybe this way, we'll get it sooner."

ACCUSED OF PAYING CLAYTON FINE WITH WORTHLESS CHECK

A warrant was issued against William B. Landwehr, a former Clayton insurance broker, by Magistrate Leslie Lewis at Clayton yesterday. The warrant charged Landwehr with writing a check against insufficient funds.

Landwehr allegedly wrote a bad check payable to the City of Clayton last month in payment of a traffic fine and court costs. The check, drawn on the First National Bank of St. Louis, was returned to the city marked "no account."

Landwehr was fined $800 and given a one-year suspended sentence in 1950 after he was convicted of violating state insurance laws. A charge of forgery is pending against him.

Fire Sweeps Movie Set.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 1 (AP)—A fire swept through a movie set on the 20th Century Fox studio lot yesterday. Fourteen frame buildings were damaged or destroyed. All were part of the set. No permanent studio structures were involved. The studio estimated damage at $100,000.

CHARGED WITH ROBBERIES IN TWO HOUSING PROJECTS

Reginald E. Strong, a former convict, was charged with robbery in two warrants issued today by the circuit attorney's office.

One charge grew out of the holdup of John Longland, a collector, who was robbed of $12 last Aug. 14 in the Vaughn Apartments, 1905 Carr street. The other was for the $25 holdup of Leon L. Walls on the same day in an elevator in the Pruitt housing project at 2250 Biddle street.

Strong, 21 years old, 2200 block of Cass avenue, was arrested last Friday after police received a tip he committed the robberies. Strong denied the charges. He was identified by both victims. He served a three-year term in prison in 1956 for burglary.

CAHOKIA SCHOOL TEACHERS READY FOR STRIKE VOTE

Deadline to Be Set if Walkout Over Pay Is Authorized Later This Week.

A strike vote will be taken by members of Cahokia Federation of Teachers, Local 1272, later this week, it was announced last night.

Paul E. Woods, executive secretary of the Illinois Federation of Teachers, said a deadline will be set if a strike is authorized.

All teachers in the Cahokia school district reported today for the first day of classes.

Members of the local decided at a meeting yesterday to call for a strike vote because of the school district's refusal to grant a salary increase.

The proposed meeting to take a strike vote will be called by Arthur Mills, president of the local, and Wayne Doyle, chairman of the salary committee. The teachers are seeking a $300 across-the-board annual increase.

Board Votes Against Hike.

At a meeting last night, the Cahokia Board of Education accepted the recommendation of Robert F. Catlett, superintendent of schools, that the teachers' salary increase be denied.

The board, which met for two hours, said the budget would not stand an increase this year. However, substantial revisions in teachers' salary scales could be made in the 1960-61 school year, the board added.

A letter presented by the local at the board of education meeting said the teachers had decided not to seek any more negotiating sessions. They will wait for the board to decide on a meeting, the letter said.

If the board does not take some sort of action, the letter continued, the teachers' local will. The request for a salary increase was refused by school administrators at a final negotiation session last Thursday.

15 More Join Union.

About 80 teachers attended both the union and board of education meetings. Woods said 15 more joined the local yesterday, increasing total membership to 90 of the 180 teachers employed by the district this school year.

Catlett said the salary increase would cost the school district about $65,000 a year, and "the money just is not there."

The union has charged that Catlett overestimated the district's operating budget for the coming year by $100,000.

YOUNG SOLDIER DIES OF TRAFFIC CRASH INJURIES

Richard J. Pretak, 17 years old, died yesterday at Barnes Hospital of injuries suffered Saturday in an automobile accident near Belleville.

He was a soldier stationed at a Nike missile base at Hecker, Ill., one of the four Nike sites in the St. Louis area. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Pretak of 9946 Duke drive, Moline Acres.

Pretak and three other servicemen were passengers in an automobile driven by Airman Richard Rodriguez of Scott Air Force Base.

The accident occurred on Illinois Highway 159, three miles south of Belleville. Rodriguez's car was involved in a collision with another automobile driven by Mrs. Robert Busch of Belleville.

Illinois State Police said Rodriguez's car approached a slow-moving vehicle from the rear and went out of control when it swerved into the opposite lane to avoid colliding with the car. Mrs. Busch's car was traveling toward Rodriguez's car.

Pretak suffered head injuries and Mrs. Busch suffered a fractured left leg and abrasions. Both were taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital in Belleville. Pretak later was transferred to Barnes.

Wayne Oldham, 3712 Bamberger avenue, driver of the car, said the child ran into the street from between two parked cars in the 2300 block of Texas.

$125,945 IN FIRE FUND

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 1 (AP)—A $125,945 fund has been raised to help dependents of six men who died in a gasoline fire Aug. 18 and others who were injured. The eight trustees have decided to apportion benefits according to need.

Five of the dead were firemen. The sixth was a truck driver, Francis J. Toomes, who was helping the firemen. Trustees said Toomes's family would share in the fund.

BOYS FIND UNSET DIAMONDS WORTH $1000 IN ALLEY

Forty-eight loose diamonds found yesterday in an alley by two boys were awaiting an owner today.

The boys, Melvin Hall, 11 years old, and Robert Brinkman, 8, found 40 of the stones in the rear of a supermarket at 1420 Montgomery street. Unsure of what they had found, the boys took the stones to a jeweler nearby. He estimated that the gems were worth at least $1000 and summoned police.

Police returned to the alley, found eight more stones and a jeweler's pouch. They checked with a jeweler whose name appeared on the pouch but the man said the diamonds were not his.

Melvin, who lives at 1421 Clinton street, and Robert at 1410 Monroe street, went home empty-handed. The gems are in the police department property room waiting to be claimed.

2 SHOPKEEPERS CHARGED IN OBSCENE BOOK RAIDS

The police morality squad seized alleged obscene magazines in raids yesterday on the House of Publications at 3626 Olive street, and a food shop at 5201 Pernod avenue.

At the Olive street address one officer purchased a magazine in which he observed photographs of nude women. The owner of the store, Francis L. Pfeiffer, was arrested and 41 magazines were seized.

Clarence E. Schwarz, proprietor of the food shop, was arrested in the same manner. Both men were charged today with possessing obscene literature with the intention of selling, distributing or displaying it in warrants issued by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Thomas Shannon. A similar charge is pending against Pfeiffer as a result of a raid July 22.

BYSTANDERS CATCH MAN AFTER HOLDUP

Run After Fugitive Being Fired On by Drug Store Owner.

A former convict was captured yesterday by a group of persons who chased him as he fled from the scene of a holdup at a drug store at 799 Bayard avenue.

The shots missed. Several bystanders began running after the robber. They caught him on the playground of the Washington School at 1131 North Euclid avenue.

Brown identified the man as one of two men who had robbed him of $99 in cash, checks for $135, a diamond ring valued at $250 and a book of money order blanks.

The suspect said he was David Louis Morton, 36 years old, of the 5000 block of Northland avenue. He said he had served three years in the Missouri penitentiary for robbery. He denied participating in the holdup.

Brown told police, who arrived shortly after Norton was caught, that he and another man entered his store and ordered some beer.

When Brown got the beer, one man displayed a revolver and ordered Brown into a rear room and made him lie on the floor. One man struck Brown in the face with his fist.

The money was taken from a cash register and a cigar box under the counter. The ring was removed from Brown's finger. It was not recovered because it was taken by the man who got away.

World Flight Behind Schedule.

KARACHI, Sept. 1 (UPI) — Peter Gluckman of San Francisco took off today for New Delhi, India, on his solo round-the-world flight in a single-engined plane. Gluckman was four days behind schedule. He lost two days here because of an allergic reaction to a dish of curry which caused swelling of his right arm and left eye.

ports of some months ago that he had ordered an audit of local 575's books. He would neither confirm nor deny that he had.

Asked whether the charges against Herzing pertained to the local's finances, Calvin again refused comment.

Herzing, 37, has been president of the local since August 1956. As chief steward of the local in July of that year, he was one of the chief union negotiators in a bitter 26-day strike that split the union into two factions.

At one point during the strike, 50 boilermakers, including the man who then was president, spent a week inside the strike-bound plant in an unsuccessful effort to persuade the strikers to return.

The union has been troubled by internal strife ever since. Herzing's administration has been attacked on more than one occasion.

In February 1958, the dispute broke into the open when 35 members charged in complaints to the National Labor Relations Board that Herzing ruled the local "with an iron-fisted hand" and uses "czar-like methods" at meetings.

Many of the dissidents later were expelled from the union. In January, some of those who had been expelled took the lead in an unsuccessful attempt to interest members in switching from the Boilermakers Union to the United Mine Workers.

While that dispute was in progress, Herzing was involved in a fist fight with one of the dissident members of the local, William S. Fries, 46, of 3023 Myrtle avenue, Granite City.

Fries said he was attacked by Herzing in downtown Granite City as he was returning from a UMW meeting. Herzing filed counter-charges of assault and battery against Fries.

Magistrate Andrew Gasparovic found both men guilty of assault and battery and fined each $10. He called the incident "a common street brawl."

Other members of Local 575 had charged previously that they were expelled from the union by a "kangaroo court" after passing out pamphlets at the Smith plant urging action against Herzing for his alleged high-handed methods.

Two Strikes in 1955.

The Boilermakers struck twice in 1955 over wage issues. The 26-day strike occurred the next year and resulted in six pickets being jailed for violating an injunction. In the summer of 1957, the company shut down the plant following a "sit-down" strike by the boilermakers.

Management said the plant would discontinue operations unless the union agreed to meet work and disciplinary standards. Some tooling equipment for 1958 automobiles was moved to the home plant at Milwaukee. The union agreed to the demands and the strike ended.

Herzing lives at 3033 Dale avenue, Granite City. He is a former chief of police of Nameoki and a former special deputy sheriff. In April, 1957, he was an unsuccessful candidate for Nameoki township supervisor.

Herzing's term as president of the local was scheduled to expire in May 1960. Calvin said that Herzing will remain as a member of the union.

press conference which British journalists had been urging.

As British observers noted, Macmillan got in just about every possible plug for his government and his party in view of the forthcoming election that is now believed to be set for Oct. 15. But he was, throughout, the picture of urbanity—the benign leader numbering the blessings brought by a beneficent government.

On the question of a summit meeting Macmillan said he had never concealed his desire for a top-level conference. He added that "your initiative will put us in a position to get it under the best conditions."

Civilization at Stake.

In his response, Mr. Eisenhower did not make his own position altogether clear. He spoke of war having become so threatening that it can destroy "our whole civilization," which made peace an imperative. "If we are to have a summit," he continued, "Mr. Khrushchev must understand that exactly as you and I do.

"If he does things that show that he recognizes that, just as you and I do, then I think a summit meeting would be profitable," the President said.

But he failed to mention the "progress" in negotiations at a lower level that he has always specified as prerequisite to a summit conference. Macmillan and the Conservatives believe, according to reports here, that the almost certain prospect of a summit session will help their election prospects as much as a conference itself.

Peace Theme Repeated.

The theme repeated throughout the 20-minute chat was peace. One of the morning papers carried a banner headline "No. 10 Peace Street." This was the Daily Mail, one of the foremost Conservative newspapers that has been blazoning the rosy prospects for the party.

As a final touch of informality, startling the British public, Macmillan, the President and several of his guests strolled briefly in Downing street as the dinner party broke up. Among the guests last night were three former prime ministers, Sir Winston Churchill, Clement Attlee now Lord Attlee, and Anthony Eden who has been a semi-invalid ever since he resigned following the failure of the attack on Suez.

When in their television chat the President stressed the importance of expanding trade, Macmillan responded by stressing his great satisfaction with "the enormous increase in trade between Britain and the United States."

"You helped us very much with heavy engineering," the Prime Minister said. "I wish you could do something for us on wool, textiles—perhaps you will be able to do that."

Aimed at Lancashire.

There has been unemployment in the woolen industry in Lancashire. As knowing British listeners remarked, "good old Mac, he's even got in an appeal aimed right at Lancashire."

Macmillan talked about what he said was the "good side" of colonialism, citing the benefits conferred leading up to the independence of India, Pakistan, Ceylon and other new nations. "Don't let anyone in America think it's the sun setting on the British empire," he said. "It's the dawn rising on the new commonwealth and its all part of the same story."

Visit to Spain Later.

By United Press International.

President Eisenhower has told Generalissimo Francisco Franco he hopes to be able to visit Spain on some future trip to Europe, informed sources said today.

The sources said this was the gist of the reply the President gave yesterday to Spanish foreign minister Fernando Maria Castiella. Castiella handed him Franco's invitation to visit Spain at his convenience.

The President, it was said, jokingly told Castiella that in about 10 months he would be a "free man anyway" since his term of office is drawing to a close.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, who also met with Castiella yesterday, invited the Spanish foreign minister to visit him in Washington next spring.

the Chinese routed Indian border patrols Aug. 26.

The Indian Express said Chinese troops are massing near the northeast frontier "equipped with heavy arms carried on mules."

A dispatch to the Hindustan Times from Shillong, capital of Assam state, said the Communists have been concentrating troops near the Siang and Lohit sectors of the northeast frontier since early August.

All of the newspapers quoted informed sources. The Indian Defense Department and Foreign Ministry said they had no information to support any of these reports.

The Pakistani president had scheduled his stop in New Delhi—for refueling on a flight to East Pakistan—before the border troubles developed into a major issue.

After the conference, Ayub hinted he and Nehru discussed, among other things, a joint defense policy for the subcontinent. He said history shows invasion comes to the subcontinent when the people of the region are at odds with each other.

"There is a need for reappraisals, for forgetting and forgiving and for a realistic and more sensible relationship to each other," Ayub Khan said.

He had first proposed a joint defense policy with India after the Tibetan uprising. Nehru, who has repeatedly assailed United States arms aid to Pakistan, India's adversary in Kashmir, scoffingly said, "Defense against whom?" Since then, however, Nehru has been having his own difficulties with his Chinese neighbors.

Ayub said he had a few points to put to Nehru as a next door neighbor.

"My submission is that whatever might have happened in the past the time has come when we should be thinking of more rational neighborly relations with each other," he said.

Asked whether the meeting brought him and Nehru closer together, Ayub said, "We are nearer to the extent that the Prime Minister knows my mind and I hope and trust he believes me as I trust him."

Ayub also disclosed they would summon immediately a conference on the ministerial level to try to settle squabbling about the India-East Pakistan boundary. He said military commanders would take part.

Indian Envoy to United States Says His Nation Will Fight.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP)—Red China will be making a mistake if it thinks Indians will not fight in defense of their country, India's ambassador said today.

"The peace we are pledged to is a peace with honor and a peace of the brave," Ambassador M. C. Chagla said in an address at a National Press Club luncheon.

He denounced Chinese Communist encroachments against India's northern frontier, pressures against the state of Bhutan and Sikkim and the "tragedy of Tibet."

the Mutual network, its owners and employes have no knowledge of or connection with the matters involving Mr. Guterma, Mr. Roach or Mr. Culpepper."

In Los Angeles Roach said: "I deny the indictment. I am not now, have not been in the past and would never be an agent for a foreign government. I am absolutely confident that I will be cleared of the charges when the facts are presented in court."

The indictment charged that Guterma, Roach and Culpepper obtained the $750,000 from the Dominican government in early February of this year.

The indictment said the foreign principals, who were to be represented in this country by the three Mutual officials, were Vega, Generalissimo Rafael Leonidas Trujillo Molina, Porfirio Rubirose and the Dominican Republic government.

Guterma is already under two federal indictments in New York City on charges of failing to make required reports to the Securities and Exchange Commission in connection with his international operations in high finance.

Today's indictment contained three counts of failing to register as foreign agents and conspiring to wilfully fail to register Mutual as a foreign agent. Each count carries possible maximum penalties of five years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

The first count named Guterma and Roach. The other two counts named all three defendants.

The indictment alleged the three created a New York corporation known as Radio News Service Corp. which was to supply Mutual with Dominican propaganda "under the guise of bona-fide and genuine news items."

The grand jury said this arrangement was to have been carried out under the agreement with the Dominican Republic on a confidential basis.

ACCUSED OF BRIBE ATTEMPT

MONTEVIDEO, Sept. 1 (AP)—A wealthy United States citizen, long a resident and active in social life here, was jailed yesterday by court order on charges of trying to bribe a high Uruguayan government official.

Albert H. McNutt, formerly of Brazil, Ind., is married to Uruguayan Hortensia Serrato, daughter of the former Uruguayan president and foreign minister, Jose Serrato. McNutt was accused of offering a bribe to land an order for Cuban sugar from the government.

GROMYKO, WIFE GET LITTLE NOTICE AT U.S. EXHIBITION

© New York Times News Service

MOSCOW, Sept. 1 — Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and his wife pushed and shoved virtually unrecognized through the United States exhibition yesterday among thousands of ordinary Russian citizens.

The Soviet Union's top diplomat was paying an unofficial visit to the fair five days before it closes its six-week run in Moscow's Sokolniki Park. He and Mrs. Gromyko said they thought the exhibition was "very interesting" and that "these exchanges of exhibitions are very useful."

Before they left the crowded grounds Mrs. Gromyko said that "next time it will be even better," implying the hope that there would be another exchange of exhibits.

As Gromyko passed the jam-packed book exhibit he remarked wryly: "I believe many of your books have been taken as souvenirs"—an understated tribute to the popularity of the display among Soviet visitors.

The Steel Strike Is

In Germany, Italy, Belgium, England, Japan and other countries, men are happily making steel to send to the United States—itself the greatest steelmaking nation in the world.

The steel they are sending here means jobs and wages lost to American steelworkers forever.

Long before the strike began, however, imports of foreign steel were rising while exports of American steel were falling. Since December 1958 monthly steel imports have exceeded exports, for the first time in modern history.

One of the chief reasons for this is that steelworkers' wages abroad are only one-third to one-seventh as much as the American steelworker gets.

Yet the leaders of the steel Union in this country have called 500,000 steelworkers out on strike for more inflation—and an even wider wage gap between the U.S.A. and its foreign competitors.

Here from recent trade reports are a few examples which highlight the growing threat of foreign steel imports:

- A manufacturer of fencing, nails and wire for 58 years has completely closed one of his plants. The reason: foreign competition.
- A steel mill which regularly shipped 24,000 tons of barbed wire annually, sold only 220 tons in 1958.
- So far this year imports of plumbers' pipe on the West Coast have averaged 13,000 tons a month—substantially more than total American production in that area.
- At Houston, Texas, 21,600 tons of steel from Belgium and Japan were unloaded in a single day. And two other ships were waiting to unload steel.
- About 50 percent of all the steel being consumed in Dallas, Texas, is foreign-made.
- During the second quarter of this year imports of foreign steel poured into the eleven Southern states at the annual rate of 2,000,000 tons. This would provide full-time employment for 13,200 men and an annual payroll of $90,000,000.

The picture is not encouraging. If American industry cannot produce steel products more efficiently and at lower cost, the jobs of many more steelworkers will be permanently lost.

The logical solution to this problem is to hold wage costs in line here at home while we strive to improve our industrial efficiency and regain our technological advantages over foreign producers.

There are two important ways to improve efficiency. One is to continue to install the most modern facilities and equipment as rapidly as profits permit. The other is to eliminate waste and unnecessary work wherever they exist.

The Union has repeatedly denounced the profits necessary to pay for the modernization of our plants and has steadfastly opposed proposals to eliminate waste. Yet the companies still continue to hope that the Union will cooperate in meeting the problem of foreign competition.

The result could be a permanent gain for the steelworkers, the steel companies and the nation.

BOY DROWNS WADING IN MISSOURI RIVER

The boy was Lenvell Nichols, a freshman at St. Charles High School. He lived with his stepfather and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Herschell Robbins at 621 Clark street in St. Charles.

His companion, Dennis Schierding, 15 years old, told police they were wading about 250 feet from the shore, near the foot of Jefferson street, when Nichols "got in trouble and started hollering for help."

Schierding, 710 South Main street, St. Charles, said Nichols was "apparently caught in the current and swept into the deep water."

The youth said he swam to Nichols' aid but pulled away when Nichols seized him in panic. He said he swam back to safety in the shallower water "because he couldn't do any good." Nichols then went under.

Crewmen of a towboat saw Schierding in the water and pulled him aboard. They were too late to attempt to rescue Nichols.

Nichols' body was recovered two hours later about 400 yards downstream by the St. Charles County Volunteer Emergency Corps.

Authorities said there are deep stepoffs and treacherous currents at the point where the two boys were wading.

House Public Works Group OK's Boost in U.S. Gasoline Tax

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP)—The House Public Works Committee gave final approval today to a billion-dollar gasoline tax tax increase bill to keep the interstate highway program going for the next two years.

The bill will go to the House Rules Committee tomorrow. It is expected to be approved by the House Thursday or Friday.

The measure would increase the 3-cent federal gasoline tax one penny for 22 months.

Chairman Charles A. Buckley (Dem.), New York, of the Public Works Committee predicted House passage, but said there might be trouble with the Senate.

A Senate Judiciary subcommittee voted, 4 to 3, to approve the repeal of a constitutional amendment limiting the terms of a President to two.

The committee, by the same vote, also approved a proposed constitutional amendment to outlaw poll tax payments as a requirement for voting in federal elections.

Both measures were sent to the full Judiciary Committee headed by Snator James O. Eastland (Dem.), Mississippi.

Clearing of One Block.

The House committee's action on highway financing cleared one of the few remaining blocks in the way of adjournment by Congress.

President Eisenhower, however, has told Republican leaders he may call Congress back into special session this fall if it fails to remove the interest ceiling on Government bonds.

The President has made it clear to the party chieftains he will consider such a session call also if Congress cuts foreign aid funds below what he regards as a minimum level for national security.

Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson apparently is hopeful Congress eventually will agree to take the interest ceiling off all Government bonds. Savings bonds pay 3¼ per cent. The present limit on bonds maturing after five years is 4¼ per cent. These are too low to attract heavy investments, and the Treasury is forced to pay higher rates on short-term borrowing.

Elsewhere in Congress, Senators opposing a bill to permit Chicago to take more water from Lake Michigan planned today to make another attempt to put off a final vote until next year.

A move to send the bill to the Foreign Relations committee for further study failed by only five votes, 46 to 41, yesterday on the fifth day of Senate debate.

The House yesterday unanimously passed legislation liberalizing disability compensation for veterans who suffered total deafness or lost an eye and one limb or more on active service.

For the totally deaf, one bill would boost the present $160 monthly payment to $207, an increase of $47.

A second bill covering loss of an eye and one limb or more would provide the veteran with an additional $47 a month for each eye or limb lost. At present most veterans with such disabilities are limited to a single $47 allowance in addition to their standard monthly compensation payment.

Both bills now go to the Senate.

Military Construction.

Two lengthy closed-door sessions failed to bring a Senate-House agreement yesterday on the annual military construction money bill.

As the bill passed the Senate it carried $1,428,178,700. This was $143,176,000 more than the House voted, but more than $135,000,000 under the budget requests. Funds for hundreds of projects for all the military services in this country and overseas are included.

Legislation creating a coal research and development commission received final House approval yesterday. The House agreed to a conference report setting up the commission of three members to carry out a research program in coal uses and to improve and reduce the cost of coal production and distribution.

By United Press International.

Senate-House conferees yesterday approved a compromise measure that would prohibit levying state income taxes against out-of-state firms maintaining only salesmen in the state involved.

The House Public Works Committee approved by voice vote today a resolution authorizing the Army Engineers to survey the possibilities of a slack water navigation system on the Missouri river.

The study would determine whether improvements for slack water navigation on the Missouri from Yankton, S. D., to the mouth near St. Louis are advisable and economically feasible. The Army estimated it would cost $300,000 and take five years to complete.

JACK BENNY IN KANSAS CITY TO TAPE TRUMAN PROGRAM

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 1 (AP)—Jack Benny arrived here last night to tape a television program on which former President Harry S. Truman will be guest star. The show will be seen early on Benny's winter series of half-hour programs.

There is little chance that Truman will play the piano or Benny the violin. Instead, Truman will conduct the comedian on a tour of the Truman Library.

"There will be some laughs," Benny said, "but the whole thing is going to be done in good taste. Mr. Truman understands that mine is a comedy show and I understand that the tour of the library must be dignified. I think we'll strike a happy medium."

ROCKEFELLER JOINS YOUTH CRIME FIGHT

NEW YORK, Sept. 1 (AP)—Voicing alarm over mounting teen-age violence in New York City, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller stepped into the situation today to see if the state can help local authorities combat it.

Rockefeller summoned his executive staff to a discussion of the outburst of savagery, which cost the lives of four youngsters in a week and left a number of others injured.

"I am alarmed both in the terms of human suffering and about all of these young people getting off on the wrong foot in life," he said. "We've got to mobilize more effectively the forces of private, state and local agencies."

Police Commissioner Stephen P. Kennedy already has shifted 1400 extra police to patrol duty from other jobs in a sweeping move to halt the clashes.

He announced the move last night, and at the same time released statistics showing a steady increase in youthful crime in the city. The figures on arrests for people under 21 since the year began show 57 for murder or manslaughter and 197 for rape.

Four youths were charged with homicide in the latest outbreak, the fatal stabbing of two 16-year-old boys in a playground Sunday. Police said the trouble started when an 18-year-old boy offered marijuana to the 39-year-old mother of another boy. Police are looking for several others, including the leader of the attack who wore a black cape.

There was pressure for a 10 p.m. curfew on juveniles.

A judge said "the streets of New York have become a jungle."

TWO ROBBERS STEAL $35 FROM BEER TRUCK DRIVER

Charles P. Donovan, a beer truck driver, 5653 Wilborn avenue, Jennings, was robbed of $35 last night at Jefferson and Eads avenues, he reported to police.

Donovan said his truck broke down and he went into a nearby tavern to call a service man.

When he returned to the truck, he was knocked down and robbed by two men who had been in the tavern, Donovan told police.

NON-OPERATING RAIL UNIONS MAY STRIKE

© New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1—Eleven non-operating railroad unions announced yesterday that they would seek a 25-cent hourly wage boost and welfare concessions that could bring a nation-wide strike if management refused the demands.

About 800,000 railroad workers, such as clerks and mechanics, belong to the 11 non-operating unions involved. Their average hourly pay is about $2.30. The 11 unions concerned usually bargain as a unit. Two other non-operating unions, the Train Dispatchers Association and the Railway Supervisors Association, bargain separately.

George E. Leighty, spokesman for the 11 unions, coupled the demands with a threat to call a strike Nov. 2 if the companies maintained that present agreements must continue beyond Nov. 1.

A spokesman for the Association of American Railroads said the association knew of no company desiring to maintain the agreements past Nov. 1. He said it was generally understood and accepted by the companies that the contracts would expire on that date.

The 11 non-operating unions earlier filed demands for holiday and vacation improvements. Those demands were met by management with a counter-demand for a five-cents-an-hour cut in wages.

PRESIDENT LIKELY TO VISIT SCOTLAND AFTER PARIS STOP

LONDON, Sept. 1 (AP)—President Eisenhower probably will stop over in Scotland for several days after visiting President Charles de Gaulle in Paris, presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty said today.

But Hagerty said Mr. Eisenhower has not made a final decision on whether to take a few days rest in this country before returning to Washington.

He told a news conference there "definitely will be no new discussions with Prime Minister Macmillan" if the President does decide to stop in Scotland.

It is the President's intention, if he does return to Britain, to stay at his own private apartment in Culzean castle, Ayrshire.

The 16-room apartment was given to him by the Scots in gratitude for the part he played during World War II in saving Britain from invasion and in the defeat of the Nazis.

ALFORD DULY ELECTED, SUBCOMMITTEE REPORTS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP) —The House Elections subcommittee said yesterday that Representative Dale Alford (Dem.), Arkansas, was duly elected to Congress from the Fifth Arkansas District.

The belief that the Little Rock segregationist is entitled to his seat in the house is contained in a resolution approved by the subcommittee for presentation soon to the House.

Headed by Robert T. Ashmore (Dem.), South Carolina, the subcommittee has been investigating the election in which Alford defeated former Representative Brooks Hays (Dem.), Arkansas. The subcommittee last week reported Alford won by a margin of 1498 votes, 30,247 to 28,749. The official state canvas gave Alford 30,749, Hays 29,483.

Strange things are likely to hap-

This newspaper item above is typical of the insults that have been hurled at Jack Webb, TV's most celebrated cop. One writer said he was "as savage as a wildcat." Another called him "a slave driver." And another said "he didn't even know how to smile."

"But none of these things is true," Jack says – and in this week's Saturday Evening Post, he sets out to prove it! You'll learn what he's really like – what the facts are behind Dragnet, Badge 714 and the deadpan mask of Sergeant Joe Friday. You'll read:

- about the rumor that somebody gave Jack the idea for Dragnet – and never got paid for it.
- how a woman he never saw insisted he was the father of her unborn baby.
- why his marriage to singer Julie London ended in the divorce courts.
- how Hedda Hopper gave him his first big break when he was a radio announcer in San Francisco.
- about his man-sized feud with a leading Broadway columnist.

Be sure to read Jack Webb's own exciting story—"The Facts About Me"—in this week's Saturday Evening Post.

WARNING!

–we're living in the fallout "danger" zone

According to new evidence, the radiation fallout over the U. S. is more than twice the world's average. Read how "cracks" in the sky are causing this peril—and how some experts say it can cause disease, deformity and early death! Be sure to read "Fallout: The Silent Killer."

WOMAN DIES, WAS HURT BY INTRUDER

Mrs. Lena Potashknick, 65 years old, died last night at Jewish Hospital of injuries suffered last month when she was attacked by an intruder in her home.

The incident occurred last Aug. 6, the same night that three other women were awakened by an intruder in a series of separate incidents in the same vicinity.

Mrs. Potashknick was awakened in the bedroom of her home at 1364 Goodfellow boulevard. She saw a man entering through a bathroom window.

When she screamed, the man jumped onto her bed and jabbed her in the face with a metal object. She suffered lacerations and contusions of the face and head and was taken to Homer G. Phillips Hospital. She later was transferred to Jewish Hospital.

Her assailant fled after the attack. Police believe that the four break-ins were the work of one man, a Negro.

RICKENBACKER QUITTING OCT. 1 AS AIRLINE BOSS

NEW YORK, Sept. 1 (AP)—Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, World War I flying ace and one of the great pioneers of the air age, is stepping down as boss of Eastern Air Lines.

He said yesterday he would resign Oct. 1 as chief executive officer. He has held the post since he founded the airline on a shoestring more than 20 years ago. He will be 69 years old Oct. 8.

His successor will be Malcolm A. MacIntyre, 51, an attorney specializing in air transport who resigned as Under Secretary of the United States Air Force in July.

HIGH MORAL LEVEL CALLED UNION DUTY

Labor unions have a responsibility to maintain high moral standards, Attorney General John M. Dalton of Missouri said here last night.

Addressing 800 delegates to the state AFL-CIO convention at the Chase Hotel, he said: "You can make your own standards. You can keep your groups at high ethical levels—or not—just as you please."

Dalton cited the work of his own profession in forming an association of lawyers with a disciplinary committee, to keep "a few rotten apples from spoiling the barrel."

He said he was convinced that most members of the labor movement are "honest, conscientious, law-abiding citizens who desire to further the ideals and principles of the movement."

He said both labor and industry have co-operated "in bringing industrial plants to our state" and in helping insure "stability of employment and continuity of operation of our productive might."

"I am neither for unions nor against them," he asserted. "I am neither for industry nor against it. I am for the public and all of the people of Missouri."

The state council's incumbent officers and 20 incumbent directors were nominated for re-election without opposition yesterday afternoon.

John I. Rollings was renominated as president, James A. Davis as vice president, and Frank J. Murphy as secretary-treasurer.

Charles Collison, a representative of Typographical Union No. 40 of St. Joseph, was nominated without opposition to fill the one vacant directorship.

SENIOR CITIZENS ARE GIVEN SOCIAL SECURITY REMINDER

Some senior citizens who live on limited budgets or are dependent on a son or daughter for at least one half their support may be eligible for Social Security benefits, it was announced today.

T. L. Gaukel, St. Louis Social Security administrator, explained that in August 1958 Congress changed the Social Security law to pay dependent parents even if the deceased working son or daughter is survived by a widow, a dependent widower or a child under 18.

Previously dependent parents could not qualify if other surviving members of the family were eligible for present or future benefits. Applications must be filed before these benefits can be paid under the new amendment, Gaukel said. Payments may be retroactive for as much as 12 months.

HUSBAND STABBED BY MAN WHO WAS FOLLOWING WIFE

Peter Bischoff, laborer, 1759 Missouri avenue, was reported in serious condition today after having been stabbed in the abdomen by a man who fled. The stabbing occurred at Jefferson and Lafayette avenues.

Bischoff met his wife as she was walking east on Lafayette and she pointed to a man who had been following her, she told her husband. Bischoff pursued the man and caught him.

Bischoff marched the man to Jefferson and Lafayette avenues and was preparing to call police when the man drew a knife and stabbed Bischoff, police said.

WOMAN'S $2,000,000 'INHERITANCE' MAY BE JUST A JOKE

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 1 (UPI)—Mrs. Felice Naccarelli, who had planned to leave for Scotland today to settle a $2,000,000 estate reportedly left her by an uncle, learned just in time that she may be a victim of a "monstrous joke."

Attorney Howard R. Eulenstein said today that Mrs. Naccarelli, 46 years old, who is suffering from cancer and has been given one year to live, changed her plans and would await further word on the "inheritance."

The Pittsburgh woman had received telegrams informing her that she was the sole heir to the estate of an uncle, John Lennon, a ship designer who worked on the Queen Mary. She had seen her uncle during a visit to Scotland in 1924. Her uncle had visited her here several times, most recently in 1952.

Eulenstein said a preliminary investigation has shown that the "whole affair may be a monstrous joke." He said he was checking into the origin of the telegrams.

"We feel that these telegrams originated in Pittsburgh," he said.

RED FORTRESS REPORTED TAKEN BY LAOS TROOPS

VIENTIANE, Sept. 1 (UPI)—Laotian government forces have captured a Communist field fortress in Phong Saly province, said reports received in this administrative capital today.

The government strike was reported to have taken place Sunday at the village of Sop Nao. No other details were available. It was believed the Communist Pathet Lao rebels no longer held any fortresses in Phong Saly and are now based in the jungle.

Informed sources said in Manila that the SEATO council of representatives would convene in Bangkok, Thailand next week to discuss the Red uprising in Laos. Authoritative sources stressed the meeting was being called "purely for an assessment" of the situation.

There were these other developments in Laos:

The first shipment of American emergency supplies, 2600 pairs of shoes for Laos's army, was brought into Vientiane yesterday by a chartered Civil Air Transport plane.

A government plane airdropping supplies to Laotian forces in the north Sunday was damaged by rebel rifle fire and all the supplies it dropped eventually fell into rebel hands.

R. G. Casey, Australian minister for external affairs, said in London that the Communist rebellion in Laos "could become quite disturbing for Australia."

Casey, who arrived in London for talks with British officials, described Communist activity in Laos and the Chinese infringement of India's borders as part of a "general pattern of Communist probes."

NATIONAL DEBT TOPS 290 BILLION FOR FIRST TIME

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP)—The Treasury said today the national debt now exceeds 290 billion dollars for the first time in history.

The debt passed the 290 mark last Thursday but, because of a lag in gathering such statistics, this was not known until today.

As of Thursday, the gross public debt was $290,306,000,000. The part subject to the legal ceiling was $289,890,000,000. A small part of the debt, made up largely of obligations incurred before World War I, is not subject to the legal limit.

Treasury officials expected the debt to continue climbing until mid-December, when it will approach the temporary legal ceiling of $295 billions. The debt normally increases between July and December because this is a period of lean tax collections.

Victims of Yellowstone Bears.

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Sept. 1 (AP)—Forty-two persons have been clawed or bitten in attempting to feed the park bears this year. None of the injuries was serious.

PENTAGON ASSAILED ON BORON SCRAPPING

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (UPI)—A House Science and Space Committee member today accused the Pentagon of "gross waste" due to duplication and "total lack of co-ordination" on contracting multi-million dollar research programs.

Representative B. F. Sisk (Dem.), California, said there "is an imperative need for complete reorganization of the Defense Department." He said "it is time to clean out the Pentagon, put all those services in one uniform, get some co-ordination of responsibility over there."

Other members also teed off on the Defense Department, charging it with failure to properly oversee costly military research programs.

The outbursts came as the committee continued an investigation of the research program to develop boron compound jet aircraft fuels which the Air Force and Navy canceled recently after spending more than $240,000,000.

The high energy fuel program, designed to give about 40 per cent added speed and range to supersonic jet aircraft, was abandoned about two weeks ago after seven years of development work.

Two new plants built to produce the fuels were closed and placed on a standby basis before they got into production. One is a Navy-financed $38,000,000 plant at Muskogee, Okla., and the other an Air Force $53,000,000 boron plant at Niagara Falls, N.Y.

CHARGES AGAINST 11 MEN IN GAMBLING RAID DROPPED

Gambling charges against 11 men arrested yesterday in a raid on an alleged gambling establishment at 6234 Delmar boulevard were dismissed today in police court.

The charges were dismissed by Provisional Police Judge Richard Hatton after officers testified that they found no evidence that bets were made or any money on a table where two men were playing cards.

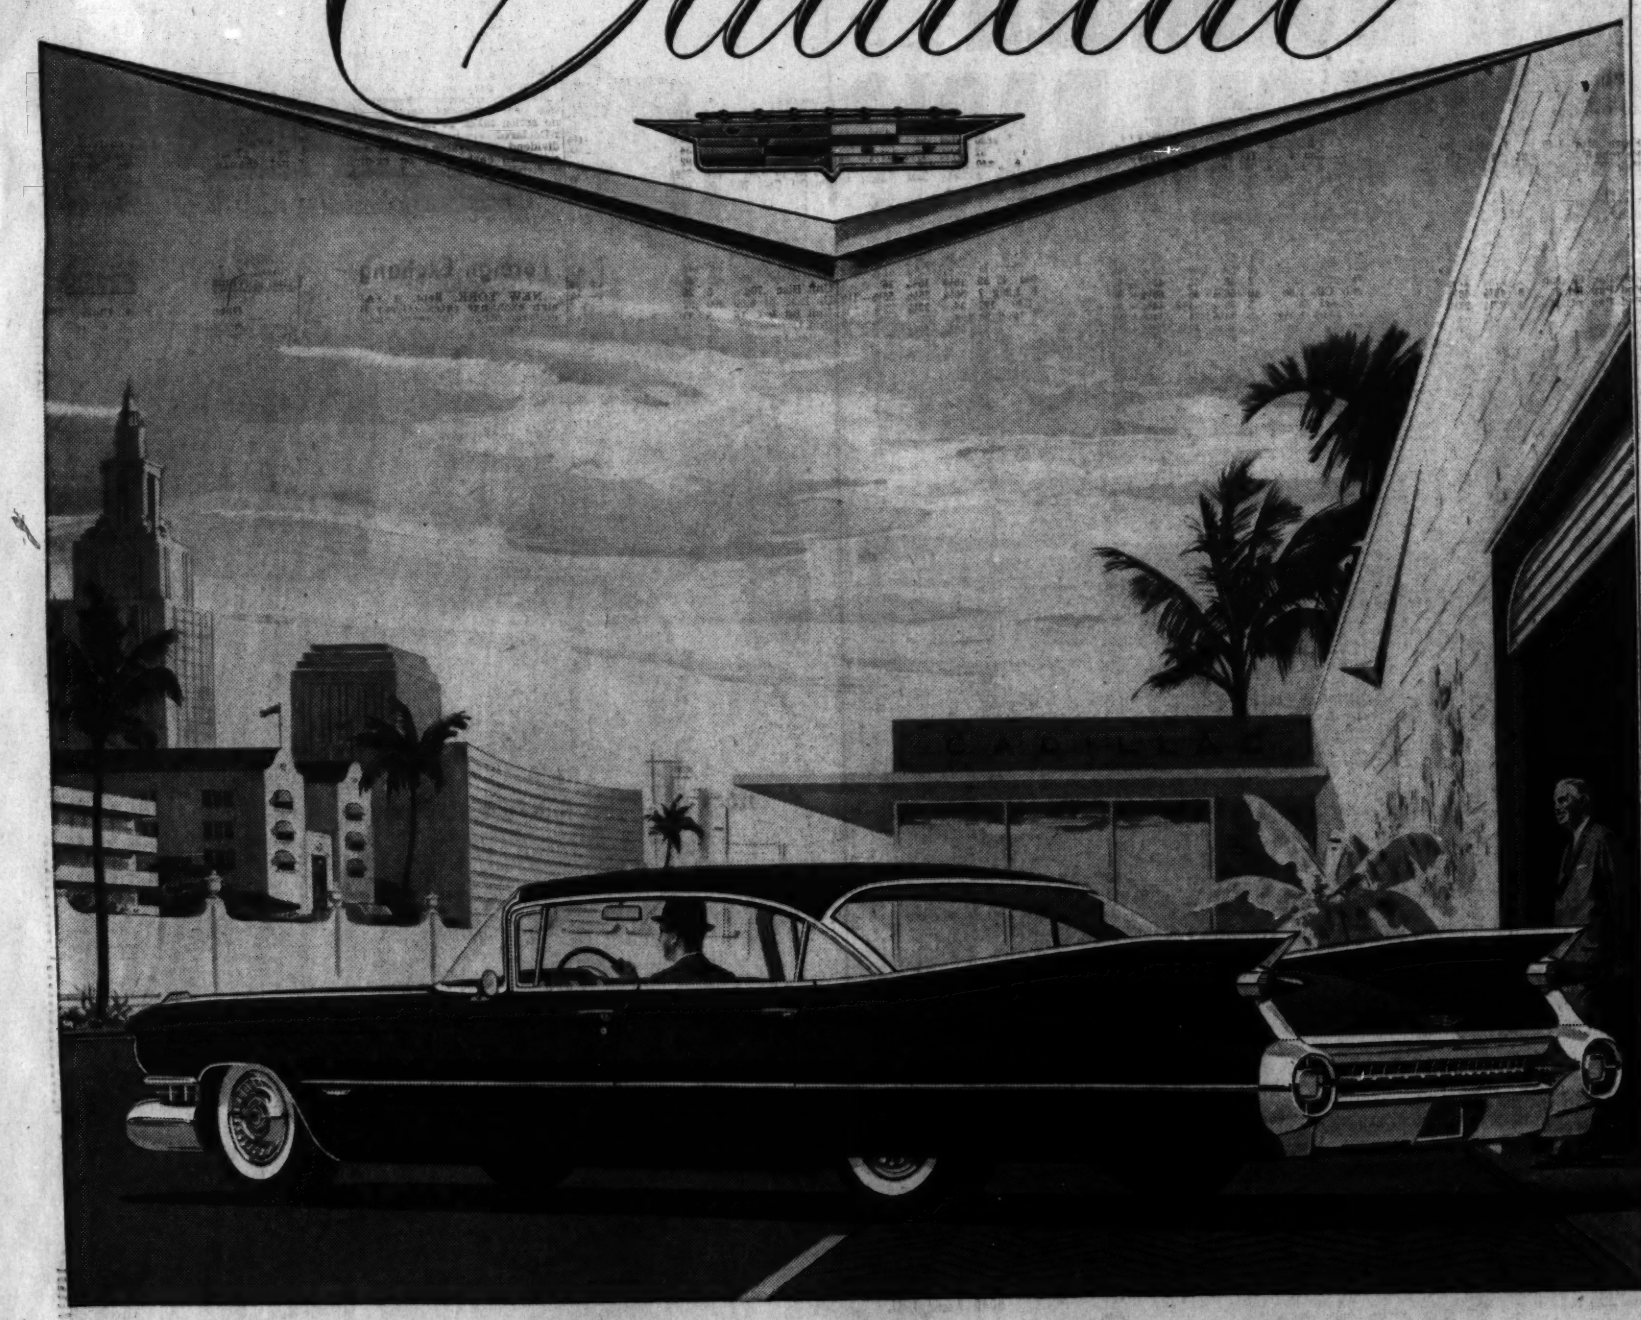
Peter Krance, 7532 Cromwell drive, Clayton and Ernest Feldman, 8026 Appleton drive, University City, were the men playing cards, police testified. Charges against them and against Victor Padratzik, owner of the establishment, were dismissed.

200 ENGINEERS ON STRIKE AT CAPE CANAVERAL BASE

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla., Sept. 1 (AP)—About 200 members of the Operating Engineers Union remained off the job today in a wage dispute with a paving contractor at this missile base.

The engineers went on strike yesterday to press their demand for double pay for all overtime. About 100 members of other building trades unions walked out in sympathy. The Air Force, which runs the missile test center, said some construction work was slowed but missile launchings were not affected.

Cadillac



One Decision He Will Never Regret!

There's a new lilt to his spirit today—and his heart is singing a song it hasn't recalled in a good many years.

For today he took title to his first Cadillac—and already he knows that this is one decision he will never regret.

You see, so many of the satisfactions of Cadillac ownership make themselves known to a man the instant he takes the wheel—the car's marvelous comfort and luxury, for instance . . . its feeling of quality and substance . . . its wondrous silence and effortless handling . . . and that abiding sense of pride and fulfillment.

And then, there is the pleasant contemplation of the car's great practicality.

The original investment was far more modest than he had anticipated—surprisingly close, in fact, to the cost of the medium-priced car he had previously owned.

What a revelation the facts about Cadillac value were—and how reassuring the story of Cadillac's remarkable resale characteristics!

And, of course, he knows that the car's great operating economy and dependability will ride with him through every joyous mile.

In fact, if he has any regret at all, it is that he waited so long to discover how eminently practical a Cadillac can be.

How about you? Is there a Cadillac at the end of your private rainbow? Well, then, you owe it to yourself to get the facts firsthand.

Your dealer will be delighted to do the honors at any time you specify.

STOCKS TUMBLE ON ADVANCE IN INTEREST RATES

NEW YORK, Sept. 1 (UPI)—The stock market took it on the chin today following a further tightening of the money market.

Volume increased sharply on the sell-off which sent some issues down more than 6 points in the main list. Plus signs in the list were few and far between.

Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was 8.51 points lower at 655.90 at the close. The 20 rails dropped 1.85 to 161.60 and the 15 utilities slipped .35 of a point to 90.76. The 65 stocks declined 2.40 to 218.22.

Of 1214 issues traded, 826 declined and 199 advanced. There were 14 new highs for the year and 33 new lows.

Volume was 2,430,000 shares compared with 2,140,000 yesterday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped $2.00 to $229.00 with the industrials down $3.10, the rails down $2.20 and the utilities down 30 cents.

It was the steepest setback since Aug. 10 when the AP average fell $4.10.

Based on the fall in the AP average, the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange dropped an estimater $2,600,000,000.

American Motors staged a late recovery which enabled the stock to come from a loss of more than a point to a gain of around a point at the close. But it was the excention.

Many issues saw their losses widen just before the close. Youngstown was one of these. It finished off more than 6 points as did Texas instruments. Declines of 2, 3 and 4 points were numerous and included many of the blue chips such as Du Pont, U. S. Steel, Alcoa, Reynolds Metals, Southern Pacific, Owens Illinois Glass and Coca-Cola.

Selling hit the market in the morning shortly after leading commercial banks announced they were hiking their prime interest rates to a 30-year high of 5 per cent.

The market remained under pressure all day with selling picking up somewhat near the close.

The increase in interest rates hurt stock market psychology. For one thing, there are some investors who fear tight money may slow and eventually reverse the economic upturn that has been under way since last summer.

Also, tight money is anti-inflationary. A key factor behind the demand for stocks has been a desire to hedge against further inflation. Higher interest rates also mean a widening of the gap between yields on bonds and stocks.

Motor stocks showed losses running past a point. Oils were lower on balance. Rails sported losses running past a point in some of the pivotals. The drugs were off as much as 2 points or more.

INTEREST RATE ON PRIME LOANS TO 5 PER CENT

NEW YORK, Sept. 1 (AP)—First National City Bank of New York today boosted the prime lending rate from 4½ to 5 per cent, effective immediately.

The prime rate is a basic money market charge and heralds an increase in other interest charges all along the line. The prime rate is what banks charge their biggest customers with the best credit ratings.

Five per cent is the highest rate in 28 years. It was increased last May from 4 to 4½ per cent.

Other Bank Follows.

Chase Manhattan Bank, largest in the city, followed the lead of First National City almost immediately. First National City is the second largest bank in New York and the third in the country.

Similar action by other major banks across the country was expected.

Both First National City and Chase Manhattan also boosted rates on broker and dealer loans from 4½ to 5 per cent effective immediately.

The hike in the prime rate came as no surprise. Money has been growing tighter and demand for business loans has increased steadily. The start of the fall season brings wholesalers and retailers into the money market to finance accumulation of inventories for the fall and Christmas season.

Commodity dealers and food processors also step up their bank borrowing to finance purchase of crops.

Consumers to Pay More.

The increase in leading rates to business will lead inevitably to higher borrowing costs for consumers. Earlier this summer, some of the big New York City banks planned to increase consumer loan rates. They now collect, in advance, $3.75 a year on each $100 that is borrowed to buy autos and appliances. They had intended to make this $4.25 but held off when President Eisenhower's plea to Congress to remove the 4¼ per cent ceiling on long term Government borrowing roused a storm of protest against high interest rates generally.

The Treasury's 13-week bill rate yesterday rose to a 26-year high. The latest issue sold at a price equivalent to an average yield of 3.889 per cent. A week ago a similar issue drew a rate of 3.824 per cent.

Banks Acceptance Up.

Bankers acecptance rates also were boosted by ⅛ to ¼ of 1 per cent. These short-term bills compete for investment funds with the Treasury 13-week bills.

The hike in the prime rate increased pressure on the Federal Reserve to increase the discount rate. This is what the Fed charges member banks when they borrow. It currently stands at 3½ per cent.

Wall Street has known the Reserve would prefer to wait until the steel strike is over before boosting the discount rate.

Firm Plans 70 Pct. Expansion Of Food Color Production

Warner-Jenkinson Co. Taking Bids for Two-Story Addition—Record Union Electric Output.

By William H. Kester
Post-Dispatch Business Correspondent.

Warner-Jenkinson Manufacturing Co., 2526 Baldwin street, plans to expand its capacity for production of certified food colors by about 70 per cent, Garet F. Meyer, chairman of the board of directors, said today.

The company has manufactured flavoring extracts and syrups, primarily for the beverage and ice cream industry, since establishment in 1905. Colors have been produced since 1917. About 100 persons are employed by the company.

W. H. Kester

A two-story addition containing 20,000 square feet of floor area is planned. Bids for construction are being received. Cost of the entire expansion, including machinery and equipment, is expected to be $200,000 to $250,000, Meyer said.

The expansion is in anticipation of increased demands for certified food colors. Congress is considering legislation which would permit use of food colors in amounts regulated by the Food and Drug Administration. Some colors now barred may be permitted in regulated amounts under the new law.

Electric output in the week ended Aug. 26 by Union Electric Co. reached a record high of 214,382,900 kilowatt hours, the company reported yesterday. The increase in output reflected the use of power for air conditioning and the high temperatures, which averaged 7.7 degrees above normal that week.

The influence of temperature on electric output is clearly revealed in the figures for the last four weeks.

Ripley Bowling Pin Co., Hancock, Mich., has established manufacturing facilities and headquarters at 4128 Park avenue, Paul A. Northrup, president, said today. Operations in Michigan will be continued; the new plant here increases the company's capacity to supply the growing demand for bowling pins.

The plant and office occupy about 35,000 square feet of leased space in a building formerly occupied by the Liggett and Myers Tobacco Co. warehouse. About 20 persons are employed. Production is expected to be about 30,000 sets of pins annually.

Commercial and industrial loans by weekly reporting banks in the Eighth Federal Reserve Bank District declined $2,800,000 in the week ended Aug. 26, the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis reported today.

Commodity dealers increased their borrowings $3,600,000, but most other categories of borrowers reduced their loans.

In the four weeks ended August 26, commercial and industrial loans in the Eighth District rose $16,600,000, compared with an average increase of $17,000,000 in the corresponding weeks of the last five years.

Missouri Solvents and Chemicals Co. has been appointed a distributor of Hercules Powder Co. resins, effective today.

U.S. to Offer Magnesium Scrap.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP)—The Government today announced plans to sell about 7488 tons of magnesium scrap and cadmium-magnesium scrap.

The scrap was obtained from demilitarized incendiary bombs. It was turned over to the General Services Administration for possible processing into cadmium and magnesium metal for the national stockpile.

GSA said the present stockpile contains sufficient quantities of those metals in ready to use form so the scrap is excess and may be sold six months after notice of intention to sell.

GENERAL DEMAND IS BACK OF GRAIN RISE

CHICAGO, Sept. 1 (AP) — A moderate to good general demand sent several grain futures contracts well ahead today on the board of trade. Minus signs were absent or small most of the time.

The buying included a good volume of short covering and some reinstatement of long positions as the market showed some signs of shaking off its recent bearish trend.

Export interests were understood to be active, too, in the wheat and soybean pits where September contracts advanced more than a cent. Brazil, Japan and Korea were expected to make wheat purchases amounting to about 4,500,000 bushels this week. Denmark and West Germany bought small amounts of soybeans for shipment this month.

HIGH GRADE ZINC PRICES ADVANCED

NEW YORK, Sept. 1 (AP)—New Jersey Zinc Co. will increase the price for special high grade and high grade zinc by ¼ cent a pound tomorrow. The new prices will be 12½ cents a pound for special high grade and 12¼ cents for high grade zinc delievered to consumer plants, the company said. Prime western grade zinc continued unchanged at 11 cents a pound East St. Louis.

DRESSER INDUSTRIES, INC., manufacturer of oil field equipment, reported a net profit of $6,691,000 or $1.42 a share for the nine months ended July 31. Sales totaled $163,544,000. Earnings for the same period a year ago amounted to $7,416,000 or $1.61 a share on sales of $169,844,000.

INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER Credit Corp. reported its net income for the nine months ended July 31 was $5,562,950, an increase of $1,123,874 over the same period a year ago. The credit corporation is the finance company subsidiary of International Harvester Co.

AMERICAN MACHINE & Foundry Co. reported today that shipments of automatic pinspotters topped 2500 last month to set a record for any month. The previous high was 2000-plus in August 1958. The company has been producing the machines, which automatically set the pins and return the ball in bowling, for seven years. The order backlog is still above 15,000 compared with 6000 a year ago, said Chairman Morehead Patterson. "All indications are that business will continue to expand," he added.

BUSINESS WAS ROUTINE in the cotton textile market Tuesday. Light selling of print cloths and other constructions was reported, mostly including nearby deliveries. Prices held steady. The wool goods market was quiet. Prices at the Australian wool auctions were 2½ to 5 per cent lower than yesterday according to private reports. Another major producer raised prices for fancy worsteds and dacron-worsted blends by 10 to 15 cents a yard above spring 1960 levels. The new prices apply to reorders of spring lines next year and represent the initial price schedule for the fall 1960 season.

THREE-FOR-ONE STOCK SPLIT

CHICAGO, Sept. 1 (AP)—Directors of Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. have voted a three-for-one stock split.

B. E. Bensinger, president, said, "This split should succeed in broadening the market for our stock by placing it within the reach of many additional investors.

Stockholders will be asked to approve the split at a special meeting Oct. 23, and also to approve an increase in authorized common shares from 5,000,000 to 12,000,000.

If approved, distribution of two additional shares will be made Nov. 12 on the basis of each one share held Oct. 28.

Bensinger said management will ask directors at their next regular dividend meeting Nov. 3 to put the stock on a 60-cent annual dividend basis. This would be equivalent to $1.80 on the present stock, on which annual dividends now total $1.50.

U.S. Economy Today

STEEL STRIKE MORE WORRISOME

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK, Sept. 1 (AP)—The steel strike drags into another month and today even those with big built up stocks are getting nervous.

About three-fourths of the users say they can keep going until mid-October. But they also know they must stretch their stocks not only over the length of the strike but also for several weeks more before the steel mills can promise normal deliveries.

Sam Dawson

— industries tied closely to steel production, strike effects are still spreading. First layoffs came in the mines and on the railroads serving steel mills. Now salary cuts for executive personnel are being announced by such railroads as the Pennsylvania and Boston & Maine.

IN A TALLY BY THE FInancial staff of the Research Institute of America only 30 out of 300 steel users report they've already been hit by shortages. But by the middle of this month 100 expect to be. And by the middle of next month 225 say they'll be hurting. Some metal working companies also are facing up to labor troubles of their own which could close them down even if steel stocks hold out. Only about half of the companies are able to say when they expect normal shipments after the strike. Many of the others say they have tried to find out and can't. Half of those thinking they know say they expect to be getting regular supplies in about a month after the mills start up. The others are more pessimistic. And the institute says: "Some firms tell us they've been notified they won't be on the mills' fourth quarter books at all, no matter what happens."

THE INSTITUTE IS A business advisory organization supported by private industry. Member firms polled are assured of anonymity—a practice regarded as making for more frankness. For the long term the picture is much brighter. Three months after the strike ends the steel industry and steel using industries will be making up for lost production and rebuilding depleted stocks. This is expected to push the economy as a whole into new high ground well into 1960.

BUT THE INSTITUTE TAKES a dimmer view of the immediate outlook. Its financial staff says: "We've already passed the point where trouble can be avoided, even if the strike ended right away. Metalworking companies have passed the point of no return because it will be three to six weeks after the furnaces start again before the average customer can get normal deliveries, let alone rebuild inventory."

THOSE OTHER THAN metalworkers already hurt include, beside the obvious ones of coal mines and railroads serving steel mills: Contractors who can't start new jobs without delivery dates on structural steel they'll need. Plastic molders who may be running low on tool steel for dies. Chemical producers who may be running low of steel containers and must cut back on production of some items. Truckers who, like the railroads, have business in moving steel from mills to customers. Over-all trouble isn't here yet. But it could come fast.

LARGE DOWNTOWN ST. LOUIS BANKS INCREASE RATES

The large downtown banks in St. Louis raised lending rates today on new loans by one-half of one per cent, following the increase by leading banks in New York.

The lending rate for prime borrowers was increased to 5 per cent from 4½ per cent. Higher rates charged other borrowers also have been raised one-half of one per cent.

The new rates are effective today on new loans. Rates on existing loans will be increased on renewal. Demand loans charges will be adjusted upward in the next few days, bankers said.

BANK CLEARINGS

St. Louis bank clearings for Sept. 1 were $61,800,000 compared with $107,300,000 a year ago.

RED CHINA NOW SAYS 720 DIED IN TYPHOON IRIS

TOKYO, Sept. 1 (AP) — The Chinese Communists said today 2334 persons were killed, injured or left missing by typhoon Iris. The storm hit the coast of Fukien Province, opposite Formosa, Aug. 20.

The Communist New China News Agency said typhoon Iris killed 720 persons, injured 618 and the fate of 996 others is undetermined. This contrasted sharply with the agency's Aug. 24 report that 12 persons were killed and eight injured.

The same area was hit again Sunday by Typhoon Joan. The agency said that preliminary reports showed three persons killed, 57 injured and six missing.

It reported that 50,000 homes around the city of Foochow were evacuated when typhoon Joan struck. The agency said 774 houses were destroyed and 7784 more damaged.

Before hitting Red China, typhoon Joan rolled over Formosa. Eleven persons were reported killed and damage was estimated at $2,500,000 on the Nationalist Chinese island.

In Korea, floods threatened thousands of residents after three days of hard rains. Five deaths were reported.

United States and Korean troops began a major rescue operation. Boats, helicopters and trucks evacuated villagers threatened by the rising Han and Imjin rivers south of the demilitarized zone.

United States helicopters lifted about 600 Koreans from the banks of the Han. About 450 more were removed from islands created by the Han near Chunchon, 50 miles northeast of Seoul.

Police said 1100 persons had been driven from their homes in Seoul.

Six inches of rain have fallen in central Korea since Sunday.

DOLLARWAY SCHOOL OPENING DELAYED FOR COURT RULING

PINE BLUFF, Ark., Sept. 1 (UPI)—Opening of the Dollarway schools scheduled for next Tuesday has been postponed until after Sept. 21, it was announced today by board president Lee Parham.

The opening date for the schools will be determined after the United States Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals at St. Louis rules on the merits of an appeal from a United States District Court order directing integration of the Dollarway High School, Parham said. The St. Louis court advanced the hearing yesterday to Sept. 21.

Parham said today that the school board had voted at a recent meeting to delay the opening if the appeals court refused the stay request. Parham said that the opening date would be set when the Appeals Court handed down its ruling.

DOCTOR IS ROBBED OF $75 BY BURGLAR WHO FLEES

Dr. Thomas Summers was robbed of $75 early today by a man who entered the physician's living quarters above an antique shop at 4285 Olive street.

Dr. Summers awakened, observed the burglar and yelled. The intruder ran downstairs to the second floor, climbed out a window onto a metal canopy and jumped to a concrete walk in a yard in the rear of the building.

Meanwhile, the physician looked out his window on the third floor and saw the man, a Negro, limping away. He took the money from a billfold in Dr. Summer's trousers, which were on a chair in the bedroom.

PACKING COMPANY, UNIONS AGREE ON 15-CENT PAY RAISE

CHICAGO, Sept. 1 (UPI)—Negotiators for Armour & Co. and two meat industry unions today announced new contract provisions including a 15 cent-an-hour boost over two years and a "new approach" to automation problems.

The agreement, which headed off a threatened strike by 15,000 Armour workers in 27 plants across the nation, was expected to set a pattern in talks with four other packing firms.

Dies of Wasp Stings.

THOMASVILLE, N.C., Sept. 1 (UPI)—Luther Copley, a lumber yard worker, died yesterday after he was stung by wasps. Copley told doctors he was stung four or five times. He died two hours later.

NOTES CHANCES OF CHILD PSYCHIATRIC CENTER HERE

St. Louis has an opportunity in the next five years to rank with Boston and New York as a leading national child psychoanalysis and guidance center, a St. Louis child guidance specialist said yesterday.

Dr. John C. Anthony, professor of child psychiatry and child guidance at Washington University, said that St. Louis area schools are producing enough child psychiatrists to fill clinics and residential centers here within a few years. He addressed a meeting of the women's auxiliary of the Psychoanlytic Foundation of St. Louis.

Dr. Anthony urged the establishment in St. Louis of a special training center to encourage trainees to continue studies in child psychiatry. At present, he said, 11 years of study are needed to become a specialist in the field.

U.S. BANKERS TAKE ANTI-INFLATION STEP

© New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 — The American Bankers Association announced yesterday a new program aimed at promoting economic growth without inflation.

The program will stress education—first of bankers themselves and, subsequently, of the general public. Its other aim is to help influence legislation in Congress.

This will be a new venture for the A.B.A., which has generally concentrated on banking matters. The program will be in the hands of a new committee for Economic Growth Without Inflation headed by Casimir A. Sienkiewicz, president of the Central-Penn National Bank of Philadelphia.

Lee P. Miller, president of the A.B.A., said: "Inflation exists and grows because people permit it. Banks, as custodians of much of the people's savings, and bankers, as citizens with public responsibilities, have an obligation to contribute to the people's understanding of the causes and results of inflation.

Miller said the new committee's program would stress the role of Government budget and monetary policies in growth and inflation. He added that it would also deal with price and wage policies of business and labor on the ground that "the events of recent years have demonstrated that financial measures alone cannot always be relied upon to prevent inflation."

The program, officials said, will be a long-range one. It will stress that price stability and economic growth are not enemies of each other but rather are allies and "mutually interdependent."

William A. McDonell, board chairman of the First National Bank in St. Louis and former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, is a member of the new committee.

FACES UP TO 550-DAY TERM FOR TRAFFIC VIOLATIONS

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 1 (AP) —A merchant seaman faces up to 550 days on the city prison farm today to serve out $1650 in fines for traffic tickets issued against him since 1956.

Police arrested Edward Taylor after his automobile struck a parked car Saturday night. Records show he had five warrants outstanding for driving without an operator's permit, one for speeding, one for running a red light and one for leaving the scene of a collision.

In Saturday's collision he was ticketed for failure to stop and give information, negligent collision and operating without a valid license. Corporation Court Judge Abe Levy fined him $600 in connection with that incident and $1050 for previous cases.

ADM. MOUNTBATTEN GIVEN BRIEFING ON U.S. ARMY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (UPI) —Adm. Earl Mountbatten, chief of the British Defense Staff got a briefing on the United States Army at the Pentagon today.

The briefing was believed to have included an estimate of the Army's capability for fighting brush fire wars. Mountbatten leaves later today for London.

He began talks at the Pentagon yesterday. He was reported to have discussed Communist Chinese aggressive intentions on Laos and India with Gen. Nathan E. Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and Defense Secretary Neil McElroy.

Text of Eisenhower-Macmillan TV Discussion; Visits Called Sound Contribution to Peace

THE TEXT OF THE TELEVISION DISCUSSION last night between President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan:

Announcer: Tonight the President of the United States is the guest of honor at a dinner party in No. 10 Downing street. The President has already arrived, and he and the Prime Minister are together in the state drawing room where the BBC television service and listeners to the home, European and overseas services now join them.

Macmillan: Well, Mr. President, I want to start by saying how much we all welcome you here. Hundreds of thousands of our people have seen you in the streets and millions of our people will be watching you tonight. In the 17 years of our friendship which I think started in North Africa we have had many frank talks together. And I think we can have a frank talk this evening. We have had good talks at Chequers and now we are at No. 10.

Eisenhower: Let me tell you right away and to all of those good people out there who have been so kind to me that we are mighty glad to be back visiting again in this lovely country.

Macmillan: I thought we might begin by saying a word about Anglo-American relations. In our lifetime we have been pretty close together in our countries. Of course there have been differences, it is no good denying it, there have been serious differences before the war, after the war, two or three years ago about the Middle East, sometimes about the Far East, but the great thing is that we have never dropped backward, we looked forward.

I THINK YOU and I have tried to do that, and now we are up against the biggest job in the world: How to keep peace and justice, and I want to say to you, if I may, that I think your visits to these three European capitals and the interchange of visits that you are going to make with Mr. Khrushchev are very sound contributions to peace.

Eisenhower: Mr. Prime Minister, I'd like to say a personal word about this business of Anglo-American relations. Except for the two years that I was in Columbia university, ever since 1941 I have been engaged in activities where one of my principal concerns have been the state and the strength of relationships between your country and ours.

And I can say through that long personal experience that those relations have never been stronger and better than they are now, and in this regard I would like to mention one country of the British commonwealth that is our geographical neighbor in North America, that is Canada. Here is a border, more than 3000 miles long. It is defended by nothing but friendship.

There is not a gun or a fort along it. This is the kind of thing that I think we must all strive to achieve, whether we are geographical neighbors or not, and I am quite sure if (Canadian prime minister) Mr. Diefenbaker were here he would say we are neighbors in the sense of the biblical parable just as well as we are geographical neighbors.

And one other point.

We have spoken of your country and ours in relationship with Canada but we are neighbors in another great society, a society dedicated to peace and the defense of the West, and that is NATO.

IN THAT WE ARE all proud to be equal partners, and with all of our other associated countries we are dedicated to that one single objective of making ourselves secure and making peace more promising.

Macmillan: You said peace Mr. President. I agree with you, but of course a lot of our people, old people who have lived through two wars and young people, are frightened of war.

They fear war and I have thought a lot about this and read a good deal recently. Now the first war I feel ought never to have happened. It happened by mistake. I believe if we had had the same kind of international meeting that we have now it would not have happened.

The second war was different. I do not think anything could have avoided it, when it happened, how it happened, what wicked men plotted it, who were determined to achieve their aims.

NOW IN THIS situation I have felt there is a danger that we might drift into something by mistake, bluff, counterbluff, lack of understanding of both sides, and drift into something, and I tell you frankly when I read the Russian ultimatum in November about Berlin I felt the danger of that drift.

That is why I set about my journeys last February. Some people thought they were a bit odd, but still in an alliance we must all have a certain amount of play and I think I am bound to say they have not turned out too badly. I think now, what with the position that you have created and your initiative, we are in a better position.

I have never concealed from you I always have wanted a summit meeting and I believe your initiative will put us in a position to get it under the best conditions.

Eisenhower: Well, Harold, I think there is one thing we should be very sure about when we are talking about peace. We are talking about something now that is the imperative of our time.

War has become so threatening in its capacity for destruction of the whole of civilization that we, and I mean all people as well as statesmen, have the responsibility of making sure that our actions, the things we try to do, are all directed by this single purpose and directed with as much intelligence as we can marshal with such brains as the good Lord gave us, so that these different meetings we are having, the meetings that I am making in western Europe now, the ones I expect to have with Mr. Khrushchev, they are always having as their background this sense that peace is an imperative, and we must all understand that, and indeed if we are to have a summit I am sure of this, Mr. Khrushchev must understand that exactly as you and I do.

If we do that then I think there is real hope, and we should have a summit. And I mean if he does things that show that he recognizes that just as you and I do, then I think a summit meeting could be profitable.

Macmillan: I agree, but of course we talk now about the two great groups, the Communist group and our group. Then there are lots of other peoples in the world too. These countries outside, some of them not yet truly developed, some of them a bit backward. What about them, Mr. President?

Eisenhower: I believe that in a sense the problem of the underdeveloped nations is more elastic, more important for western civilization than this problem of the Soviet-Western differences, and quarrels. And there are one billion seven hundred million people today living without sufficient food, shelter, clothing and health facilities.

Now they are not going to remain so quiescent. They are learning something about their own lot and they are comparing their lot with ours.

Sitting here this evening—they are just going to have an explosion if we don't help.

I BELIEVE that the biggest co-operative job that all the world that call themselves civilized, including the Soviets, ought to address themselves to (is) this problem on a co-operative basis, help to solve it so these people can achieve their legitimate aspirations—and that is a problem that every one of us must address himself to and see what we can do, what our proper part is.

Macmillan: I agree with you because in a sense it is what we have done in our own countries. A hundred years ago there were deep divisions between rich and poor, great cleavages.

The greatest of our conservative statesmen wrote a book called "Two Nations." We made one nation.

There's a difference, of course, but not the deep division—the same as you have done in your country. I think, like you, it isn't right that we and our people should have all these things—houses and health services and hospitals and education—and that there should be these people in poverty and misery, and in a way we have a certain knowledge of this because it is the story of our empire and commonwealth.

I am going to take the opportunity to say a word to you about that. Now I know what colonialism means to Americans because my mother was American. It means the Boston tea

Red Threat in India Could Upset West's Calculations for Peace

LONDON, Sept. 1.

WHILE THE PRINCIPAL members of the Western alliance bask in the glow of well advertised harmony the stage is set on the other side of the world for a tragedy that could undo all the West's careful calculations for peace. What is happening in India, seen in the light of Communist China's vast potential power, overshadows every other event. In the course of her visit with President Eisenhower today, Madame Viaja Iakshmi Pandit, Indian High Commissioner to Britain, gave him a warm personal invitation from her brother, Prime Minister Nehru, to visit India. She gave him, too, her own assurance of what an enormously heartening effect such a visit would have.

Nehru's dilemma could scarcely be more painful. He sees the ruin of his policy which was to maintain friendly relations with the West and with the Communist powers and particularly with Red China. The threat of Communism both internal and external is so grave that Nehru, who has begun to weary under his backbreaking load, is for the first time beginning to feel something like despair. This is the view of those close to him who are profoundly concerned for his future and for the future of India.

Critics of Nehru's neutralist policy may feel that they can now enjoy a little sardonic laughter at his expense. After all, he elected to try to co-operate with Communist tiger. But recrimination is at this moment a luxury the West cannot afford.

EVER SINCE the Dalai Lama fled from the Communist invaders who had overrun Tibet and took refuge across the Indian border, Nehru has sent one note after another to Red China's Premier Chou En-lai. Note after note after note has gone out, and there has simply been no reply.

The take-over in Tibet seemed at least to have a rational motivation. Besides its immense strategic value, there is said to be great mineral wealth in a country almost wholly undeveloped by the nomadic peoples who for centuries have lived their own isolated life.

The attack on the outposts on the northeast frontier seems to be naked and deliberate hostility. This is wild, mountainous, inaccessible country.

The independent state of Nepal between Tibet and India and the Indian protectorates of Sikkim and Bhutan are also reported to be threatened. It is this pattern of hostility coupled with the silence from Peiping that has brought Nehru nearer to despair than at any time during the struggle following independence to unite India and raise the abyssmally low standard of living.

WHAT THE CHINESE action seems to mean is the beginning of a course of invasion and conquest that must sooner or later threaten the existence of the Indian Government.

At the conference of Asian nations in Bandung, Nehru and Chou worked closely together. Nehru enunciated the five principles deriving from Bhuddism and stressing mutual tolerance and the dignity of the individual. Chou joined Nehru in indorsing the five principles, and the two appeared to be friendly collaborators for peaceful co-existence. With a common border of 2500 miles Nehru believed that the two great Asian powers could live in harmony. His disillusion is all the greater because his hopes had been so high.

At the same time at home oppressive Communist rule in the state of Kerala produced widespread protests and rioting on such a scale that the central government had to intervene. Extensive help for the Indian Communist party has come through the mass sale of books printed in Russia and sold in India for a few cents a copy. In other ways, too, help has come from the Russians while Premier Khrushchev has said publicly that the Soviet Union has no interest in the Indian Communist party.

COMMUNISM, particularly among disaffected and often jobless intellectuals, is also a threat in Calcutta with its vast refugee population. Calcutta has a large Chinese population of uncertain loyalty. With thousands of refugees sleeping nightly in the streets the danger of an explosion is very real.

Yet Nehru, according to those close to him, still clings to the belief that it is futile in the instance of Tibet to appeal to the United Nations as the Dalai Lama wants to do. Nehru's reasoning is that since Red China is not a member of the U.N. and therefore could not come under its discipline it would be needlessly dividing the world organization to take the issue to the General Assembly.

As a morale builder, President Eisenhower's visit would be extremely helpful. It has been suggested that India would not welcome such a visit coming as a stop after the trip to Moscow. But Nehru himself has sent word that this would make no difference and he would be delighted to receive the President after his journey to Soviet Russia.

The President would get a great welcome in India and he would see for himself the enormity of the task that the Indians confront in trying to move into the Twentieth Century. He would see, too, that the West for all its harmony has no reason to feel the slightest complacency about the state of the world.

Bonn-Moscow Notes Are Viewed As Approach to Negotiations

MOSCOW, Sept. 1.

PREMIER KHRUSCHEV has touched off a highly significant exchange of ideas with West German Chancellor Adenauer just before the Soviet leader's meetings with President Eisenhowr. In th view of diplomats in Moscow this might be a conscious approach to Soviet-West German negotiations on a number of vital issues.

This is the general interpretation being given in Moscow to the series of events that started with the Aug. 18 letter from Khrushchev to Adenauer proposing efforts to improve political and economic relations between the Soviet Union and West Germany. Khrushchev disclosed that he had received a reply from Adenauer Saturday that "produces a favorable impression." In a speech in the southern Ukrainian Cossack village of Veshenskaya he made some impromptu remarks in response to Adenauer's reply.

THE IMPRESSION created by these exchanges is that Khrushchev, having been sufficiently apprised of President Eisenhower's avowed determination not to enter into bilateral negotiations with the Soviet Union on Germany or any other question affecting the Western Allies, had decided to set into motion his own exchanges with Bonn.

If this does not result in direct personal contact, possibly following the Khrushchev-Eisenhower exchange of visits, at the least the Soviet leader has invited Adenauer to give him a more detailed statement of his position by letter or diplomatic contact.

It was this invitation to further discussion that led to speculation that Adenauer might be the next western leader Khrushchev would want to see in the series of exchanges that started early this year with Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain.

KHRUSHCHEV'S immediate aim seems to be at least to get West Germany to recognize and establish political and economic relations with the East European "peoples democracies." The Adenauer government might eventually be induced to establish relations with Poland and Czechoslovakia and perhaps other East European allies of the Soviet Union. The recognition of East Germany, however, will be a much more difficult problem.

By the Associated Press.

Khrushchev said also that he believed President Eisenhower to be a man of peace.

Khrushchev said he is quite satisfied with the President's Aug. 25 statement that the forthcoming meetings between the two leaders should help melt the cold war ice. The Russian leader added:

"This statement shows that Mr. Eisenhower is prepared to help relieve the tension between states. We regard this as a good basis for the forthcoming fruitful exchange of views with the President."

KHRUSHCHEV was less complimentary about Vice President Nixon, who recently visited the Soviet Union.

"Unfortunately," Khrushchev said, "Mr. Nixon continues to cling to erroneous positions in his utterances about the U.S.S.R.

"It is absolutely wrong to say, as Nixon did, that propaganda against the United States is being waged in the U.S.S.R."

HAWAIIAN LEGISLATURE WORKS ON NEW STATUTES

HONOLULU, Sept. 1 (AP)—Hawaii's first state legislature began work today on statutes needed to reorganize the island government from territorial status.

In his first message to a joint session of the legislature yesterday, Gov. William F. Quinn, formerly of St. Louis, appealed to the lawmakers to forget party lines in their work.

Quinn is a Republican. The party has a Senate majority, but the Democrats control the House.

From a Rank-and-Filer

I would like to raise a point, if I may, on the Landrum-Griffin reform bill. One of the main justifications of its supporters is the "protection of union members' rights."

I firmly believe that harsh legislation passed for tight controls on international unions are a direct infringement on rank-and-filer rights. What good is the potential future of the rank-and-file member with a much-weakened international union standing behind him? Not much, I'm afraid.

We need some sort of legislation, but what we don't need is legislation passed and vastly supported by Southern Democrats and Northern Republicans. Anyone can see what those two groups represent.

As to breaking this down to the local union level, at all meetings I attend all the men speak their own minds and all issues are put forth to the members to vote on, right on down to the annual donation to the policemen's ball.

The only rights I can see involved in the Landrum-Griffin measure are the rights of manufacturers and conservative politicians to shackle the American labor movement.

Contrast

The contrast between two administrations can be seen in the bold and dynamic reaction to Communist aggression in Korea by the Truman Administration, and in the lackadaisical and do-nothing approach to Communist aggression in Laos by the Eisenhower Administration. Donald Goldwasser

Better Days Are Coming

A news item a few weeks ago told how Aloys P. Kaufmann, president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, rushed an irate letter of protest to a manufacturer of air-conditioners who had referred to St. Louis's "brutal humidity and excessive heat."

I wonder where Mr. Kaufmann has been lately, as week after week of his beloved St. Louis summer has gradually wilted down the local populace?

He should be having a rather steady diet of humble pie, wherever he is!

My guess is that he's slipped away quietly to buy one of those remarkable machines that'll withstand this miserable climate and used it to air-condition the ostrich-mound where he keeps his head buried. Let's Face Facts

Captured by the Squares

I have just one question to ask the pontificating Max Dimont, who assailed the beatniks in an article on Sunday's music and arts page. And I'll venture an answer to my question.

Supposing the beats are a social blight, by what means will they "infect an important segment of our youth"?

Mr. Dimont, the "squares" on Madison avenue and in Hollywood are already spreading the "infection" in an all-out campaign to turn the beatnik idea into dollars.

Yes, the beats, after setting out to slay the dragon of commercialism, have been dragged forcibly into his den. Don Roelle

The Man Who Said 'No'

It is not surprising at all that the Soviet press should regard ex-President Truman as a "little man." After all he was the little man who gave the free world a hope that criminal aggression by the Russians and their satellites wouldn't go on forever.

No wonder that the Soviets don't like him. He was the one who said "No" to them.

I am a foreign-born citizen who admires Mr. Truman as a great man and a President of unequaled stature. All honor and glory to him. Edward Molano

Too Much to Take

I want to thank you for Bill Mauldin's wonderful cartoon, "Bedtime on Oakland Avenue."

We have always accepted the sounds of the animals at the zoo; the inter-city trucks; and the normal traffic sounds plus the added sounds when the Red Feather traffic is added to Oakland avenue when the highway is closed.

But diesel after diesel grinding east and west is a little too much to take night after night.

Fallacies at the Forums

Much of the opposition to the proposed metropolitan district plan seems to be based on misunderstandings of what the plan is and what its authors intended it to do. It is being tarred for what it is not, judging from the anti-district arguments advanced at forums conducted by Washington University's Civic Education Center in co-operation with neighborhood and other groups in city and county.

First among the anti-district fallacies is the misleading assertion that the district is "another layer of government," as if that were necessarily evil. Strictly speaking, the district is not another layer. The metropolitan layer already exists in the form of the Metropolitan Sewer District, which would be absorbed in the proposed new agency. If anything, the new district would expand and democratize the existing layer.

In reality, the phrase "another layer of government" is a convenient slogan, without much substance. Certainly everyone would like to keep government on a small and local level, but this is looking backward. The area is growing rapidly and new ways must be devised for dealing with new problems. Metropolitan problems cannot be handled by individual communities, and slogans should not be mistaken for facts nor used to hide them.

Neither city nor county alone can solve the traffic problem, for instance, as is demonstrated in the streets every morning and every afternoon. A new agency like the district is required, one with area-wide jurisdiction, one that need not concern itself with municipal boundaries. This might be called "another layer," but the point is that it is a necessary layer. That is an important distinction. Without the district no existing government in either St. Louis or St. Louis county is capable of solving a single metropolitan problem.

Closely tied to this fallacy is the tax fallacy. This one has two aspects. One is the charge that municipalities are not likely to reduce their tax rates as they are relieved of responsibilities in areas of strictly metropolitan concern. This is an assumption by those who want to make this area one gigantic city that the people of the smaller communities cannot control their own affairs. And it ignores the fact that most county municipalities are now spending little if anything on services that would be of metropolitan concern. As for St. Louis, when it handed over responsibilities for sewer service to the Sewer District, it cut its tax rate by 4 cents, which was the exact cost of providing that service.

The other aspect of the tax fallacy is the assertion that city taxpayers might have to pay an additional tax to the metropolitan district for services which they already have. With the exception of sewer service, for which they pay only the Sewer District, St. Louisans now enjoy none of the metropolitan services the district would provide, and they will not enjoy them unless the district plan is approved in November.

This is not to say that the district plan will cost nothing. Any plan that provides new services will have to be paid for, whether it be the district plan or the complete city-county merger plan that some district opponents want to impose on the people. But the St. Louis area desperately needs metropolitan services if it is to enjoy the economic growth so necessary for providing new jobs for the next generation and for providing an expanded tax base to help support better schools and improved local services. One way or another it will have to pay for them.

Once new industry and commerce are attracted to this area by effective metropolitan government, they will begin paying handsome tax dividends and everyone will benefit. But nobody ever got anything for nothing. If St. Louisans and their neighbors in the county decline to create the district and make a modest tax investment in it, they will pay for it anyway in economic stagnation. That will shrink job opportunities and shift more of industry's tax burden to the residential householder. Is that what the district's opponents want?

Lord Hagerty's Hagerteria

According to reports from London, newsmen covering the talks between President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan have been calling the press center "the Hagertorium," in honor of Mr. Eisenhower's ubiquitous press secretary, James C. Hagerty. This could be a mistake in transmission, but we think it more likely it is an instance of confusion on the part of our British cousins. The word is obviously "Hagerteria."

A Hagerteria is an establishment in which the patron chooses an offering that most appeals to him, carries it to a corner and munches it. Thus some British reporters selected grouse, while others picked what were described as "crumbs of gossip." Others apparently did not like the menu at all, and retired hungry to cry in ill-mannered sarcasm that were the proprietor of the Hagerteria a Briton he would doubtless by now be Lord Hagerty.

The British complained that the items available in the Hagerteria were too dainty—no meat and potatoes. Writers for the Daily Herald, the Daily Sketch and The Observer were bitter. But The Times of London thought the food was, on the whole, as good as could be expected under the circumstances. At any rate we are sure of one thing—the Hagerteria will not suffer for lack of business.

More Than Emotion

Poll taxes, on which a Senate subcommittee is holding hearings, are described by Senator Stennis of Mississippi, one of the five remaining poll-tax states, as "more an emotional issue than a real fact of political life." If this is true, why do not the public men of his state and of Virginia, Alabama, Arkansas and Texas rise above mere emotionalism far enough to do away with this tax prerequisite to voting?

The unpleasant facts are that the poll tax is not only a real but an oppressive fact of political life to many citizens of minimum economic means. It tends to disfranchise both the poor white and the poor Negro. Furthermore, it shrinks the electorate to a size which machine politicians can manipulate. In both these regards it is an anti-democratic force.

If the states, in their function as a testing laboratory for legislation, had not tried the poll tax and found it wanting, so many would not have dropped it, so few kept it. The constitutional-amendment process being considered by a Senate Judiciary subcommittee, to outlaw the poll tax in national elections, is a slow, cumbersome method acceptable only as a last resort. The five states which still retain poll taxes would do better to jettison them on their own initiative. They represent a day of mass disfranchisement that is going with the wind.

Without Revenge on Foreign Aid

Senator Symington's expressed fear that President Eisenhower's veto of the rivers and harbors bill may exert "some negative effect" on the Mutual Security appropriations bill will, we hope, prove to be unfounded. "Some Congressmen," he says, "might feel that foreign aid funds should be cut back."

The Administration's policy of "no new starts" in natural resource development, which formed the basis for the veto, has had, we believe, an unfortunate effect on national progress for the past seven years. Particularly has this been true in the field of electric power, which is the foundation of an industrial nation's strength. We deplore the rejection of projects to stop waste, as by flood control, and to increase our industrial strength, simply because they are new.

At the same time, we should like to see an end to the "pork-barrel" items in the rivers and harbors bill, as Senator Douglas of Illinois has been urging upon Congress so ably for the past several years.

In the bill the President has vetoed, the St. Louis area suffers immediately through the crippling of its flood control project. Many other worthwhile projects, some of them of considerable urgency, likewise will suffer unless Congress overrides the veto, as proponents of the measure show signs of being able to do and as we hope they will do.

But the public works bill should be considered on its own merits, and the foreign aid bill on its merits. To strike back at the President for his veto by opposing him on mutual security would be folly, of a most dangerous sort, and the cheapest kind of partisan politics.

Foreign policy cannot be effective if it is to be subjected to the shifting winds and the sometimes rather small considerations of domestic dispute. Whatever Congress does about the veto, we would like to think every member will hold himself above making a domestic political football of a foreign aid program designed for the mutual security of the free world.

Problems of Statehood

Dan Liu, Honolulu police chief, says he has been alerted by the FBI and mainland officers of the law to expect an invasion by gangsters seeking to establish organized gambling rackets. Hawaii's new position as the fiftieth state "has brought Hawaii to the attention of the underworld," he says. We are behind Mr. Liu in his determination to repel the threatened invasion, but we fail to see how the transition from territory to state creates a better climate for unsavory characters.

Congress Will Stay on the Job

Senator Johnson of Texas and Senator Dirksen of Illinois, majority and minority leaders respectively of the two parties in the Senate, used the best of judgment in rejecting the proposal to recess Congress next Friday for six weeks. The proposal, advanced formally in a letter by Senator Smathers of Florida, was designed primarily to get Congress out of Washington before the arrival of Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

In opposing the idea, Senator Johnson dealt only with the crowded congressional docket. He said he thought most members of the Senate wanted to stay on the job until action is concluded on pending labor, highway, civil rights, housing and public works bills. Certainly it would be a mistake for Congress to shut up shop until the middle of October with this important legislation hanging fire.

As for the desire of Senator Smathers—and the other members of Congress for whom he spoke—to be out of Washington when Mr. K. arrives, that is foolish. If the leader of the Russians speaks to a joint Senate-House session (as some Senators propose), President Eisenhower undoubtedly will have an opportunity in return to make a state address in the Kremlin. How can it be argued that the United States will be the loser in an open exchange?

If Premier Khrushchev is to gain an accurate idea of the government of the United States, Congress could hardly do better than to engage in a spirited debate on an important issue when the Communist leader is a visitor to our shores. Free give and take is the very essence of our society and failure to employ it would be to miss one of our greatest opportunities.

The U.S. and the World Court

The orderly way of American life properly is attributed to our respect for the rule of law. Individuals do not settle disputes by violence; they submit them to independent courts for judgment according to known law. This is the foundation of a civilized community, so it has been repeatedly suggested as the way to international accord.

Yet it is chiefly the United States which makes the International Court of Justice at the Hague as ineffectual as it is. By the Connally amendment of 1946, the United States retains the right to keep any dispute out of the court on the ground that it is a domestic affair. By reciprocity, other nations can invoke the same reservation.

Attorney General William P. Rogers has told the American Bar Association that it is time for us to renounce this reservation. Even De Gaulle's France—which the Attorney General said is "surely as sensitive as we are in matters of sovereignty" — last month renounced a similar stipulation. As a matter of fact, renunciation would cost us little since the court does not take jurisdiction over domestic issues. The only difference would be that the court, like any other court, would decide this point instead of leaving it to the judgment of a litigant.

The Attorney General said that so long as we insist on this privilege "other nations will not believe we are sincere in our support of the rule of law." Certainly no court can function effectively under this condition. No nation need fear injustice since the World Court, after all, can invoke only limited sanctions against a sovereign government. On the other hand, the advantages of a tribunal for the settlement of disputes stemming out of international agreements is obvious.

"LOOK—I DON'T EVEN NEED RADAR!"

1960 Not '1952 All Over Again'

Taft-Nixon, Eisenhower-Rockefeller Parallels for G.O.P. Race Do Not Seem Valid

Alan L. Otten in The Wall Street Journal

WASHINGTON.

After looking long, but not too hard, at the jockeying for the 1960 G.O.P. presidential nomination, some soothsayers are falling back on what is becoming a common political aphorism: "It will be 1952 all over again." But this theory, while neat in its way, will not stand up under close examination.

Behind the assumption lies the belief that, regardless of the outcome, political events are casting Vice President Nixon in the role of the late Senator Taft, and New York's Gov. Rockefeller in the role of Gen. Eisenhower. Those who expect 1960 to be a repetition of 1952 state their case thusly: Mr. Taft, while commanding the loyalty of much of the G.O.P., also had the enmity of many party leaders, led by then Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, who apparently now is masterminding the Rockefeller candidacy. The anti-Taft Republicans hitched their hopes to a bright new star with a non-political aura, and put Mr. Eisenhower across by beating hard on the theme, "Taft can't win."

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Certainly there are strong similarities between the Taft-Eisenhower struggle and the Nixon-Rockefeller battle that's shaping up. Certainly the Rockefeller backers are getting set to try to torpedo the Vice President's White House ambitions with the same sort of "can't win" theme song they effectively used against the Ohio Senator. The differences, however, are equally striking, even if less well understood.

To begin with, Mr. Taft's opposition within the Republican party was far more extensive than is the party opposition to Mr. Nixon. Or perhaps more accurately, the Vice President's following among G.O.P. regulars is probably greater than that enjoyed by any other Republican, including Mr. Taft, in recent history.

Contrast in Candidacies

In 1951 and 1952, some Republicans looked upon Senator Taft as an old warhorse, respected and even revered, but suspected as a candidate as being too conservative on domestic economic policies. Moreover, there were those who sincerely questioned Mr. Taft's views on foreign policy as being "too isolationist" and his qualifications to deal with the overriding issues between the U.S. and Russia.

By contrast, Mr. Rockefeller patently lacks the background and experience on which was built another 1952 Eisenhower slogan, "He knows how to deal with the Russians." Mr. Nixon, to be sure, also lacks the Eisenhower reputation as a war hero but the Nixon supporters can and do claim his years as understudy to Mr. Eisenhower and the late Secretary of State Dulles have given him a background that no other Republican today can enjoy. Certainly no one has ever seriously questioned the Vice President's "internationalist" tendencies.

To many people in 1952 Senator Taft was identified with what's commonly called "the Old Guard" wing of his party, even though politically he was more "liberal" on some issues—housing and health legislation, for example—than Mr. Eisenhower. Here again by contrast, Mr. Nixon is part of and identified with a very popular President and Republican Administration that has widespread support not only among Republican voters but, as well, among Democrats and Independents.

—Post-Dispatch, July 8, 1952.

At the Chicago Stockyards

Nowhere can the contrasts be more drawn, however, than in the political alignments of 1952 and 1959-60. Nearly all the former Taft backers are now firmly in the Nixon camp, but so, too, are many groups and individuals who once supported Eisenhower.

Lined up with Mr. Nixon also is much of the former Citizens for Eisenhower group including its co-chairman, former Under Secretary of Commerce Walter Williams. These once-Eisenhower, now-Nixon rooters also include such "liberal" Senators as Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky as well as large numbers of G.O.P. House members.

Nixon's Political Aids

It is also an interesting fact that the Vice President's three principal staff political aids were either actively for or sympathetic with the Eisenhower candidacy of seven years ago. These are Mr. Nixon's top assistant, Robert H. Finch; his press secretary, Herbert H. Klein; and Charles K. McWhorter, a special assistant, who was secretary of the National Youth for Eisenhower in 1952.

Moreover, the bulk of Mr. Eisenhower's professional G.O.P. support came from the nation's 28 Republican governors. Though there are now only 15 G.O.P. governors, most of them are lined up solidly with Mr. Nixon.

Contrary to widespread impressions, the political "ins" supported Mr. Eisenhower in 1952, while much of the Taft support came from the "outs" who were trying to get "in." There were many exceptions, to be sure, to that generality. But with fewer exceptions now, the "ins" are backing the Vice President, while the "outs" are lining up with the New York governor in hopes of getting "in." Most any professional politician would tell you that this, indeed, is not the strongest political position.

Moreover, it would be difficult to estimate the number of Republicans throughout the country who are deep in Mr. Nixon's debt. He has spoken and campaigned for Republican candidates in nearly every state over the last seven years. He has done favors in Washington for hundreds of G.O.P. officials. While Senator Taft was primarily the philosophical leader of his party, Mr. Nixon has contacts and debtors everywhere.

And while Mr. Nixon seems to have a kind of party support that Mr. Taft never knew, Mr. Rockefeller would appear to have considerably less backing than did Gen. Eisenhower.

The public opinion polls, which were used with such devastating effect against Senator Taft before the 1952 convention, do not thus far seem likely to provide Mr. Rockefeller with similar ammunition. Mr. Nixon has been doing much better in the polls than did the late Senator, both with regular Republicans and independents. And while Mr. Eisenhower started pulling away in the polls once he entered the race, the New York Governor slumped after his big post-election showing.

'Dynamic Stage Presence'

The Vice President, too, is in many ways a more astute political performer than was the Ohio Senator. Mr. Taft had a brilliant mind, but comparatively little finesse with people. Mr. Nixon on the other hand, is almost flawless mechanically: There is much of the actor in him, not that he is insincere, but rather that he has cultivated a dynamic stage presence, is dramatic, and his most recent doings in the international spotlight would seem to attest to these qualities.

The Vice President's press relations are good. He works assiduously at keeping newsmen informed and is deliberately patient under pertinent questioning. Mr. Taft's relations with the press were unsatisfactory.

Mr. Nixon rarely runs away from hot issues but usually handles touchy subjects with a diplomacy the late Senator could not match.

After all the evidence is in, a man would have to be downright imprudent to guess who will carry the G.O.P. standard next year. But that same evidence makes very clear how inaccurate is the aphorism: "It will be 1952 all over again."

It won't be. It will be 1960, for the reason that Nixon is not Taft and Rockefeller is not Eisenhower.

Independent Reformer

ERNESTINE L. ROSE AND THE BATTLE FOR HUMAN RIGHTS, by Yuri Suhl. (Reynal, 310 pgs., $5.75.)

Ernestine L. Rose proved herself an independent thinker early in life (1810-1892). She was reared in a Polish ghetto, and her father, a rabbi, tried to make her marry a man she did not love by pledging as her dowry a substantial property she had inherited from her mother. Ernestine would lose it on refusing the marriage. She contested this in a Polish court and won the case by speaking in her own defense. Afterwards, at 16, she went alone to Berlin and achieved economic security by inventing a dispeller of cooking odors.

Later she traveled through Europe and studied social conditions. While in England she came under the influence of Robert Owen, a strong advocate of bettering man by improving his environment. In 1836 she married William Rose, a silversmith, who shared her devotion to the cause of human happiness and encouraged the full flowering of her talents as a social reformer. A few months later the couple sailed for America where Ernestine became friends with other champions of suffrage: Lucretia Mott, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Susan B. Anthony and Paulina Wright Davis.

DORIS FLEESON

A Correspondent's Frustration

LONDON.

SO FAR NO MUNDANE FACT having to do with foreign policy has been allowed to escape from President Eisenhower's country weekend with Queen Elizabeth and Prime Minister Macmillan.

In a triumph of communications, all that appears on the surface has never been better covered by more talent, but all that the principals have said about the vital matters at issue is pronounced "private" by White House Press Secretary James Hagerty and his British counterparts. At this rate it will be better and cheaper to equip future safaris with Univac. Twice a day the newsmen crowd into a white tent on Carlton House Terrace near St. James's Park, their tongues hanging out.

Fleeson

Help for Macmillan.

Deposited thereon are the menus and such stirring facts as that five brace of grouse are 10 grouse, that they were the gift of the Queen and shot three days ago but—a bad slip here, chaps—nobody knows who shot them. The founts of all knowledge forgot to ask.

Whether this is just what the wonderful, welcoming throngs which greet the President everywhere have in mind is unclear.

People here, as at home, are normally very patient with their politicians, and the usual barometers of political unrest—employment, for example, is up in Britain.

In one candid assessment of British politics published today, it is said that the mere fact of the President's visit will sustain the Macmillan government in the general election it now plans to call this fall.

Reassuring employment figures, the warm weather and the happy prospect of another baby for the Queen are also listed as assets of the Conservative government.

Candid Briton.

Sir William Hayter in the London Observer is more brutally candid. He writes that "there is no substitute for American leadership. When American leadership is absent or uncertain, the West is not led at all.

No one, we have found, will follow British leadership, and the attempt to assert it leads to unpopularity and suspicion."

Certainly, the British press's welcome to the President, whom it has so often criticized, is universally glowing and affectionate.

There is sentiment in it, of course, for the then Gen. Eisenhower lived among them during the blitz, but, as Sir William suggests, they need him worse now than they did then.

It may be that the Macmillan government is happier not to go too far too fast. They would not be the first politicians to prefer to campaign in a rosy glow of anticipation rather than on the basis of hard choice with its accompanying risk.

CHRISTIANITY LOSES GROUND IN WORLD

DENVER, Sept. 1 (AP) — In proportion to the world's population gains, Christianity is losing ground. It is a relatively shrinking faith.

This fact — and some action and ideas on countering it—today occupied the international convention of Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ).

It charted a tough, ambitious drive of its own, aimed at quadrupling its work and expenditures in the next 10 years, and its leaders stressed a plea for greater Christian unity.

Lack of Christian unity has hurt the cause everywhere, said business man Charles Kinder Green of Cheshire, England, president of the world convention of Churches of Christ (Disciples).

"Christ's purpose for His world is constantly being frustrated by the divisions in His church," he told nearly 9000 church representatives here.

Noting that the world's 835,000,000 Christians constitute only one-third of the world's 2½ billion population, he said:

He cited studies showing that the Christian population is growing only a third as fast as the over-all population, with the highest birth rates in Asia where Christianity is weakest.

Also, he said, atheistic Communism now rules 37 per cent of the world's inhabitants, and in addition, Buddhists and Moslems are becoming "more aggressive in their evangelism," and challenging Christianity in many areas.

Methodist Bishop Calls for End To Segregation.

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 1 (AP)—Bishop Richard C. Raines of Indianapolis called last night on the forthcoming general conference of the Methodist Church "to remove any question as to whether we have segregation written into our discipline."

He said the conference should speak the truth "concerning the evils of race discrimination in all forms and the requirements of justice and Christian love and brotherhood in recognizing the God-given dignity and rights of man."

These principles, he said, should be put to work in Methodist homes, churches, schools, hospitals and all other institutions owned or controlled by the church.

Bishop Raines delivered the keynote address opening the first Methodist Conference on Human Relations which opened at Southern Methodist University. Some 1200 Methodist leaders are attending the week-long meeting called to develop a program designed to improve race relations.

Good Spellers May Have Been Born That Way, Science Finds

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa., Sept. 1—A person's ability to spell may be in genes. He may have inherited spelling prowess—or lack of it—from his parents.

That's the burden of a report given Monday to the American Society of Human Genetics. A person's chances of living to old age, or dying of prostate cancer, of being able to discriminate the pitch of sound, or possessing good reasoning power, the scientists heard, may depend on heredity.

That is the conclusion of Richard E. Stafford of Princeton University's psychology department, who pointed out that training accounts for most of a person's ability to spell, but there is something inherited that makes brain cells right to spell or not to spell.

Born of the same egg, identical twins share almost identical heredity. Fraternal twins, born of separate eggs, share some biological features, but not all.

So, if scientists can measure a feature on enough twins of both kinds, they may prove its inheritance.

Mr. Stafford, in his study of spelling, pitch discrimination and reasoning powers, used measurements gathered years before and his mathematics showed that inherited biology was responsible in some as yet unknown way for spelling, pitch discrimination and reasoning powers.

Dr. Franz J. Kallmann of the New York Psychiatric Institute used identical and fraternal twins to supply the strongest evidence to date that severe mental illness may have a biological root.

Dr. Lissy Jarvik, Kallmann's associate, made a similar analysis with Dr. Arthur Falek and Dr. Irving Lorge and found there may be a relationship between heredity and the chance of living to an old age.

Men who die of cancer of the prostate gland pass something on to their sons that increases their chance of dying of this cancer, Dr. Charles M. Woolf of the University of Utah, reported.

V.F.W. FACING FIGHT ON KHRUSHCHEV TRIP

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 1 (UPI)—A bitter fight appeared to be shaping up today at the Veterans of Foreign Wars convention over a resolution dealing with Soviet Premier Khrushchev's forthcoming visit to the United States.

Nixon strongly supported President Eisenhower's approval of the exchange of visits with Khrushchev, but Meany said flatly: "No good can come from such a visit."

Nixon said it would have been far easier for President Eisenhower to refuse the exchange of visits with Khrushchev than to accept the proposal which might prove unpopular in some quarters.

"But I say," said Nixon, "that it would be the height of irresponsibility on the part of the President of the United States to take this posture, popular as it might be at the moment, and allow the world to continue to drift into two hostile camps and an inevitable, suicidal war."

TUCKER URGES CIVIC ROLE FOR STUDENTS

Mayor Addresses Session of Catholic College Congress.

Communities can benefit greatly from college students' interest in civic and spiritual life, Mayor Raymond R. Tucker said today.

In welcoming the federation to the city, Tucker said "it is inspiring to see a group of young people take an interest not only in the civic life of the community but also in its spiritual life."

The Rev. Robert J. Henle, S.J., dean of the St. Louis University Graduate School, said last night that Catholicism will reach maturity in the future "in a world society that must become pluralistic."

Father Henle delivered the keynote address at the opening session of the congress. The six-day meeting will continue through Saturday.

Speaking on the theme of the congress, "The Catholic Student in a Pluralistic Society," Father Henle raised the question: "Can a man be a Catholic and a good citizen without compromising his beliefs?"

He can, the university dean said, but only by recognizing the good in society which "demands living in society and not in isolation."

He said each Catholic must move into society with specialized education as his personal duty.

Catholics must not be satisfied with theses and texts, but armed with personal insights and convictions based on a fundamental understanding of today's society, he continued.

The solution to "positively secularistic government," Father Henle told the student congress, is found in the United States's pluralistic society.

This system, new in the history of the world, "is divorced from pretentions," he said.

It denies itself the right to judge the Church, but it is not closed or opposed to religion, Father Henle added.

The congress opened with celebration of Mass by Auxiliary Bishop Leo C. Byrne of St. Louis at the Basilica of St. John, 1519 Chestnut street.

Bishop James A. McNulty of Paterson, N.J., episcopal moderator of the federation, delivered the sermon. More than 700 members of the federation are attending the annual meeting.

Clayton E. Freeman Dies.

GLEN RIDGE, N.J., Sept. 1 (AP)—Clayton E. Freeman, an organizer of the W. T. Grant Co. and former Republican State Chairman, died yesterday at the age of 87.

HAROLD S. VANCE, AEC MEMBER, DIES

Former Studebaker President and Consultant to ODM.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP)—Harold S. Vance, an Atomic Energy Commissioner since 1955, died yesterday at Walter Reed Army Medical Center. He was 69 years old. The AEC said Mr. Vance's death resulted from acute pneumonia following an abdominal operation.

Vance was named to the commission by President Eisenhower for a term that was to end June 30, 1960. His particular interest was in various industrial applications of atomic energy.

Before he joined the AEC, Mr. Vance was chairman of the executive committee of the Studebaker-Packard Corp. He had served with Studebaker since 1911 and retired from the corporation's presidency in 1954.

Earlier, he was employed by the Bethlehem Steel Co. as a production engineer. From 1952 to 1955, Mr. Vance was a consultant to the Office of Defense Mobilization.

Mr. Vance was born in Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 22, 1890. His legal residence was in South Bend, Ind. He is survived by his widow, the former Agnes M. Monaghan; two daughters, Mrs. George Morgan of Malibu, Calif., and Mrs. John C. Chatterton of Evanston, Ill., and two sons, John and William, who live here at the family residence. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

AEC Chairman John A. McCone said the commission would sorely miss the wisdom that came from his long experience in industry.

Senator Clinton P. Anderson (Dem.), New Mexico, chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, in a statement on behalf of all members of the joint committee, said: "He devoted himself untiringly to the public interest."

AMATEUR ASTRONOMER FINDS 2 NEW COMETS

BROADWAY FARCET, England, Sept. 1 (AP)—An amateur astronomer said yesterday he had discovered two new comets with a telescope in his backyard.

George Alcock, 47-year-old schoolmaster, said he spotted the first comet last Tuesday night in the constellation Coronae Borealis, in the western sky, and the second at dawn last Sunday in the constellation Cancer.

Both have since been photographed by Britain's Royal Observatory. An observatory spokesman said it was too early yet to assess the value of Alcock's discovery.

RABBI ISSERMAN BEGINS 31ST YEAR AT TEMPLE

Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman will begin his thirty-first year as spiritual leader at Temple Israel, 5017 Washington avenue, today.

Rabbie Isserman came here after serving as rabbi of Holy Blossom Temple in Toronto, Canada. In his ministry, a new office-Sunday school unit has been built at Temple Israel and a site has been acquired for a new temple in Creve Coeur.

He served with the American Red Cross in Africa and Europe in World War II. He is one of the organizers of the American Jewish Society for Service and of the St. Louis Nursery Foundation. For 25 years he has conducted a regular Sunday radio broadcast, first over the old KXOK station and for the last 15 years over KSD. In 1930 he helped organize the first civic seminar of Christians and Jews in the United States.

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo., Sept. 1 (AP)—The west entrance to Yellowstone National Park, closed since the earthquake Aug. 17, was reopened yesterday.

TWINS, 6, REPORTED DOING WELL AFTER HEART SURGERY

Carolyn and Marilyn Schaefer, 6-year-old twins who underwent heart surgery at Cardinal Glennon Memorial Hospital Saturday, were reported "doing very well" today. They were allowed to sit up and feed themselves for the first time yesterday.

Their physician said the girls would be allowed to walk briefly tomorrow, and would probably leave the hospital for their home in Beardstown, Ill., on Monday.

J. H. STALEY DIES AT 96

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 1 (AP)—J. H. Staley, founder of the Staley Milling Co., one of the largest feed milling firms in the nation, died at his home here last night. He was 96 years old.

Mr. Staley, who retired in 1956, had been in poor health. Formerly a banker at Springfield, Mo., and Carthage, Mo., he founded the feed company here in 1925. He is survived by his wife, a daughter and two sons.

MEMORIAL SERVICES SET FOR HARRY B. MARTIN

Memorial services for Harry B. Martin, who originated the Post-Dispatch Weatherbird in 1901, will be at 3:15 p.m. tomorrow at Mount Hope Cemetery, Belleville. His ashes will be buried in the cemetery.

Mr. Martin, who was 85 years old, died last April 15 in New York, where he was in daily newspaper work until 1925. Later he wrote and illustrated books on golf, automobiles and other subjects and edited two publications for golfers. The first Weatherbird, used to illustrate a cold wave prediction, appeared on Feb. 11, 1901, dressed in an overcoat and muffler.

Surviving Mr. Martin are his wife, Mrs. Susan Martin; a son, Gould B. Martin, and a daughter, Mrs. Robert V. Parks, both of New York, and two sisters, Mrs. M. C. James of East St. Louis and Mrs. Nellie Miller of Taylorville, Ill.

RED CROSS SEEKING 664 ADDITIONAL VOLUNTEERS

A total of 664 additional volunteers will be sought during September by the American Red Cross for its community service programs, it was announced today.

Mrs. E. C. Simmons II, chairman of volunteer recruitment for the St. Louis bi-state chapter, said 456 volunteers are needed for daytime service and 208 for evening and weekend activities. She emphasized the need for gray ladies and gray men, bloodmobile aids, drivers, canteen hostesses and staff aids.

Registration for volunteers will be held week days, Sept. 8-25, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Red Cross headquarters, 4901 Washington boulevard. Persons living in St. Louis county wishing to know registration points and dates in their areas should call the Red Cross at FOrest 7-1320.

Eisenhower Practices Golf.

LONDON, Sept. 1 (AP)—President Eisenhower practiced golf swings for about a half hour yesterday on the back lawn of the residence of United States Ambassador John Hay Whitney.

PRESIDENT URGES SPACE BE USED TO BENEFIT ALL

LONDON, Sept. 1 (AP)—President Eisenhower declared yesterday the conquest of space is everybody's business and should be used for the benefit of all mankind.

"The opening up of the space frontier presents a momentous challenge to all nations and peoples which can only be met by close and continuous co-operation," his message said.

The President added his wish that the great discoveries lying ahead would "be harnessed to the benefit of all men everywhere."

American scientists announced at the conference that they have designed a manned satellite which would open like an umbrella and drop back to earth.

Avco Corp. research scientists said the device would slow the satellite from its orbital speed of around 18,000 m.p.h., so it could return through the earth's atmosphere.

"With government backing tomorrow, we could put one of these up in 18 months," said Dr. Arthur Kantrowitz.

ELMER MUEHLENBROCK DIES; FORMER ORCHESTRA LEADER

Elmer H. Muehlenbrock, former St. Louis orchestra leader, died of cancer today at Incarnate Word Hospital. He was 60 years old.

Mr. Muehlenbrock's orchestra played at the Edgewater Club for 15 years. As a pianist, Mr. Muehlenbrock played in orchestras at St. Louis theaters in the 1920s. He also was a disk jockey on Radio Station WEW for many years. He was a former secretary of Musicians Local 2 and the South Side Optimist Club.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Maude Muehlenbrock, and one daughter, Miss Marcella Muehlenbrock. Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Thursday at the Kriegshauser undertaking establishment, 4228 South Kingshighway. Burial will be in Sunset Burial Park.

SUKARNO OFF ON VACATION WITH ENTOURAGE OF 51

JAKARTA, Sept. 1 (UPI)—Indonesian President Sukarno left today for a 13-day trip to northern Sumatra and Borneo and a vacation on Bali, leaving his cabinet behind to straighten out the nation's chaotic economic situation.

Sukarno was accompanied by a 51-member entourage including United States Ambassador Howard Jones, Soviet Ambassador B. M. Volkov and other diplomats.

OPERA NEEDS NEW DONKEY

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1 (AP)—The San Francisco Opera Company is looking for a replacement for a member of the cast of "I Pagliacci."

Mike, the donkey, sprained a leg yesterday and was taken to an animal hospital where veterinarians doubted he would be ready to return to work by Sept. 19, the evening the opera opens.

Sports Comment

By Bob Broeg
Post-Dispatch Sports Editor

Woman's World

CHICAGO, Sept. 1 — They told it first about Rube Lutzke, Cleveland third baseman in the '20s, and it since has been begged, borrowed and stolen by every baseball wise guy in the knife and fork league.

Broeg

One day Lutzke made four straight hits, performed brilliantly afield and breezed into the family's summer apartment in the city on Lake Erie. His wife was rustling up dinner in the kitchen.

Rube grinned. "Four for four, honey," he volunteered happily.

The next afternoon Lutzke went hitless. Worse, the Yankees practically tore him apart. Babe Ruth barked Rube's shins with a wicked-skidding grounder. Lou Gehrig lined one off the Indian third baseman's knee. Bob Meusel's hot smash bad-hopped off his chest.

Quietly, his feelings hurt even worse than his aching body, Lutzke slipped into his apartment afterward. His wife, again busy getting dinner, inquired brightly:

"How did things go today, dear?"

Lutzke should live so long. Women not only don't stick to the pots and pans now, but they often do the ball-playing for the family.

Modern Mothers

Woman's place in the sports world as well as the home is unquestioned today, of course, and now the fair sex does not let marriage, motherhood or, if they'll pardon the expression, age interfere with athletic participation.

Take, for example, Mrs. June Stover Irwin, platform diver, and Mrs. Lucille Davidson, basketball and tennis player.

A member of the United States woman's basketball team in the Pan-American games, Mrs. Davidson is a 35-year-old housewife and mother who looks as trim as a teenager.

"I play basketball all winter and tennis during the summer," said the Kansas University graduate, who was born in Lee's Summit, Mo., and now resides in Raytown, Mo.

Perspiration trickled down the face of the 5-6½, 133-pound Missourian, who played on the United States team that toured Russia in 1958. The United States women basketball players just had run Mexico off the Oak Park High School court, 70 to 36.

To get here for the tournament, Mrs. Davidson said she had finished participating in a tennis meet at St. Louis late in the evening, then had driven to Kansas City to catch a plane to join the Pan-Am squad en route to Chicago.

How long will she continue to play?

"As long as my legs hold out and I can run with the younger girls, I'll continue to play," she replied.

"It keeps me in fine physical condition and it's a wonderful way to forget your problems and worries.

"I know I'm a better wife and mother than lots of women who aren't active in sports."

Age and Youth

Mrs. Davidson's view is shared by Mrs. Irwin, 30-year-old mother of four. The Glendale (Calif.) college graduate, petite and comely, is a veteran of three Olympics. In high platform diving, she finished sixth in 1948 at London, third in '52 at Helsinki and second in '56 at Melbourne.

The oldest woman competing for the United States in the Pan-Am games is Mrs. Lila Shanley, a Los Angeles stunt actress, married, who is a member of the volleyball team. One Pan-Am official said, "She's 40—again."

One of the youngest, Christina Von Saltzz, a 15-year-old blond with a well-scrubbed look, showed yesterday at the Portage Park pool the speed, skill and stamina which might enable her to compete with Australia's Dawn Fraser in the Olympics next summer at Rome.

In a 200-meter free-style trial, the San Francisco Kid clipped 12.1 seconds off the Pan-Am record set by Argentina's Ana Maria Schultz in 1951. Christina was about 10 meters ahead of her closest rival, 30 ahead of the last one.

Even Rube Lutzke couldn't have been more embarrassed than the young El Salvador swimmer who finished so far behind Christina, the American mermaid.

Koufax Fans 18 to Beat Dean's Mark and Tie Feller's

Dodgers Cut Lead Of Giants To Game

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 1 (UPI) —It took Sandy Koufax a long time to develop, but now that he has, it may be just in time to put the Los Angeles Dodgers in the World Series.

A 23-year-old lefthander from Brooklyn who got a $25,000 bonus in 1955, Koufax Monday night pitched his way into the record book and the Dodgers to within one game of first place in the National League with a spectacular 5-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

A crowd of 82,794 at Los Angeles, including 60,194 paid, saw the 210-pound southpaw strike out 18 batters to equal the major league mark set by Bob Feller Oct. 2, 1938, and break the National League record of 17 held by Dizzy Dean since 1933. Since he struck out 13 batters in his previous start a week ago, Koufax also set a major league record of 31 strikeouts in two consecutive games.

Moon's Homer Wins Game.

Koufax's great effort appeared doomed to end in defeat—even as Feller's 18-strikeout effort did in 1938—until the last of the ninth when Wally Moon's three-run homer off Al Worthington gave the Dodgers their eleventh victory in 19 meetings with the Giants this season. The Dodgers had tied the score in the eighth with the help of two wild pitches by Jack Sanford.

Koufax, passed over by the Giants five years ago after a wild performance in a workout, led off the game-winning rally with a single. This was double irony for the Giants for Koufax has been one of the weakest hitters in the major leagues since joining the Dodgers in 1955.

Jim Gilliam followed Koufax's inning-opening single with another single and San Francisco Manager Bill Rigney immediately replaced Sanford with Worthington. Moon, the first batter Worthington faced, then connected for the game-winning blast.

The Giants got their first run in the first inning on doubles by Willie Mays and Orlando Cepeda and their second in the fifth on Willie McCovey's eighth homer of the season.

150 S.O.s in 127 Innings.

Koufax, who has fanned 150 batters in 127 innings while fashioning an 8-4 record, struck out the side in order in the sixth and ninth innings and also sandwiched three strikeouts around McCovey's homer in the fifth. He yielded seven hits and walked two batters.

SANDY KOUFAX

Always possessed with a blazing fast ball, Koufax struck out 14 batters in a sensational early appearance as a Dodger starter in 1955 but has been basically a .500 pitcher during his career. He was 11-11 last season and his entire major league record including this season is 28-25.

The victory was the fourth in their last five games for the Dodgers while the loss was the Giants' fifth in six games. The Giants won the first game of the important three-game set with Los Angeles but the Dodgers bounced back to beat San Francisco in the last two games.

Pete Runnels's tenth-inning homer gave the Boston Red Sox a 4-3 victory over the Washington Senators in the only other major league game played Monday. Mike Fornieles picked up his fourth victory for Boston in relief of Bill Monbouquette. Jackie Jensen homered for the Red Sox in the fourth inning to lift his runs batted in total for the year to 95.

One Goal U.S. Didn't Score

H. C. DE ALMEIDA, goalie of the Brazil soccer eleven, leaps for a save in the match against the United States in the Pan-American Games yesterday. Also off the ground is ED MURPHY, U.S. center forward (partly hidden by goalie), who tallied three goals as the U.S. upset Brazil, 5-3.

United States Upsets Brazil, 5-to-3, in Pan-Am Soccer Play

By Dent McSkimming
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

CHICAGO, Sept. 1—Next to the price of coffee on the world market, Brazil's chief concern is the success of its soccer teams in international competition. Or, maybe, the price of coffee runs second to soccer. At any rate, the 5-3 victory of the United States over Brazil in the Pan-American tournament game here yesterday will be the chief topic of conversation in Rio de Janeiro today. Even world politics will be forgotten for the moment.

Nine years ago American soccer players, including five from St. Louis, gave the Brazilians similar material for excited discussion. That was when the U.S. defeated England in the world cup match at Belo Horizonte. That time, the Cariocans rejoiced in the surprise 1-0 triumph. Today, they will not only be astonished but they will be sadly disappointed.

Brazil's National team is the world champion in open play; its squad playing here for the Pan-American title would be ranked among the first three or four amateur teams in the world. That is, it would have been so ranked before yesterday's shock.

Three Goals for Murphy.

Comparatively few, only about 3000 persons, were fortunate enough to see this remarkable sports upset, at Hanson Park, All, even those who came to cheer the Latin-Americans, stood and applauded the Yanks as they walked off the field at the end of 90 minutes of furiously fast soccer. It was a notable triumph, one which thrusts the U.S. right back into the forefront of the title contenders. Argentina, which won from Haiti in the second game of the day, is the only undefeated team in the competition.

How was it accomplished? By the tremendous efforts of all the American players, even of those on the bench. Towering Ed Murphy, the U.S. center forward, established what may be a record for the American team in international play when he headed the ball into the Brazil net three times. One effort was more beautifully executed than the other. Murphy got the first, third and fourth U.S. scores; Al Zerhusen of Los Angeles, scored the second and the fifth, with his feet. His, too, were electrifying scores, both in their buildup and in the power and accuracy of the shots.

But, in previous tournament games the Brazilians had not only proved themselves solid defenders (allowing only two goals) but they had been devastating on attack, averaging four goals a game. What was the American formula for stopping that onslaught?

Ottoboni Stars in Goal.

Again, Goalie Vic Ottoboni of San Francisco, was the individual chiefly responsible. For, despite heroic work on the part of all United States defenders, the agile, artful Brazilian forwards did break through a sufficient number of times to score more than the six goals needed to win. But Vic was remarkably successful in divining the direction of their shots. His interceptions were both numerous and spectacular. The only shot that eluded him in the second half was made from a free kick, from a spot inches beyond the penalty line. Brazil's outside left shifted to the other side of the field to take that kick and he turned it into one of the memorable drives of the tournament. He is, himself, a remarkable player with a natural talent for theatrical situations. He has caught the fancy of the crowds more than any other player. His name is Jose Germano Desales.

Victory for the United States depended to a large extent on whether Right Fullback Herman Wecke could solve Desales' mystifying feint and dash to his left. Wecke did and the United States won.

St. Louisan Bill Looby hit the goal upright with a couple of his booming shots—but the Brazilians, too, had the bad luck to miss by the same four inches of wood. Forced to hurry their shots, the master ball handlers were far less accurate than they had been in their impressive victories over Costa Rica and Cuba . . . This was Brazil's third game in three days, a man-killing soccer pace . . . It was the third in four days for the United States . . . Val Pelizzaro, replacing injured Alex Ely, gave the United States team a needed lift in the second half.

Haiti, holding Argentina to a 1-0 score midway in the second half, defied the referee (Leo Goldstein of Brooklyn) and the official forefeited the game. He had awarded Argentina a penalty kick; Haiti players sat on the penalty spot until the game was called off. They were doing remarkably well against the Gauchos but evidently thought a second goal would ruin their chances of even a tie score. The Pan-American ruling body will take up the question of defiance today.

The United States rests today, opposes Cuba Wednesday.

Cardinals Play L.A. Tonight

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 1 — Larry Jackson, one of the few Cardinal pitchers able to beat the Dodgers consistently over the last decade, will try to slow the pennant-hopeful Los Angeles club in the series opener here tonight.

Jackson, who has an 11-5 career record against the Dodgers, will be opposed by Johnny (12-7) Podres, a lefthander who does well in the Coliseum. Podres will be trying to pitch the Dodgers to within a half game of the league-leading San Francisco Giants, who are idle today following a series in which Los Angeles won two out of three games and cut their lead to one game.

The Cardinals also play night games here tomorrow and Thursday. Then the Redbirds take Friday off before going to San Francisco for three straight day games, Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

All season the seventh-place Cardinals have been having trouble on the road and the Pacific Coast is no exception. The Birds have won just three out of eight in Los Angeles and two out of eight in San Francisco. Their over-all road record is 25 and 41. At Busch Stadium they're 36 and 31.

After winning just 13 and losing 18 for the worst August record in the league except for Philadelphia's, the Cardinals will have to win 11 of their last 21 games to match their 1958 finish of 72 and 82.

Joe Cunningham will resume his chase of Hank Aaron in the National League batting race. Jersey Joe, at 351, trails the Milwaukee slugger by 10 points.

The hitting duel couldn't get much closer than Cunningham's near-miss when he was playing with Rochester in the International League in 1956. Clyde Parris of Montreal won out with .3205 with Cunningham second at .3196. Thus, the difference was less than one percentage point.

Jackson Has A 72, Leads Golf Trials

State amateur champion Jimmy Jackson, of Greenbriar, took the early lead among golfers attempting to qualify for the United States amateur tournament by shooting a one-over-par 72 in the trials at Bellerive Country Club today.

The five lowest scorers for the day's 36 holes were to qualify for the national meet at Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 14-19.

Among the other low shooters for the first 18 holes were Hord Hardin of Bellerive, with a 74, and a group of players with 75s that included Jim Frisina Sr. of Springfield, Ill., Virgil Bernsen, Triple A, and Joe Switzer, Old Warson.

One of the top-ranked contenders, veteran Bob Cochran, did not start because of the recurrence of a back injury.

Schoendienst Returns To Active List Tonight

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 1 (AP)—Veteran Second Baseman Red Schoendienst puts on a Milwaukee Braves uniform today and returns to the active player list for the first time since the 1958 World Series.

"Red will be out there tonight and he'll be available for the game with the Philadelphia Phillies," General Manager John McHale said. "It's good to have him back."

Schoendienst was hospitalized last fall in St. Louis with tuberculosis and later underwent lung surgery.

A 36-year-old native of Germantown, Ill., he was as surprised as anyone when his physician gave him permission to rejoin the team.

"My doctor said I'm ready for anything," Schoendienst said when he heard the news last week. "I thought he was going to keep me away from Milwaukee until next year but my progress has been faster than a lot of us expected."

When the redhead entered the hospital, Manager Fred Haney made no secret of the fact he would be sorely missed. This season the second base job has shifted from one player to another, but none of them has matched Schoendienst. Haney has called on Chuck Cottier, Casey Wise, Johnny O'Brien, Joe Morgan, Mel Roach and Felix Mantilla.

Milwaukee's front office doesn't expect Schoendienst to step in tonight and cure the club's ills in the tight National League pennant drive. The Braves, now in third place, face the tough task of traveling at a fast clip if they are to repeat as champions.

All the Braves expect from Schoendienst is that his return might provide the spark the team needs to pull out of the doldrums as time runs out.

Cochran Second In Discus

By Bob Broeg
Post-Dispatch Sports Editor

CHICAGO, Sept. 1—The United States still is the home of the free, land of the brave—and of the fastest thing on two legs.

Traditionally Uncle Sam has come up with the finest shake-a-leg athletes in shorts, from the time one James Rector dashed 100 yards in an unofficial 9.4 seconds in 1908 through Charley Paddock . . . George Simpson . . . Frank Wykoff . . . Jesse Owens . . . Ralph Metcalfe . . . Mel Patton . . . Dave Sime . . . Bobby Morrow.

And now it's Ray Norton.

Norton, joining Mrs. Earlene Brown as the only athletes to win two gold medals in the incompleted Pan-American games, sprinted one of history's fastest 200-meter dashes last night.

The 22-year-old San Jose State College student was timed a 20.6 seconds, one-tenth faster than J. Rodney Richard's Pan-Am performance four years ago at Mexico City and matching the world record for a 200 run around a turn. The standard on a straightaway is 20 seconds flat, set by Duke's Sime at Sanger, Calif., in 1956.

16 of 18 Firsts for U.S.

The record by Norton, who won the 100 meters Sunday, was one of three set in four events last night at Soldier Field, where the United States has taken 16 of 18 firsts and established 12 of 13 new Pan-Am track and field marks.

Other records posted last night were by Mrs. Brown in the women's shot put and by Al Oerter in the discus. Mrs. Brown, the bulky Los Angeles housewife who hurled the discus to a Pan-Am peak Sunday, put the shot 48 feet two inches, a whopping seven-plus feet farther than the mark posted by Argentina's Ingebord Mello De Preiss in 1951.

Oerter, 23-year-old Kansas University alumnus, hurled the discus 190 feet eight and one-half inches, more than 16 feet better than Fortune Gordien's Pan-Am performance four years ago.

Although the 240-pound Jayhawk and 225-pound Mrs. Brown smashed Pan-American marks so impressively, they still were not close to Gordien's world record of 194-6 and the 54-11¾ International standard of Russia's Galina Zybina.

Except for a wind slightly in excess of the 4.473 mile-an-hour assistance, a fourth record would have been set. In the 110-meter hurdles, one of three events swept by the United States last night, Hayes Jones lunged forward to nip Lee Calhoun in 13.6 seconds. Jones, 21, Eastern Michigan University student, breasted the tape. Jones fell heavily headfirst in a nasty spill but he came up grinning.

Happy smiles were worn, too, by St. Louis's Wanda Wejzgrowicz and Missouri University's Dick Cochran of Brookfield, Mo. Neither won, but both broke Pan-Am records, taking third in the women's shot put and second in the men's discus.

Happy Wanda.

Miss Wejzgrowicz's 43-foot toss was three feet better than she'd ever done before, and the 25-year-old clerk-typist, a member of the Polish Falcons back home, was extremely happy.

"Now I hope I can look forward to the Olympics," she said.

Of the athletes disappointed in this private United States party, none probably was more downcast than Eddie Southern, the 400-meter flash who failed to place in the semifinals of his event. Summer military duty left the University of Texas NCAA and AAU champion rusty and out of tonight's finals.

Weatherbirds Beat Pirates No. 2 Team In Softball Meet

The Post-Dispatch Weatherbirds last night defeated the Pirates No. 2 team, 11 to 1, to continue in the winners' bracket in the A.S.A. softball tournament at Fox Playground.

The Bout-Nu women's team defeated Suncrest, the 1958 champion, for the city title, 4 to 1. The last two innings of a game interrupted last week by a power failure at Fairground Park were played.

In tonight's games, the once-defeated Cornet A.C. opposes T.S.M.C. at Manchester, Mo., in Class A at 8 and the Shaw team, also once-beaten, plays Seco at Ellisville at 7 in the Metropolitan tournament. Should Shaw win, the same teams would play again tomorrow night.

Tighe Bowls 665

Bernie Tighe, with games of 209, 222 and 234 for a 665 total, paced the Thurmers to a 2-1 victory over the Millers in the Cone Hermann Memorial Scratch League at DuBowl Lanes. Other results: DuBowls 3, Correntis 0; DeCluses 3, South Side 0; O'Dells 2, Woody Webbs 1. The O'Dells, 1058 and 2977, the high team scores.

Dick Boushka's Eight Points Help U.S. Win Third Game

By Robert Morrison
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

CHICAGO, Sept. 1—Basketball devotees had another reason today to ask whether this United States team in the Pan-American Games may be the best amateur team ever put together.

The collection of college and A.A.U. stars celebrated the break in Chicago's hot weather last night by running up and down the De Paul University court fast and skillfully enough to set a new Pan-Am scoring mark.

Smashing Cuba by a 114-46 count in the 40-minute game, the United States surged to its third straight victory and now has El Salvador, Mexico and Brazil still to play in the round robin event.

The coach, West Virginia's Fred Schaus, was content with the performance, particularly with the defensive play and rebounding which obtained the ball for the many fast breaks.

But he obviously was not ready to call his team the best ever.

"I will say that if you picked 10 boys off this team you could build a pretty nice pro franchise in a few years, adding another player or two as you went along," he told newsmen.

The measure of a great team, however, must take into account various conditions of play and for one thing the quality of competition here probably is not as great as that faced by United States Olympic teams of recent quadrennials.

Cuba Outmanned.

An outmanned Cuba team not only was dragging at the finish of the running game but it also didn't have the height to take the ball off the boards with any consistency.

Moreover, this was not the largest score run up in international games. The 1956 Olympic team for instance defeated the Philippines by a 121-53 tally.

The ex-St. Louis University star, Dick Boushka, was a member of that '56 Olympic team and is still going as a basketball internationalist in the present games. He scored eight points last night. And if you want to recall another amateur team of great power, you may remember the 1952 Olympic team which featured among others the present St. Louis Hawk star, Clyde Lovellette.

Now, as Coach Schaus indicated, this United States team still has a job to do in the Pan-American games despite its big win over Cuba.

16 for Big O.

Oscar Robertson, sometimes grabbed and harrassed by excitable Cuban players managed to get 16 points but high scoring honors went to rugged Dan Swartz, a 6-4 208-pound Kentuckian from Morehead, playing now with the Wichita Vickers. Swartz totaled 19 points.

After Mexico's upset of Brazil Sunday night, and Puerto Rico's 76-55 triumph over El Salvador in the doubleheader opener last night, the round robin standings now look like this:

United States 3-0, Mexico 2-0, Puerto Rico 2-1, Brazil 1-1, Canada 1-1, Cuba 0-3, El Salvador 0-3.

Latin tempers are beginning to flare. Police had to move between two El Salvador and Puerto Rico squad name-callers last night. But the show will go on with the United States resuming action tomorrow night against the Central American boys from El Salvador.

Althea Gibson In Pan-Am Tennis Final

CHICAGO, Sept. 1 (UPI)—Althea Gibson, returning to tennis after a year's absence, today put the United States a step closer to another gold medal for the U.S.A. team entrants in the third Pan-American Games.

Miss Gibson went into the final of the Pan-American women's singles by defeating Mimi Arnold, Redwood City, Calif., 6-1, 6-3. The California girl had scored the upset of the women's tourney with an earlier win over defending Champion Rosa Reyes of Mexico.

The tall New York girl chose the Pan-American to mark her resumption of tournament play after a year of working as an entertainer. She swept the major women's titles in 1958.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1 (AP) — Robert Bedard of Canada and Francisco Contreras of Mexico, scored stunning upsets yesterday in the quarterfinals of the tennis tournament of the Pan-American Games.

Bedard played tenaciously to knock out Mario Llamas, Mexico, rated number two, 6-2, 8-10, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Fifth-rated Contreras beat Myron Franks of Los Angeles, who had held the third spot, 7-5, 6-2, 7-5.

Luis Ayala of Chile, also moved into the semifinals by easily trouncing Venezuela's Iyo Pimental, 6-1, 6-1, 6-1. The other semifinalist is Jon Douglas, Santa Monica, Calif., who experienced some difficulty before rallying to beat Brazil's Ron Barnes, 4-6, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3.

In men's doubles, the day's highlight was the upset victory of Grant Golden of Evanston, Ill., and Franks over fourth-rated Luis Ayala and Ernesto Aguirre of Chile, 9-7, 6-2, 6-2.

The Palafox brothers, Antonio and Gustavo, from Mexico, tournament favorites in doubles, entered the semifinals by downing Reynaldo and Orlando Garrido of Cuba, 11-9, 6-3, 6-4.

Third-ranked Douglas and Mike Green of Los Angeles easily passed over Alfredo and Jose Ravelo of the Dominican Republic, 6-1, 6-1, 6-0.

Filling out the semifinal pairing will be second-rated Mario Llamas and Francisco Contreras from Mexico, who had some trouble with but outlasted Canada's Robert Bedard and Francois Godbout, 6-3, 11-9, 6-2.

Springfield in Final

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 1 (UPI) — Springfield, Ill., eliminated Miami, Fla., 6-5, last night on an unearned run to gain the final of the Pony Grads world series. Springfield, the only undefeated team in the tourney, meets Lufkin, Tex., tonight for the crown.

Johansson to Make His Screen Debut in Korean War Drama

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 1 (UPI)—World Heavyweight Champion Ingemar Johansson will make his screen debut in a Korean war drama that stars Alan Ladd, Sidney Poitier, Mort Sahl and James Darren.

Why is he taking time out from his boxing career for the movie?

"The pay appealed to me," the Swede said at his home in Goteborg. "The contract will be signed one of these days but is it already clear that I will go to Hollywood."

Columbia Pictures confirmed that it asked Johansson to appear in "All the Young Men" but said no contracts have been signed yet. Just how much pay Ingemar will get is not known now.

The movie, which concerns a detachment of United States Marines cut off behind enemy lines, is set to start shooting Oct. 5. Johansson, who plays a member of the United Nations forces assigned to the American fight group, said he would come here in about three weeks.

Braves Sign Outfielder.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 1 (UPI)—Leonard Pavlik, a 17-year-old outfielder from Wheeling, W. Va., has been signed by the Milwaukee Braves organization and assigned to their Eau Claire (Wis.) farm club in the Class C Northern League.

U.S. Wins 3 Bouts, Loses 2

By W. J. McGoogan
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

CHICAGO, Sept. 1—It didn't take long to dissipate the United States's hopes of sweeping the 10 championships in the third Pan-American boxing tournament.

In the first day's program of 24 bouts which started at 2:30 p.m. and ended at 11:30, two of the five United States entrants who went to the post were eliminated and teams such as Argentina, Brazil and Venezuela displayed surprising strength.

The three United States winners were impressive, however, one scoring a knockout and the other two technical knockouts, so the handlers of the team still think they'll at least win half of the titles.

Vincent Shomo, New York, a light welterweight boxing at 139 pounds, was the hit of the opening program. He polished off Joaquin Cornejo of Chile in 2 minutes, 10 seconds of the first round with a left hook which was as good as that of a professional. Cornejo hit the floor so hard that he had to be assisted from the ring after the count and it was some time before he regained consciousness.

Shomo, winner of the senior National A.A.U. lightweight title for the last two years, is scheduled to oppose Jorge Sacotman of Brazil in his second match.

Another outstanding winner was Wilbert McClure, Toledo, O., a light middleweight at 156 pounds; he stopped Anibal Rodriguez of the Dominican Republic in 1:56 of the first round. He, as well as Shomo, is regarded as an almost certain champion.

The third United States victor was flyweight Heiji Shimabakura, a native of Honolulu, who got off the floor to stop Juan Ramon Arroyo of Puerto Rico in 43 seconds of the second round.

There were quick endings in two other fights.

Dean Harrison, United States welterweight, lost to Enrique Tovar, Venezuela, in 1:46 of the first round. The referee stopped the contest and awarded Tovar the T.K.O. as Harrison covered his head with his hands and did little fighting.

In the other abbreviated bout, Jose Neves, Brazil, stopped Fabian Esquivel, Mexico, in one minute of the first round.

Lightweight Abel Ricardo Laudonio, Argentina, defeated Harry Campbell, United States, in a mild upset. Campbell suffered a cut eye and a bloody nose in a close scrap which went against him on a split decision.

Argentina, Brazil and Venezuela had four winners each; Dominican Republic, Chile and Uruguay two each; Puerto Rico, Nicaragua and Mexico one apiece.

Three judges and a referee officiated but only the judges could vote.

There were few complaints from the wildly cheering Central and South American supporters who rooted for their men in Spanish and Portuguese.

Seventeen bouts are on the program tonight. Preliminaries continue tomorrow afternoon and evening with the finals Thursday and Friday.

Remember? 5...15...25 Years Ago

1954—Pitcher Eddie Lopat and the Yankees squared their "must" series with first-place Cleveland, winning 4-1, but still trailed by 4½ games. . . . The league-leading Giants trimmed the Cardinals, 5-3, while third-place Milwaukee beat second-place Brooklyn, 2-0, on Gene Conley's two-hitter. That increased the New York lead to 3½ games. . . . Ted Kluszewski took the National League home run lead with 41.

1944—Luke Sewell's Browns saw their once-comfortable seven-game lead shrink to two over the Yankees who won a doubleheader while St. Louis lost to Detroit. The Tigers were just three games behind, and Boston 3½. . . . Frankie Frisch signed for his sixth season as Pittsburgh manager.

1934—L. G. Dana, Derrick City, Pa., won the championship of the Grand American Handicap trapshoot. Mrs. Lela Hall of East Lynne, Mo., was third. . . . The College All-Stars played a scoreless tie with the mighty Chicago Bears, professional champions.

Bears Open Football Practice

By Harold Tuthill

A wet September morn helped to create a better football atmosphere at Washington University where Lynn Hovland will put the Bears through their initial practice, starting at 6:30 p.m.

Hovland, successor to Carl Snavely after having served for 10 years as line coach, will be greeted by a squad of 53 as the sixty-fourth season of football gets under way on the Hilltop.

Because of the warm weather and the fact that many of the candidates have job commitments that will last through this week, the Bears will hold one-a-day drills in the evening until the squad begins morning and afternoon workouts next week.

Included in the group of 12 lettermen reporting to Hovland will be passer de luxe Morty Ebeling of Clayton, Bob Kovac of University City, Dave Mars of John Burroughs and Ed Stein of Soldan, all veteran backs. Stein has been a mainstay for three years.

The fifth backfield letterman is Chuck Scherertz who gained 123 yards passing and running as a freshman last season. Chuck Mooney, injured last season, probably will be the regular Bruin quarterback this fall.

Wins at Westwood

Mrs. Richard Dalton defeated Mrs. Sidney Katz, 2 and 1, for championship flight honors in the Westwood Country Club's women's golf tournament. Mrs. Zola Carp defeated Mrs. Bonnie Cassett, 1 up in 19 holes for Class A honors and Mrs. Fred Sale Jr. defeated Mrs. Stanley Richman, 3 and 2, for Class B honors.

Betsy Rawls's 282 Wins in Waterloo Golf

WATERLOO, Iowa, Sept. 1 (AP)—Betsy Rawls of Spartanburg, S.C., fired a 73 yesterday to win the 72-hole Waterloo women's open with a total of 282 at Sunnyside Country Club.

Miss Rawls held a four-stroke lead over Fay Crocker of Montivedio, Uraguary, going into the final 18 holes. Miss Crocker carded 71, but was two strokes shy with 284.

Miss Rawls said the turning point of the match came on the 5-par 460-yard ninth. Miss Crocker had cut the lead to two strokes. Miss Rawls chipped within four feet of the pin and sank her putt for an eagle three.

Miss Rawls carded three bogies, one eagle, and no birdies in the final tour. Miss Crocker's 284 was three strokes better than she shot last year to win the match.

Miss Rawls' winnings for the year went up to $22,477.69 when she added a purse of $1247. It was her ninth tournament win of the season and established a new record in the Ladies Professional Association.

Jimmy Foxx Faints, Sent to Hospital For Observation

GALESBURG, Ill., Sept. 1 (AP)—Jimmie Foxx, one of the American League's finest infielders before he retired, fainted in a physician's office yesterday and was confined to a hospital for observation.

Foxx, 51, is a member of Baseball's Hall of Fame. Four months ago he became head of a restaurant here which was to have its formal opening Thursday night.

Foxx's physician, Dr. Howard Graham, said:

"I don't believe there is anything organically wrong with Jimmie. But he is suffering from high blood pressure and great fatigue from work on the restaurant. He'll probably be in the hospital two or three days."

U.S. Davis Cup Captain Not Dismayed by Loss to Australia

Fraser Beats MacKay In Deciding Match

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Sept. 1 (UPI)—Neale Fraser of Australia, who won the Davis Cup for his country with an easy conquest of big Barry MacKay, emerged today as the favorite for the National singles tennis championships which start Friday.

Fraser needed only two sets yesterday to take the cup back to Australia, adding them to the set he had won Sunday evening for an 8-6, 3-6, 6-2, 6-4 victory over MacKay. It gave the Aussies the deciding point in a 3-2 triumph over the United States.

"This will be known as 'Fraser's Davis Cup'," said the nonplaying Aussie captain, Harry Hopman. "He won both his singles and shared in the doubles. You can't do any better."

Fraser, at 25 a veteran of seven years of international tennis, slowed his service somewhat from his Sunday pace and gained in accuracy. MacKay, a six-foot, three-inch, 185-pounder, relied as usual on his power game and his big serve failed him.

The Dayton (O.) slugger was broken twice in yesterday's first set, as he contributed three double faults in the first break and two in the other. He was broken again in the tenth game of the last set, and again hurt himself with a doublefault.

"Fraser played as never before," said Hopman. "But I still would not say he is now the world's best. Alex Olmedo, playing as he did at Wimbledon, must be considered. I would say they are 50-50. The Nationals should show which is the better man.

"It will be a real world championship. MacKay certainly must be rated high, and our Roy Emerson is very eager, too. He thinks he can be a singles winner. And Rod Laver may came into his own a year early."

Most of the experts who watched the cup play felt that Fraser should be a clear favorite for the Nationals. Olmedo was unimpressive and far off his Wimbledon form.

Alex lost to Fraser last Friday and then beat Laver Sunday. Mackay also beat Laver, but Fraser and Emerson beat Olmedo and St. Louis's Earl Buchholz in doubles.

U.S. Cup captain Perry Jones, who announced he is giving up the post, looked to the future.

"We have the best eight young players in the world," he said. "If we handle them right we can win that cup back and keep it. But we must always plan a year, or five years, ahead. The future of U.S. tennis has not been so bright since the days of Jack Kramer and Ted Schroeder."

In reviewing the two sets played yesterday, Jones said that "had Barry been able to play the whole match Sunday he would have won—he was really keyed up."

"But the Australians were just too good and they beat us and that's all you can say," Jones added.

Cup That Cheers Goes Down Under

Missouri Hunters Open Dove Season

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Sept. 1 (AP) — Missouri's mourning dove season opened a half hour before sunrise this morning with a good crop of birds reported.

The 1959 season is divided into two parts, the later one to give quail hunters a chance at any hardy dove that hasn't flown south for the winter.

The first installment runs through Oct. 10 and the second from Nov. 10 through Nov. 19. Daily limit is 10 birds and possession limit after the first day is 20.

The season on rails and gallinules also opened and runs through Oct. 20. The daily and possession limits on all species are the same, 15 and 15.

No. 6 for Ship Ahoy.

WESTBURY, N.Y., Sept. 1 (UPI) — Ship Ahoy gained his sixth victory of the season at Roosevelt Raceway last night, winning by one and one-half lengths over Direct Lad in 2:04. Major Prim was third in this featured Waldorf Purse.

NOTICE to Cigar Smokers

The vast majority of popular priced (5c to 2/25c) cigars are now being made with the new manufactured sheet binder. Most cigars costing 15c or more are still made with natural leaf binder.
The King Edward brand has both.
The IMPERIAL (6c) is made with the very mild, smooth burning Perfection binder and is our largest seller. It is an excellent cigar in every respect and we are proud to recommend it.
The INVINCIBLE DELUXE (2/15c) is one of the few popular priced cigars still made with all natural leaf tobaccos. Here you have the rich aroma and taste of the properly cured and aged tobaccos that made King Edward the largest selling cigar in the world. The size is larger than average and the end should not come apart while smoking. It is, in our opinion, the finest quality cigar value on the market.

$9425 in Earnings For Lewis

By Herman Wecke

Although he has started only five horses in the first 27 nights of the Fairmount race meet, Walton Lewis tops the owners in earnings with $9425.

Pete Maxwell, who has sent 11 horses to the post, is next with $8875, while the string of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Triplett has winnings of $8650.

There are no handicap performers in the Lewis string, but they have won 12 times in races with purses of $1000 and $1100. The nine-year-old Mucho Frio is the top winner with four firsts and a second good for $3325. Striking Hour, Starlon, Page Lady and Mr. Hendricks have each accounted for two victories. Striking Hour has finished third twice and Starlon once.

Top performer for Maxwell is the four-year-old Iretoile with two wins and a third for $1600. Blue Waif has earned $1300 and Billy's Lark, $1275.

Rare Vintage, the six-year-old with victories in two $2500 handicaps, tops the Triplett stable with earnings of $3350. Industrious has $2050.

Viera Leads Jockeys.

Hector Viera, who paces the jockeys with 24 victories, will have a chance to increase his lead, since his three closest rivals, Wayne Stevens, Guy Smithson and Carl Woodley, are sitting out 10-day suspensions. Stevens and Smithson have each made 21 trips into the winner's circle and Woodley, 19. Hector Sanabria, who has 13 wins, is out with a broken nose. He is scheduled to leave the hospital today.

Ray Landing has 16 wins, while George Steineman jumped into the jockey race last Saturday, when he piloted four winners to give him 15. Harold Featherston has 14 triumphs and John Hanley, 13.

Collinsville's Fred Roenigke still paces the trainers. He has saddled 14 winners. Lewis has 12 and Pete Maxwell nine.

Last Saturday's eight-race program, the first of the meet, drew $291,722 at the mutuel windows, bringing the total to $6,530,961. The top handle was on the final race, a one-mile and one-eighth affair, when $41,580 passed through the windows.

If Ray Camp rides on the Labor day afternoon program, he will be starting his 23rd year as a rider.

Houston Captures Non-Pro Crown

WICHITA, Kan., Sept. 1 (AP) — Houston went undefeated through the National non-pro baseball tournament and won the championship last night with a 4-3 victory over Elgin, Ill., in 10 innings.

It was Houston's seventh victory. Elgin took second place with a 6-2 record.

Houston scored three runs in the first inning but Elgin tied it in the eighth.

Doug Osborn's double in the tenth won the game. It was his fourth hit of the night.

Pat Centilli pitched the last two innings in relief and was credited with the victory.

Phoenix Legion Victor.

BEND, Ore., Sept. 1 (UPI)—Phoenix, Ariz., scored seven runs in the fifth inning to post a 10-4 come-from-behind win over Roseburg, Ore., here last night in the semifinal round of the Western Sectional American Legion junior baseball tournament.

Kutis North Meets Scullins in Playoff

Kutis North and Scullin, two of the three undefeated teams in the Muny baseball playoffs, meet at 8:15 tonight at Carondelet Park diamond No. 1. Manager Al Mick of defending champion Kutis, plans to start lefthander Don Mumm, although he pitched in relief Sunday.

The winner of tonight's game will meet unbeaten Hoffmeister Sunday. Tonight's loser will play the winner of the Red Villas-Union Printers game scheduled at Heine Meine Field tomorrow night.

Also slated tomorrow night are the Brooklyn Robins and Carondelet Sunday Morning Club at Fairground Park. The winner of that one will meet the Kimacks Sunday.

Turley Injured, May Be Lost for Season

BALTIMORE, Sept. 1 (UPI)—Bob Turley, one of the New York Yankees' biggest disappointments of the season, may be lost to the out-going world champions for the remainder of the year with a chipped little finger on his right hand.

Turley, who has won only eight games this season compared to 21 in 1958, suffered the injury last Saturday when struck on the finger tips by a throw from catcher Yogi Berra. X-rays yesterday disclosed the chipped bone.

Gipson and Mittler Win Archery Events

Virgil Gipson and Jim Mittler won the senior men's titles in the Sherwood Archers' invitational tournament at Valley Park. In the women's division the winners were Joan Curran and Mary Markham.

A field of 165 entered.

Buchholz Seeded 7th In Singles

NEW YORK, Sept. 1 (UPI)—Alex Olmedo and Maria Bueno of Brazil, the Wimbledon tennis champions, today were top-seeded for the United States national singles championships beginning Friday at Forest Hills, N.Y.

Neale Fraser of Australia, was seeded second in the 128-player men's division although he whipped Olmedo in the Davis Cup challenge round last Friday and starred while his country regained the cup.

Rod Laver of the Austrialian Cup squad, finalist against Olmedo at Wimbledon, was ranked fourth. Barry MacKay, Davis Cupper from Dayton, O., who lost to Fraser in Monday's final cup match, was placed third.

Ramanathan Krishnan of India, was seeded fifth, Luis Ayala of Chile sixth, Earl Buchholz of St. Louis seventh and Roy Emerson of Australia, eighth.

The United States also was rated behind foreign stars in the 64-player women's division. Sandra Reynolds of South Africa, was seeded second and Christine Truman of England, third behind Miss Bueno.

Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif., was ranked most likely to succeed among the United States entrants. She was seeded fourth.

Angela Mortimer of Britain, winner of last week's Essex women's title at Manchester, Mass., was seeded fifth. Ann Haydon of Britain, was seeded sixth, Renee Schuurman of South Africa, seventh and Sally Moore of Bakersfield, Calif., eighth.

First Fan Waits At Comiskey Park For World Series

CHICAGO, Sept. 1 (UPI)—The self-proclaimed "No. 1 World Series Fan" led a one-man line today at the bleachers ticket window at Cominsky Park, home of the Chicago White Sox.

Ralph J. Belcore said "I'll stay for two weeks if I have to" to become the first person to buy a bleacher ticket for the 1959 world series.

But what if the American League-leading Sox pull a September stumble and blow the pennant? he was asked.

One Top Italian Wrestler Killed, 4 Others Injured

IMOLA, Italy, Sept. 1 (UPI)—An automobile carrying five of Italy's leading wrestlers crashed into a tree early today. Giuseppe Tassina, 20-year-old Italian welterweight champion, died in a hospital of injuries. The four others were seriously injured.

The five wrestlers, all from nearby Faenza, were on their way home from Imola when the accident occurred.

Kono Sets Record

CHICAGO, Sept. 1 (AP)—Tommy Kono of Honolulu lifted 898¼ pounds yesterday to crack three games records and win the middleweight class of the Pan-American competition. His triumph gave Uncle Sam another gold medal.

Kono, the 29-year-old strongman, smashed records in the press, jerk and total in his specialty. He pressed 281, jerked 352¾ and snatched 264½.

The former records were 264½ in the press, 347.2 jerk, and 892.2 total pounds set by Peter George of the U.S.A. in the 1955 games at Mexico City.

Outfielder Taylor Recalled by Braves

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 1 (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves yesterday recalled bonus player Bob (Hawk) Taylor from Atlanta to take up some of the slack caused by recent injuries to regular Outfielders Wes Covington and Billy Bruton.

The husky 20-year-old Taylor, signed originally as a catcher, has been playing the outfield for Atlanta, batting .296 in 95 games in the Class AA Southern Association. He is expected to report to the Braves tonight.

St. Louis Softball Team in World Meet

OMAHA, Sept. 1 (AP)—The St. Louis Blues, only unbeaten team in the competition, won the Women's Regional Softball Tournament here Sunday night with a 4-0 victory over Kansas City Local 1841 Dons in the final game.

The victory sends the St. Louis squad to Stratford, Conn., for the world tournament next weekend.

In the final game, Lois Fowler shut out Kansas City on four hits. St. Louis scored all four runs in the fourth inning.

NBA Will Try to End 'Freezes'

TORONTO, Sept. 1 (UPI)—The National Boxing Association intends to tighten up the ring-ropes under its jurisdiction, according to Commissioner Abe J. Greene of Paterson, N.J.

Greene announced a multi-fold program during a speech at the N.B.A.'s fortieth annual convention which opened yesterday.

Greene said the N.B.A. intends to control each fight division to the point where it is impossible to freeze a title. He said this was to prevent a repetition of the Sugar Ray Robinson middleweight fiasco, whereby Robinson is only recognized as champion in Massachusetts and New York State.

The N.B.A. recognizes Gene Fullmer, who whipped Carmen Basilio for the title last Friday.

Greene revealed that both fighters posted $5000 bonds with the N.B.A. insuring that the winner would defend his title within 90 days against either Robinson, Spider Webbb, Joey Giardello or Ace Armstrong.

"This will stimulate interest and prevent any champion from putting his title in deep freeze," Greene said.

He also expressed concern over the invasion of gangsters into the promotional end of boxing.

"Investigations now underway in New York and California have left us most perturbed," he said. "In California, it's already been proven by a federal grand jury that this has led to cutting boxers up into pieces."

Greene explained: "Their favorite deal is to get together before a fight and the winner grants the loser—whoever they may be — a piece of himself through one of these gangster backers.

"There's little doubt that with this kind of hi-jinks going on, a fix is not impossible," he said.

Selvy, George Sign With Knickerbockers

NEW YORK, Sept. 1 (UPI)—Frank Selvy and Jack George, obtained by the New York Knickerbockers in deals with other National Basketball Association clubs last year, today signed for the 1959-60 campaign.

Selvy, former national collegiate scoring champion at Furman, came to the Knickerbockers from the St. Louis Hawks last October in exchange for New York's No. 2 choice in the 1959 N.B.A. draft. He appeared in 68 games for the Knicks and scored 667 points. The Knicks traded Guy Sparrow to the Philadelphia Warriors last January for George.

Record $125,238 Hambletonian Purse

$73,654 To Victor In Stake

By Harold Flachsbart
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

DU QUOIN, Ill., Sept. 1—The luck of the draw could make a lot of difference in the first heat of tomorrow's Hambletonian at the Du Quoin State Fair, veteran observers of the harness world agreed.

Diller Hanover, the favorite, who has earned $132,000 in 1959, has drawn the No. 2 post position, but frequently is not a front runner. Circo, the only entry of driver-trainer Billy Haughton, has a good spot in the No. 8 post position and usually shows early speed.

There are two tiers, with 10 trotters in the first line and five in the second. The entry of 15 means a gross purse of $125,283.98, largest in harness racing history. The winner will receive $73,654.98.

Ralph Baldwin, contract driver for the Two Gaits Farm of Indianapolis, will pilot Tie Silk instead of Diller Hanover, the horse he has been training all summer. Tie Silk has drawn the No. 14 position.

Ervin to Drive Favorite.

Frank Ervin, 55-year-old Illinoisan who now is listed out of Sedalia, Mo., will handle Diller Hanover. At Sedalia last week, Diller won two of three heats in the Matron Stakes, with Ervin in the sulky.

Baldwin, the Canadian reinsman, believes the Hambletonian should be a hot race in which the two colts he's trained—Tie Silk and Diller Hanover — will get most contention from Circo, John A. Hanover, Lady Belvedere and Lord Chutney.

Lady Belvedere will be handled by Del Miller, who won the 1950 Hambletonian with Lusty Song. They say John A. Hanover, a nose behind Tie Silk and Diller in that 2:00 2-5 mile at Sedalia, has lots of speed if he "stays flat." The colt has a tendency to rare up and break stride.

Hickory Smoke Out.

Hickory Smoke, winner of seven straight heats earlier this season and expected to be part of Haughton's entry, was withdrawn because of a slight split in the wall of one foot. . . . In workouts yesterday both Circo and Hickory Pride were clocked in 2:15 3-5.

A surprise entry was Algiers Eblis. His owner, Walter Paisley of Western Springs, Ill., will be the youngest driver in 34-year-old Hambletonian history. . . . Rodney Pick, owner by the sponsoring Hayes brothers, Gene and Don, drew No. 15 post position.

The previous record for a Hambletonian purse was $117,117.98 in 1953 and the richest harness race was the Empire Pace at Yonkers, with a gross of $123,713.

Driven by Del Miller, Countess' times were 2:01 3-5 in the first heat and 2:03 in the second. She is owned by Hught Grant of Bradford, Pa., and J. E. Armstrong of Brampton, Can.

Tommy Graham of Salem, Ill., won two events for the Herman Graham Stock Farm of Salem, driving Count Trot to a straight heat victory in the Illinois Breeders 2-year-old trot and repeating with Royal Ronald in the Breeders 3-year-old pace.

Detroit Evens Series

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Sept. 1 (UPI)—Detroit pulled even in its series for the National Sectional C American Legion tourney title last night, defeating the Wisconsin Club, 20-8. West Allis, which won Sunday, 7-3, was unable to stop the barrage of 22 hits by Detroit batters, including six doubles, a triple and a home run.

In the back row are EDDIE ALDRICH, DESMOND BOCKE, SONNY JONES, HASKELL SULLIVAN, TIM SPEAR, GARY MILLER, JERRY LITTLE, JERRY SHERRY, RONNIE BLOEMER, BILL RYAN SR., and SAM VINSON.

Coach Says McKinley Squad Will Be Faster Than in '58

A race between a well-balanced group of football teams is forecast for the St. Louis Public High League the coming season by Julius Blanke, coach of defending champion McKinley.

The Gold Bugs won all eight of their conference games last season but lost a lot of strength as a result of graduations. Such stars as End John Reinhold and Quarterback Joe Minton have departed. In addition, three letter-winners have not returned to practice as expected.

"We will be a little smaller, but a little faster this year," Blanke said. He and assistant coaches LeRoy Gore and Joe Mittino are getting the team ready for their Sept. 11 opener against C.B.C.

Heading the returnees are three starters from the team that met DuBourg in last year's Accident Benefit game, backs Ed Harrod and Jerry Germain and lineman John Rappe. Rappe starred on the first team as a freshman. Others who saw considerable action and are returning, Blanke said, are Harman Duncan, Spiro Athanas and Willie Hampton, backs, and lineman Orlando Rannenberg.

As a result, Blanke's biggest need is to replace linemen.

Spencer, Ex-Giant, Has Pitched in 74 Games at Charleston

CHARLESTON, W.Va., Sept. 1 (UPI)—One of the busiest pitchers in baseball is George Spencer of Charleston's American Association team. The one-time New York Giant relief pitcher has hopes of getting back into the big time with his rubber arm.

Spencer, now 32, has appeared in 74 games for Charleston, compiling a 10-6 record and saving numerous other games. The 74 appearances placed him in a spot to reach the league record of 83 games set in 1947 by Steve Gerkin of Minneapolis.

"I would like to break the record, but if I do, I do, and if I don't, I don't; I don't worry about it," said Spencer. "I just go out there from night to night and hope for the best."

He has been a major help to the Charleston club this year and General Manager Hillman Lyons believes "he could help quite a few major league clubs, too."

So many appearances would tire most pitchers but Spencer claims it shouldn't bother a relief hurler.

"A relief pitcher shouldn't get tired because he doesn't pitch many innings in any one night," Spencer said. "At least it doesn't bother me."

Through Sunday, Spencer had pitched 138 innings and had a good earned run average of 2.91.

An 11-year veteran of organized baseball, Spencer had his most noteworthy year with the 1951 Giants. He had a 10-4 record when New York came from 13 games behind to overtake the Brooklyn Dodgers and win the National League pennant with a tremendous stretch drive.

He made two appearances in the World Series as the Giants lost to the Yankees.

But he thinks his best all around season in baseball, major or minor league, was last year with Charleston's pennant winning team. He compiled a 9-4 record.

"I hope to get a chance to play winter ball again this year," he said.

Missouri Mines Begins Grid Work

ROLLA, Mo., Sept. 1—Missouri Mines, coached again by the veteran Gale Bullman, an alumnus of Washington University, started its first week of practice yesterday.

Bullman counts on 18 lettermen to help him through a campaign which includes Lincoln University, Sept. 19, Washington U., Sept. 26 and Kansas State (Pittsburg) Teachers, Oct. 3 before launching the Miners' conference schedule.

Chief of the returning veterans is Bill Wheeler, Harrison, Ark., tenth in the nation a year ago among small colleagues with a passing average of 10 yards. Normandy's Tom Cooper and Pat O'Mealy, Marshall, Mo., both halfbacks, figure to be the team's leading receivers.

U.S. Tied for Lead

CHICAGO, Sept. 1 (AP)—The unbeaten United States men's team yesterday moved into a three-way tie for first place in Pan-American volleyball by sweeping three games from Puerto Rico. The scores were 15-4, 15-9, 15-7.

The victory deadlocked the U.S.A. with Mexico and Brazil with 2-0 records. Canada also has won two matches but lost one in competition.

Chilean Girl Injured In Basketball Game

CHICAGO, Sept. 1 (AP)—The United States women's basketball team defeated Chile last night, 55-38, in a game marred by a facial injury to high-scoring Ismenia Puchard of Chile.

Puchard departed from the game with 5:22 left after she sustained cuts below both eyes. She was carried from the floor and taken to a nearby hospital where early observations indicated injuries were not critical.

She and several opposing players were scrambling on the floor for the ball when she was hurt.

Carla Lowry, Waytland College (Plainview, Tex.) student from Forest, Miss, gave the United States a quick 21-7 lead when she hit eight points just before the 10-minute mark.

Joan Crawford, the United States high scorer in the tournament, hit five points just before the buzzer to boost her team into a 37-16 halftime score.

Crawford topped United States scorers with 12 points, while Rita Horky added 11. Chile was led by Irene Velasquez with 14 and Pouchard with 13.

Buchholz, McKinley To Play Aussies Here

Neale Fraser and Roy Emerson, Australians who won the Davis Cup doubles championship Saturday, will oppose St. Louisans Earl Buchholz Jr. and Chuck McKinley in a tennis exhibition at the Washington U. field house at 8 p.m. Sept. 16. Buchholz played on the United States Davis Cup doubles team, and McKinley was a member of the Cup squad.

YMHA Atoms Team Wins Softball Meet

The Atoms softball team of the Y.M.H.A. had a successful trip to Louisville over the weekend, winning the Jewish Welfare Board Midwest tournament.

The Atoms defeated Youngstown, O., 15-12; Pittsburgh, 11-10 and Cincinnati, 7-6. Wes Bokal hit a three-run homer in the title game.

FANFARE—By Walt Ditzen

GERMANY TO BE POLAND'S FRIEND, ADENAUER SAYS

© New York Times News Service

BONN, Germany, Sept. 1 — Chancellor Adenauer said in an address to the nation last night that "the new Germany would some day be a good neighbor of Poland." His address was broadcast on the eve of the twentieth anniversary of Hitler Germany's attack on Poland and the outbreak of World War II.

The speech, which was primarily devoted to the question of improving relations between Poland and West Germany, was regarded as a deliberate gesture of friendship.

"For more than a century this likeable people (the Polish nation) without being in any way guilty, has suffered from the political and armed disputes in Europe," the chancellor said.

"It will be our aim to lay the foundation for an understanding, for respect and liking between the Germany of today and the Polish people, so that on this ground a true friendship may grow," Adenauer said.

Divided Three Times.

He recalled that Poland was divided three times and that, 20 years ago, it became the first victim of World War II when "Hitler Germany and the Soviet Union invaded the country and cruelly destroyed it."

"The triumphal reception given by the German people a few days ago to the victorious army leader against Hitler Germany proves more strikingly than words how deep was the change of opinion among the German people on national socialism, its doctrine and its deeds," he said.

"It is therefore that I say from deep conviction that this Germany, the new Germany, will some day be a good neighbor of Poland."

"It was the beginning of the descent into the abyss," said the Frankfurter Neue Presse in a special anniversary section.

Special Issues.

Newspapers all over West Germany produced similar special issues. Some recounted the events from Aug. 23, when the Nazi-Soviet pact was announced, to the assault on Poland nine days later. Others strove to recapture the mood of the moment. Some drew moral lessons from Hitler's decision to move from diplomacy and blackmail to force.

Gradually the subject matter changed: B-17 Flying Fortresses over German cities, the surrendered German Sixth army at Stalingrad, the face of a Buchenwald inmate.

BAR ROBBED OF $350, WHISKY AND REVOLVER

Carmelo Giuffrida, the owner of the tavern, said a watchdog which he keeps in the tavern overnight apparently did not frighten the thief. The revolver was valued at $30 and the liquor was worth about $350, Giuffrida said.

RAILWAY EXPRESS RATE INCREASE VOTED BY ICC

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP) — The Interstate Commerce Commission voted yesterday to allow the Railway Express Agency to put higher rates into effect today.

The rate increases vary from 25 to 35 cents per 100 pounds. They apply to less than carload shipments. The company said it hoped the higher rates would yield around $16,000,000 annually.

SAFE ROBBERS STEAL $650 AFTER BREAKING INTO CAFE

About $650 was taken from a safe by burglars who broke into the China Town Cafe, 1247 Walton avenue, Tommie Ho, the owner, reported to police yesterday.

Entry was gained by forcing bars on a rear window and then opening the window, police said. The door of the safe was broken open.

CODE PUNCH ADDRESSES ON LETTERS ENVISIONED

GROTON, Conn., Sept. 1 (AP) —The day soon may come when you will be able to address a letter with just a flick of the wrist.

This was the prospect envisioned yesterday by Assistant Postmaster General Edson O. Sessions as he looked into the future of mechanized postal systems.

It's possible, he said, that some day soon "the housewife may have a code book just like a telephone directory wherein she will look up the address, determine the code symbol, and perhaps with a small device . . . impress the code symbol on her letter instead of the hand-written address."

Sessions spoke at a luncheon meeting of the New England Associated Press News Executives Association.

party and George III and all that.

BUT COLONIALISM had a good side, too, and now we are changing the old empire into the new commonwealth. We have got a lot of problems ahead of us still in Africa and so forth, but we will solve them.

You have only to look round and see what is happening, India, Pakistan, Ceylon, Ghana, Nigeria soon, the West Indies.

It is the road on which we are traveling, and it is not a sign of weakness—it is a sign of strength. Do not let anyone in America think it is the sun setting on the British Empire—it is the dawn rising on the new commonwealth and it is all part of the same story.

Eisenhower: I agree. I think you have expressed that very splendid thought not only for your empire but for all of us.

I would like to point out that all of the political moves, all of the educational moves, must be supported by trade. We must have better trade because it is through trade that all of us are going to achieve better standards, and I know this is one subject that is dear to your heart, near to our heart, and I think it is one we should all think about very thoroughly.

Macmillan: Well, Mr. President, we both believe the same thing I think, that these problems in the world can only be solved by the expanding of the wealth and trade of the world.

Of course we are up against quite a lot of pressure. You are, and I am and . . . (inaudible) . . . always too easy to say on do. But I think we have done pretty well and it is a great satisfaction to us to feel the enormous increase of trade between Great Britain and the United States. You help us very much with heavy engineering. I wish you could do something with us on wool textiles, but perhaps you will be able to do that.

It is enormously increasing and it has got to be in Europe and with Europe and the new world and all the world trading together, and the old British pound sterling has not done too badly to help because it is in good shape now.

Eisenhower: Let me tell you this, we are concerned about it: We want to see it just as strong as you want to see it. I would like to point out that supporting this kind of thing is the necessity for broadening our contacts in the world, particularly, not only among ourselves, but particularly with the Iron Curtain countries.

I believe we have got to have better exchange of ideas, the products and the conclusions of scientific people. We have got to do more in books, above all, of people.

I LIKE TO BELIEVE that the people in the long run are going to do more to promote peace than are governments. Indeed, I think that people want peace so much that one of these days governments had better get out of their way and let them have it, and that is exactly the way we ought to think if we are going to think correctly.

In this thing it is those people that want these things, long for them with all their hearts, and we have got to make it possible for them to get it.

So the one big way we are going to do it is by broadening these contacts. It may be that the people coming back may be indoctrinated and we will not think they are too effective at first. But if we keep this thing up there are going to be a lot of people who are not indoctrinated, and we know we will not indoctrinate our people. We cannot.

So the exchanges will finally bring truth and understanding to all people that will expand these contacts and so become very much more understanding among ourselves, and understanding in the long run means peace.

Macmillan: I think we are agreed. We have been agreed and talked over these things for many years. We've got to be firm on the principles. We've got to maintain justice, but we have got to be flexible about the new conditions that arise and how to deal with the situation.

I believe, like you, that if we can keep the thing fairly steady over the generations, it may take some time, but gradually the people of the world will demand, because of their contacts and friendships, what the governments, we, are trying to give them. It will take time, we must be patient with them.

Eisenhower: I agree. In other words, you're saying that strategic principle is immutable, tactics change according to arms, weapons and the different changes.

Eisenhower: Quite right, correct, but let us remember one thing: When we say we're sustaining principles, once in a while something comes along that makes us state a principle, then see how this affects a particular problem.

NOW I REFER to western Berlin. We say freedom, if there is to be peace, it is indivisible. Freedom should be the possession of all men. We've got 2,000,000 free western Berliners. We simply are not going to abandon the principle.

But here it seems to me principle says you can't abandon 2,000,000 free people and still be true to the statement freedom is truly indivisible and the right of every man. In that case we have got to be firm.

Macmillan: I agree with that, and I agree with your other principle. We have got to use the right tactical methods to achieve our purpose with a reasonable amount of adjustment that is necessary from time to time.

Eisenhower: This is something that lies so close to my own heart that any trouble there is for me to come to any capital in Europe including Moscow, I'm perfectly glad to do it if it will advance something.

I will not be a party of a meeting that is going to depress and discourage people, therefore we must have some promise of fruitful results. Except for that single exception, there's nothing that they can't ask me to do that I won't try to do.

Macmillan: I know that and I think what you're doing now will bring us nearer to what we both want. Let us run over it, what we have said tonight. I think it is of some importance. Our own relations between our two countries are probably as close, closer than they've ever been. We've got NATO.

WE'VE GOT difficulties. There are difficulties, don't pretend they don't exist. People take different points of view. They wouldn't be free governments if they weren't.

We've got this problem of the underdeveloped countries which we must work on and we are ready to do our part. We've got a stronger economy at home. We're able to do more abroad. We've got these contacts.

The idea of developing movements between the countries which will make the background, and that will help the statesmen to do what the peoples really want and I think it sometimes is extraordinary.

I think about it and I expect you do; you and I are rather in a lonely position sometimes, and think what is it people want. Can we give it to them, and at the same time keep the principles we stand by? I call it peace and justice and those are the two words.

Eisenhower: One Frenchman gave a definition of freedom I like. He said "freedom and liberty are merely the opportunity for self discipline."

Now we know that there are certain things great nations can do if they are organized, honest, as one, and go ahead and do it. In the dictatorships this is all done by the order and by the police that make the order effective.

So there is a continuity of policy and a unity of effort that is quite remarkable sometimes in western eyes. But let us remember this: Our great strength is our dedication of freedom and if we are sufficiently dedicated we will discipline ourselves so that we make the sacrifices to do the thing that needs to be done.

And that is exactly what you and I, I think, are trying to teach ourselves, our friends, our own people, and we hope Mr. Khrushchev.

Macmillan: Well, Mr. President, I think our time is rather drawing to an end. We must not go on too long. We have got guests waiting. But I would like to say again how very glad—I know I speak on behalf of every single man, woman and child in this country, whatever party, creed or anything—how glad we are to have you with us.

As I said when I met you at the airport, it was meant, it is not only for what you represent, the great country you represent—of course it is for that, but it is because we have known you for all these years, we have always known you, 17 years ago when you took command of our great forces and carried them through to victory, and we welcome you here.

We have got your guests, and among our guests, I'm happy to say, we have Sir Winston Churchill.

Eisenhower: You embarrass me, and I am glad Sir Winston is going to be here. Do you mind me saying one word to your people? I want to thank everybody that has had a part in showing kindness and British hospitality to me and my party. And in doing so, to show also that respect for the principles in which both our countries are founded and established and maintained that we in our country so revere.

Finally, may I just say this one word: God save your gracious Queen and all her people.

Herter To Address U.N.

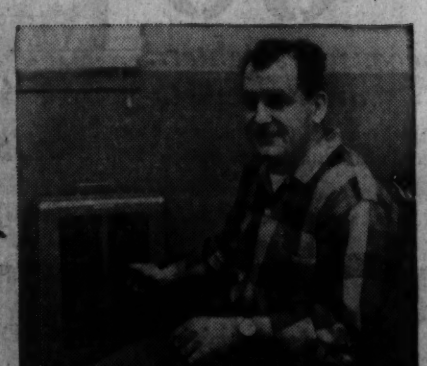
ELECTRIC HEATING

Clean and carefree . . . the most controllable kind of heat . . . at a price you can afford

IN HOMES: Mrs. H. M. Harned, Brentwood homemaker, says: "We've had our electric heat pump 4 years, and we haven't had to redecorate once. (There is no soot or grime in the house to collect on things.) Our house is always comfortable no matter how hot or cold it is outside . . . no matter how fast the weather changes."

IN RETAILING: Mr. E. L. Kirns, District Manager, Clark Oil & Refining Corp., says: "We are installing electric heating in all of our new stations. It's much safer and takes none of our floor space. And installation is less expensive than any other method—no pipelines or storage tanks are needed."



IN WAREHOUSES: Mr. K. W. Novak, Mississippi Valley Barge Lines, says: "Our office rests on stilts over the warehouse floor to give us more storage space at dock level. Cold air off the river surrounds us, but the electric heating keeps us warm in here. It's a good deal safer, too. . . helped cut our insurance rate on freight handling."

BALD EAGLE NESTS IN NORTH

BAYFIELD, Wis., Sept. 1 (AP) —The bald eagle, symbol of America's fighting spirit, is becoming a rare bid throughout the continent, but can stll be seen among the Apostle Islands of Lake Superior.

Several of the islands have eagle nests, always located in the tops of high trees. The eagles are seen frequently by commercial fishermen, trollers and excursionists but it is difficult to get close enough to them to get a picture.

Fred C. Shapiro

The Story Behind A Little Fire Item

THEY WERE UNIMPORTANT STORIES; they were the overset. There was a story about a small fire; another about the appointment of a deputy commissioner of sewers, a third that announced the arrest of a drunken driver.

There was the story about the girl who won a scholarship to a university, and the one about the young man who won an indeterminate sentence for the burglary of a candy store.

These were the stories that didn't get in the paper. They are stories that have been reported, written, edited and set in type. Then they are thrown away. In the race for news, these are the also-rans.

Sometimes the stories killed in the overset seem better than the ones that made the paper. Take that one about the small fire for instance. It was my story.

It was a quiet summer evening. I was working in police headquarters from 4 o'clock till midnight. Nothing happened until 10:30 when somebody pulled a fire box. It didn't look like much of a fire. It was in a row house in the worst part of town, but it was close to headquarters and I felt like taking a ride.

There wasn't much outside damage to the house, just a burned-out interior. My experienced colleagues from the competition kissed it off and went back to work. I didn't have anything better to do, so I hung around.

The fire was out by that time, and the firemen were carrying smouldering rubble from the first floor of the house. Then the owner walked around the corner and came on down the street.

He was middle-aged and he walked with just a little bit of a lurch and there was a smile on his face—until he saw the firemen. He screamed. It was a high-pitched, woman's kind of a scream.

"What are you doing in my house," he yelled.

He tried to run into the building and almost knocked over the fire captain who was walking out. He swung at the captain. It was a wild swing, and a few of the firemen came over and grabbed him. They pinned his arms and they held him there.

"I just finished fixing it," he said. "I worked two years."

He stood quietly and his face contorted in spasms and tears stained his sports shirt. The firemen let him go and walked away. They didn't want to look at him.

"It was the nicest house I ever saw around here," he said. "It had paneling and it had fixtures. The wood was all hand-rubbed. There wasn't anything in there that cost much money, but he did everything a guy could do to make it beautiful."

In our town the engine driver is the man responsible for getting the basic information for the department reports. He questioned the man and I listened in to pick up what I needed. The man stood there, facing away from his house.

The engine driver said the chief thought the fire started from a short circuit in the basement wiring. Then the firemen got on their truck and went away. And all the neighbors who had come out to watch went back into their homes.

The man and I stood alone before the gaping hole of what had been his doorway. Behind him I could see the ashes and the rubble. He looked at me and wiped his eyes for the first time.

"I just finished," he said. "I wanted to get it fixed up. I thought if I had a nice place I'd be able to offer it to some woman. I wanted to get married. For two years I worked. Funny, tonight was my first night out."

He turned and he walked quietly into his house. I wanted to follow him to say something, but I didn't know then, and I don't know now, what I could have said.

I went back and I wrote the story. It wound up in overset. It wasn't important. . . .

Ann Landers

Uncommitted Boy Friend

DEAR ANN: I'm a sensible young lady, 18, and in nurse's training. I've been going steady with a fellow 22. Before he came along I dated many men. One day I realized I wasn't working toward a permanent relationship with anyone. Since this particular fellow seemed like the best of the lot I decided to concentrate on him.

ANN LANDERS

He sensed my special interest and immediately suggested I stop dating the others. He said I was the type of girl he had always wanted. Now I'm wondering—wanted—for what?

He treats me coldly when others are present. He almost belittles me, you might say. When I broach the subject of marriage, he skillfully changes the topic. He gets furious when I hint that I may date someone else. Yet he studiously avoids committing himself. What's the next step?—DANGLING.

Dear Dangling: You're only 18, Toots. What's the big hurry to beat a commitment out of anybody? In your attempt to tie up this fellow you've become pretty well tangled in the ropes. Has the calf killed the butcher? Unwind and enjoy the sweet flavor of freedom until you're mature enough to think about a permanent relationship.

DEAR ANN: What can we do about a headstrong daughter who is 21 and tells us she can do as she pleases? In November she comes into $7000 from her grandfather's estate. There are no strings on this money. She gets it all at once.

Mae quit high school at 16 to "go on the stage." That didn't pan out so she worked on a steamship as a stateroom maid and went all over the world. For six months we didn't even know where she was.

Last night she announced she'll marry as soon as she gets her money. We don't know the man but he's waiting for a divorce. She's making plans for an elaborate wedding which we can't afford. She says she'll pay for it out of her inheritance if we won't. What can we do?—DOROTHY.

Dear Dorothy: If you couldn't do anything with Mae when she was 16 why are you surprised you can't handle her at 21? Tell her precisely the kind of wedding you can afford and make it plain that beyond that, it's on her. Also explain that if she blows her inheritance she can expect no financial lift from you.

To learn how to keep your boy friend in line without losing him, send for Ann Landers's booklet, "Necking and Petting—And How Far To Go," inclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped

Who Listens to Housewives Now?

Old-Time Grocer Lent Sympathetic Ear That Supermarket Can't Match

The author, a free-lance writer, a former schoolteacher and for 20 years a resident of St. Louis, now lives near Salem, Mo.

By Lelia H. Atwell

COULD THE CUSTOMER get something he needed in the old-fashioned grocery that he can't find in the modern supermarket of today?

Supermarkets are wonderful, but is there one thing that they are failing to provide? Their fascinating array of row after row of boxes, aisle after aisle of shelves, pyramid after pyramid of temptation, has changed the buying habits of the nation. But is there a danger of a far reaching effect on the housewife—and her husband?

The neighborhood butcher, or owner-operator, held a unique place in the lives of his customers. The friendly man in the white apron who plodded around in the corner grocery store was a cross between a father-confessor, banker, family doctor, and "Dear Dorothy Dix." His customers came to depend upon him for many things besides their daily bread.

They came for that, too, of course, and they got it—with or without money. But they came also to talk, to borrow a five till pay-day, to tell of Willy's promotion, to bemoan the pain in their back.

In the old-fashioned grocery, the man behind the counter always took time to listen when his customers wanted to talk. He was pleased when they were happy, and he shook his head in sympathy when they had a tale of woe. Troubles from every household trickled into him and skeletons from every closet rattled in his ear. Over his counter had seeped enough secrets to disrupt the entire neighborhood had he been less discreet.

Why people, especially women, feel a compulsion to lean over a counter and make such revelations is hard to understand. But they do.

Is the customer now missing that "Listening Ear and Understanding Heart"? When the housewife quit leaning over the counter to confide in her butcher, did she wind up instead on the psychoanalyst's couch pouring out her thoughts to him? After deserting her old friend on the corner, is she now missing those former sessions with her friendly confidant behind the counter?

In the efficient but impersonal atmosphere of the supermarket, who has time to listen when she wants to talk? In the preoccupied flock of basket-pushers, who cares about Johnny's tonsils or Mary's first formal?

When the housewife quit leaning over the counter to confide in the butcher, did she wind up telling her troubles to a psychoanalyst?

The old fashioned grocer listened when they needed to talk, and they DID need to talk. There seem to be some things they just had to get off their chests.

One of the first things the man behind the counter had to learn was never to show shock, regardless of the revelation. This would be true in any locality, but was probably more so in the crowded section of the large city where we had a small grocery. It had once been clean and respectable, but now after nearly a century, the flats were shabby and faded and huddled in sagging rows, and the unfortunates who dwelt in their gloom had more than their share of troubles to pour in a kindly ear.

But confidences of this kind are not confined to just one type of neighborhood. Just ask any grocer still owning a little shop. Of course, he doesn't disclose any secrets, but he will grin and admit that he could tell you a lot. There is just something — maybe it's that white apron — that seems to impel some people to put an elbow down on the counter, and tell you all about it.

My husband has often declared that he should be able to pass a medical exam, what with all the diseases he has heard described, and the detailed symptoms related. He insists that he could write a book on "The Perils of Pregnancy." Some woman in the neighborhood was always giving him daily reports on her progress. He knew, if he remembered, what she couldn't eat, what she had a sudden yen for, how her legs were swelling and where her back hurt. And sometimes some of the more vivid details of her last confinement. If two ladies-in-waiting chanced to come in at once, the competition was something to hear. Each trying to top the other in harrowing experiences. (And in that neighborhood, experiences were hardly a scarce commodity.)

Then, of course, they had to tell how the teacher didn't understand Junior. We were told of coming weddings and of threatening divorces before any one else. We were informed the minute one of our customers, the mother of four children, ran off with the insurance man.

It was easy to understand why some of them just had to drop in for a chat. Take the little old lady with the very aged poodle on a leash. She was 74 years old and had lived upstairs in the same three rooms for 63 years. Sixty-three years of looking down on the streetcar tracks in front and stables in back. A spinster, at 74, she was still shuffling down the long outside stairs to haggle over the price of liver and to get in a little conversation. (Sixty-three years in the little dark rooms must have been a long time, but when circumstances forced her to move, she stuck her head in the oven—and turned on the gas.)

Men as well as women would stand and drink a soda and tell grocers things they wouldn't tell their own brother. And this was being done in thousands of small stores in any city. Not necessarily in the lower income group only. My uncle has a store in an altogether different environment, and it was from him that I first learned the art of "listening." He would give customers his undivided attention, bending his head toward them so as not to miss a word, subtly giving the impression that they—and their words—were of the utmost importance.

It was never overdone. It was just exactly right. And the customer left feeling happy that somebody cared enough to listen to what he thought and did. Whatever became of the need that once impelled the customer to lean one elbow on the counter and confide in the man behind it?

Has that basic need disappeared? Or is it just bottled up in the men and women inching wordlessly along in the slowly moving line of push carts at the modern supermarkets.

Day World War II Began as German Boy, Now an American, Remembers It

John Koehler was a 9-year-old German boy when Adolf Hitler launched World War II 20 years ago today. At 14, he fled west to escape drafting into the Volksturm, the German Army auxiliary. He met an American infantry unit, was its mascot during its advance through Germany. Then worked for various Army units. In 1953 he came to America, served 3½ years in the United States Army and became a citizen. Now an Associated Press writer, he recalls that day World War II began.

My best friend was on his way home from the baker with breakfast rolls when he saw the guns roll up on the railway bridge that spanned an important marshaling yard.

It was Sept. 1, 1939. The sun shone upon Dresden, capital of Saxony in eastern Germany. The school holidays were still on. Dieter and I ran to the bridge not far from my home. Soon other neighborhood boys joined us, as eager as we to find out what was happening.

"What do you think is coming on?" we asked each other. No one had an answer.

On the bridge we saw big, blue-cray Luftwaffe trucks loaded with ammunition. Two light anti-aircraft guns stood in the middle of the bridge. Tough looking sergeants were shouting orders to steel-helmeted soldiers. With rifles slung across their backs and gas masks at their sides, they were busily filling sandbags. Two soldiers scanned the sky with binoculars.

Officers in shiny black boots stood around a track truck. Suddenly there was a commotion. The officers were gesturing wildly and slapping each other on the back. A whistle sounded, and the soldiers gathered in a group.

"The radio just announced that the Wehrmacht has marched across the Polish border this morning and the Luftwaffe is bombing Polish territory," an officer told the group. "Now we will show those pigs what happens when they provoke us Germans. Heil Hitler!"

The soldiers cheered.

My mother was dressing my brothers when we came home. "The war is on," we yelled. She just stared at us and slowly shook her head.

Back at the bridge we waved at the soldiers on troop trains rolling eastward. Freight cars were decorated with flowers and the soldiers were singing marching songs.

We watched the trains until late afternoon. On the way home groups of people stood in front of their houses talking about the war. Air raid wardens hurried from house to house instructing citizens on the blackout.

"What do you think about the war?" I asked my father when we came home from work. "Isn't it great how far the Wehrmacht has already moved into Poland?"

I couldn't know it then but Sept. 1, 1939, started me on the road to becoming an American. My friend Dieter wasn't so lucky. He was killed Feb. 14, 1945, when thousands of bombers blasted Dresden.

They'll Do It Every Time

By Jimmy Hatlo

The Bridge Deck

By Florence Osborn

Many three no-trump contracts are defeated because declarer has only one stopper in the opponent's bid suit. This permits the defense to open their suit, knocking out declarer's lone stopper, and then get back in to run it before declarer can build up enough tricks for game.

♥A73
♦J852
♣K64

The bidding has gone:

South.	West.	North.	East.
1♣	Pass	1♦	1♥
2♠	Pass	?

North does not want to raise spades because although partner has shown a strong hand, he probably has only a four-card spade suit. North would like to try two no-trump, but this bid is dangerous. South is very likely to raise to three no-trump, although lacking a heart stopper of his own, and a heart opening lead may set the hand. What should North do?

Peter A. Loeb of New York tells us that he and his partner have had good success in this and similar situations by using cue bids in the opponent's suit, asking partner to bid the no-trump with a second stopper (ace, king or queen) in that suit.

Thus in bidding today's hand North made a cue bid in East's suit of three hearts. If South held the king or queen of hearts, he was expected to bid three no-trump. If he instead rebid three spades, North would raise to four spades.

♠97542 ♥862 ♦K6 ♣J95	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠A ♥KJ1098 ♦Q1073 ♣1083
	♠KQJ8 ♥Q4 ♦A94 ♣AQ72

The bidding:

South.	West.	North.	East.
1♣	Pass	1♦	1♥
2♠	Pass	3♥	Dble
3NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

As it happened, South held a second heart stopper—the guarded queen—and he bid three no-trump, making it with an overtrick. West opened the eight of hearts, small from dummy and East took the king and returned the jack to South's queen. Declarer knocked out the ace of spades and when the clubs later broke 3-3 he had 10 tricks; three spades, two hearts, one diamond and four clubs.

"This convention is most successful," writes Loeb, "when it prevents the bidding of an unmakeable three no-trump or permits the bidding of a makeable three no-trump. On this particular hand four spades is an inferior contract, since it can often be defeated even without the 5-1 trump split, while three no-trump can rarely be defeated. In any case, 10 tricks at no-trump are worth more than 10 at spades."

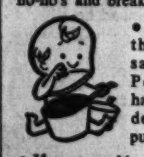
Bringing Up Baby.

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Toddlers are inquisitive and acquisitive by nature. They want to inspect and possess everything. (And your breakables are always the most desirable.) A few tips to spare your treasures and temper:

• If you remove treasures to safety zones, you'll eliminate a lot of no-no's and breakage woes.



• Let baby have things he can safely inspect. Pots and pans have lots of wonderful play and put-together value.

• If your grabber does latch on to a forbidden item, substitute something with play value before you take it away.

•

Savory delights for hungry sprites. Gerber Junior High Meat Dinners have 3 times as much meat as regular vegetable and meat combinations. That means big dividends in nourishment. Extra protein for growth! High vitamin-A value for good skin and normal vision. Iron to rosy-up cheeks! And all this natural meat and vegetable nourishment adds up to perfectly wonderful flavor.

•

Bang-up idea. Easy way to straight-snip a little girl's bangs: Dampen 'em with just enough water to flatten 'em. Comb and cut. P.S. Use a small envelope to catch cut-offs. Keep hair from falling in baby's eyes or on the floor.

•

Brand new toddler delight—with highly nutritious leanings—cookies with added protein. That's the sweet sum and substance of Gerber Cookies. They're crisp and delicious . . . provide twice as much protein as most other cookies because they're made with protein-rich soy flour and nonfat dry milk. In addition, they have important B-vitamins added to the icing. Yes, vitamins in the icing so they can't be lost in baking. M-mmm good, and so good for your youngsters—either as a snack or dessert. Borge to Show Us Copenhagen on TV

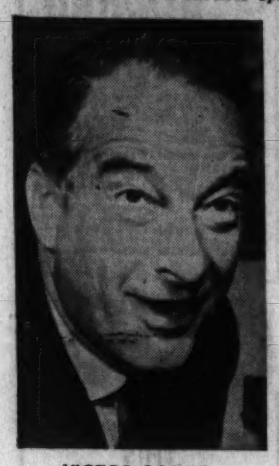
COPENHAGEN, Sept. 1.

THIS CITY is chiefly renowned for its smorgasbord, its twisted spires and Victor Borge—all deliciously comical in different ways. At the moment Borge is trying to get all these aspects into a one-hour spectacular which will be on NBC-TV Oct. 16.



VICTOR BORGE

"I'm trying to do something that has never been done before," said Borge jovially. "We call it 'Victor Borge's Copenhagen.' It's a story where I'm the story teller, the performer, the writer—everything."

"You can point at almost any building in the country and say Christian IV designed it and you're probably right," said Borge.

The camera pointed skyward, caught the great twisted spire designed by the architect-king in the shape of a dragon's tail and panned down the street. There Borge was discovered lumbering down the street in his beer truck. Suddenly he reined in the huge horses to let pass a little wooden wagon full of flaxen-haired nursery school children, pulled by four pretty nurses, a familiar sight on Copenhagen's streets. Smilingly Borge doffed his cap and the children merrily waved back and that was the end of that.

Borge will appear as a large proportion of the population of Denmark in this show and this is appropriate, since he is very representative of the Danes. They are a jovial, merry, laughing race all right. In any other country when the people point out the monuments, they tell you a bit of history attached to them. Here they point out the monuments and tell you a joke about them. There's a funny story connected with every historic edifice.

Borge's show will be full of very good jokes, which I have no intention of telling you, except to say that we ought to have a very good time. Some of the show will be live, some of it will be on film, some on tape, and it will be, Borge assures me, unique. "After all I couldn't just have a 10-minute travelogue—not for the money they're paying. I had to get myself into it." He turned serious for a moment. "I feel I have abilities which have never been fully taken advantage of. This is what I could never understand when I came to America. I went to Hollywood. They didn't want me." Borge has never quite got over his rejection in Hollywood. He'd been a big movie star in his own country. In ours he has been tied to a piano. In this spectacular he plans to get away from the piano for a little while, anyway.

Later we repaired to Borge's eighteenth century chateau about 20 miles outside Copenhagen. "The Danes call it a castle," said Borge, "because they don't have the word chateau in the language. Everyone expects a moat."

"I expected battlements," I said.

"I would rather have bathrooms than battlements," said Mrs. Borge.

It's a charming chateau, with a circular living room facing a great sweep of lawn bordered by lines of huge trees. "Usually there are 20 or 30 people wandering around here," said Borge. "I don't speak to them because I don't know who they are."

The place is a babel of tongues. For a while there was a French composer here who spoke only French and his wife brought her sister who spoke only Swedish. There was too much commotion so they went back to Paris.

"One day I walk through here and encounter a little Japanese guy. He says to me, 'I am your secretary. I speak nine languages.' He tells me this in Danish-Japanese. He charges $18 a day but I only pay him $6 a day because I only use three of his languages. Besides he has all those languages left over." Borge laughed merrily at his own joke.

Mrs. Borge, a dark-haired, sharp-tongued American girl, looked up from her needlework (she makes cocktail napkins, a local Danish vice) and said, "These people from America drive up and say we're from such and such town and we saw you when you played there and we thought we'd just drop in and perhaps have lunch." She sighed. "It's Victor's own fault. From the stage he tells everyone they must come visit him in Denmark and they do."

We got back to his show. "What is television?" said Borge. "To me television is anything you want to make it. Television makes anything possible and I think the possibilities have barely been touched. I'd like to take advantage of the medium. I'd like to do on television what can't be done anywhere else. Up to now almost everything could be done elsewhere on the stage or in films. But this show, I hope, is an example of something that could be done only on television."

Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

'This Is It, Old Woman'

"DEAR DR. MOLNER: I am 66 years old and two years ago I decided to stop smoking. I had been using more than a carton a week. I had just buried my husband who had cancer of the lung. He had used pipe, cigars and cigarettes. He was 75.

"I would fall asleep in the evenings while smoking, and watching TV. So many old people burn to death. So I said, 'This is it, old woman. You are not going to buy another pack.'

'I stopped, and it was not too bad. Now, two years later, I have not had even one, and I have no craving. I smoked for 30 years. I think it's very simple. Just don't buy them and you can't smoke.—MRS. J. B."

What do you mean by calling yourself an "old woman"? You're brisk and hard-hitting. And I thank you for bringing up the danger of falling asleep with a lighted cigarette.

NOTE TO F. B.: The best answer I can offer to you is this: It is relatively rare that the eyes have any effect on the sense of balance. The ears (oddly enough) have a great deal to do with it. Look at it this way: In total darkness, your eyes can't possibly be of any use. The matter of balance (in the dark or the light) is not dependent on what you hear, but on some other qualities of the inner ear.

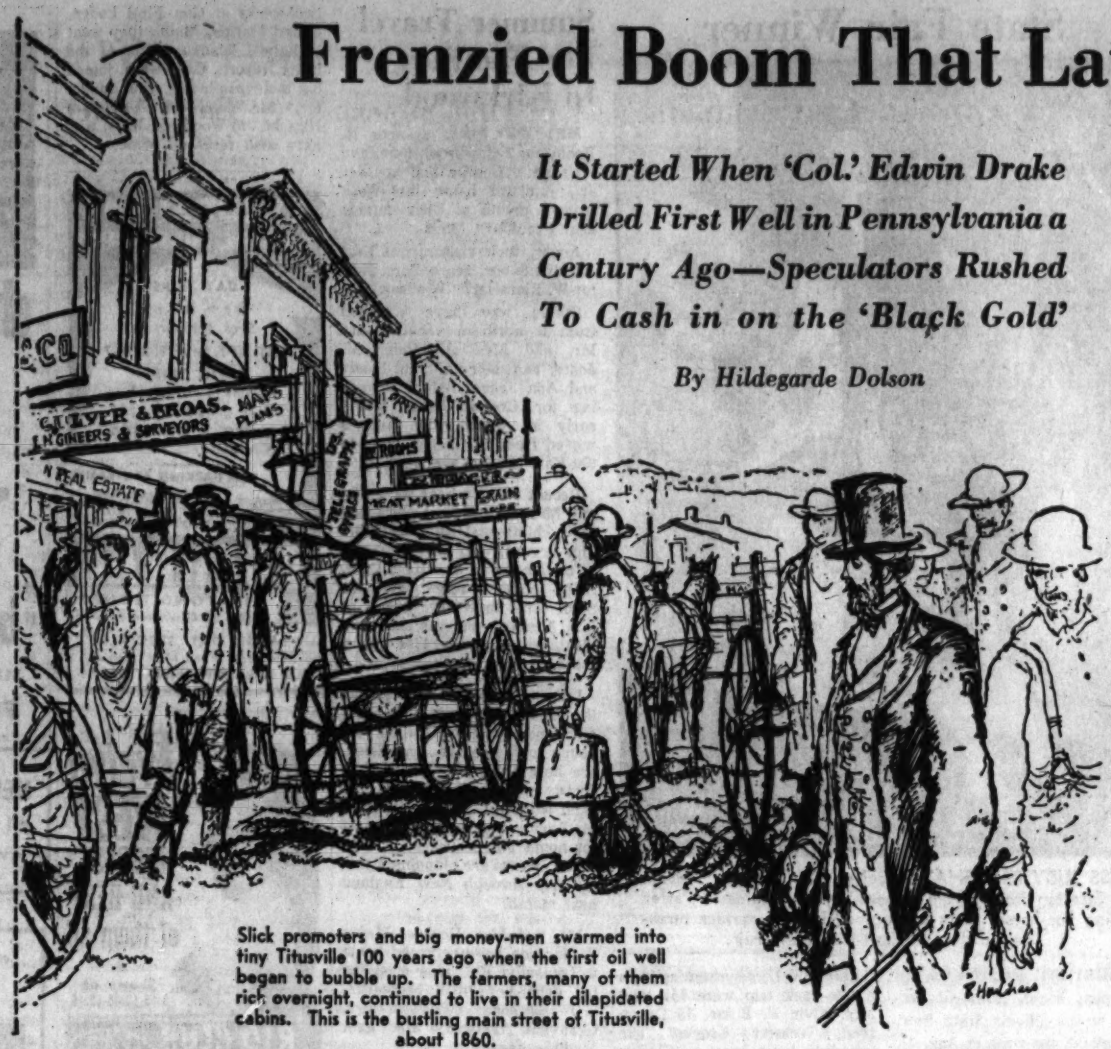
Count your calories the easy way! To receive a copy of my pamphlet, "The Calorie Chart," write me in care of the Post-Dispatch, inclosing a long self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5 cents in coin to cover handling.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Frenzied Boom That Launched Oil Age

It Started When 'Col.' Edwin Drake Drilled First Well in Pennsylvania a Century Ago—Speculators Rushed To Cash in on the 'Black Gold'

By Hildegarde Dolson



Slick promoters and big money-men swarmed into tiny Titusville 100 years ago when the first oil well began to bubble up. The farmers, many of them rich overnight, continued to live in their dilapidated cabins. This is the bustling main street of Titusville, about 1860.

The petroleum industry that has remolded the world had its beginnings only a century ago in western Pennsylvania. Long before that of course petroleum was not wholly unknown. Indians had sopped up liquid with blankets from the rainbowed surface of Oil creek and used it for liniment and war paint. Early explorers had sent back eager reports of oil pools that burned like brandy, but nobody seemed to care. Settlers had put the stuff to medicinal use. Then on an August day in 1859 Edwin Drake's well came in. The story of that epochal event and what followed is condensed from a new book, "The Great Oildorado." This is from "The Best of American Heritage."

BEAMING BILLY ROBINSON, proprietor of the American Hotel in the snug little river valley of Titusville, was rather impressed when large vellum envelopes arrived on three successive days addressed to a "Colonel" Edwin Drake, due to arrive with his family that week in the spring of 1858. The title had been pulled out of a hat to provide Drake with an air of solid worth as general agent of the newly formed Seneca Oil Co.

Of the 300 people living in Titusville, most were German, English or Northern Irish immigrants. Cautious, thrifty and stubborn, they paid grudging tribute to Drake's own stubbornness in sticking to his project that next gruelling year, even if they thought the idea of boring for oil was madness. The word went around that the Colonel was a nice hard working gentleman and it was too bad he'd been sucked in by the "fancy stock company" to do a fool's errand.

Drake soon adopted the native's clumping high boots, but the rest of him looked forever foreign. He dressed in the somber black of a deacon, and his long, thin legs and the overcoat that almost touched the ground made him look much taller than his 5 feet 9½ inches. His beard was silky and dark; his thin face, strengthened and whittled by suffering from neuralgia of the spine, and his enormous, deep socketed eyes gave him an ascetic look.

But the men soon discovered that Drake could tell a good story and enjoyed a nip of whisky and a skinny Pittsburg stogie when they sat around the fat-bellied coal stove in Fletcher's store. Drake had a New Englander's twangy humor. He had gone to school in Castleton, Vt., worked on an uncle's farm in Michigan, been a hotel clerk and a clerk in a dry goods store, an express agent and then a conductor on the New Haven railroad at $75 a month.

(Drake was making his move at a time when the world's supply of whale oil was rapidly diminishing. Drilling processes had been worked out by men who tapped the earth for salt water deposits. But Drake was to insist at a later date that no one had told him how to get petroleum in quantities out of the ground and that he had to try whatever came to mind.)

Hiring workmen to dig around the oil spring on a small, barren, artificial island created by the flow of a mill seemed a logical start, but even that wasn't simple. He could get plenty of men, but all that summer he kept riding off in all directions, assembling tools and machinery.

He made longer trips to consult owners of salt wells and hired a borer who never turned up, and then another with good intentions but itching feet.

Autumn stretched into winter. Drake's neuralgia was bad, and his constant worries about enough money to finish the project were achingly real. By the time another April Fool's day had come—and that was technically the end of his contract—Drake was informing the Seneca Oil Co. that at last he had a lead on a dependable man, a blacksmith—but the directors no longer cared. Of the lot, Drake was the only man who showed the single-minded passion and faith and curiosity that marks the real pioneer.

Later, the villagers said that Drake's sweet-faced wife was his "good angel" and that she kept buoying up the hope in his pain-wracked body. But it was the people of Titusville who gave practical comfort. Even if they couldn't believe in the wild and woolly venture, they had come to have a rather exasperated affection for Drake. Reuel Fletcher let him run up a bill of over $300 at the little store, and went on believing loyally that his friend would succeed, but was frankly puzzled as to what anybody would do with a vast amount of oil, even if they ever got it out of the ground.

The blacksmith William Smith had agreed to work for $2.50 a day, with the services of his 15-year-old son, Sammy, thrown in. Drake had also arranged for Smith to make a complete set of drilling tools before he left his forge, for $76.50.

On the blossoming day in May when Smith arrived, Drake was ill and sat up in bed talking feverishly with him. Later he said, "I could not have suited myself better if I could have made a man to order." They must have made a strange twosome. Smith, called "Uncle Billy," was a short, broad, laconic man who might have posed for Longfellow under a spreading chestnut. He soon felt a protective devotion for Drake. When he was offered a smithy job at $4 a day, he told his son, "I can't quit Drake now."

From the time he arrived, things throbbed.

The derrick went up one afternoon in early June. Inside its 12-foot-square base, the engine-propelled walking beam, like a giant jerky grasshopper, sent the drilling tools down and up. But the soft earth kept caving in. Drake, watching, got the one brilliant, inventive idea that none of his detractors can take away from him. He got 50 feet of cast iron pipe, and had the jointed pipe driven down through sand and clay until it hit rock at 32 feet. Then the drilling went on steadily, three feet a day.

On a brilliant Saturday afternoon, Aug. 27, 1859, at 69 feet down, the drill suddenly dropped six inches into a crevice. Uncle Billy fished it out, wiped it off carefully, and knocked off for the Sabbath.

But Monday seemed a long way off, and on Sunday Smith was back at the well. He grabbed a leftover end of pipe, plugged it up like a dipper, and thrust it down on a stick. It came up filled to the brim with oil. A wild shout brought several mill hands running. Young Sammy raced off to notify Colonel Drake.

The whole village was buzzing. A man who visited the well the following day, joining the eager crowds streaming in on every road, reported, "It comes out a flowing dark grease with a heavy white froth."

By then, the few pine barrels Drake had provided were already full. He took a washtub, then commandeered old whisky barrels and sperm oil containers. And still Uncle Billy kept pumping.

In New York, George Bissell, the bouncing promoter of the Seneca Oil Co., rushed around the city buying up all the company shares he could lay hands on. Four days later he was in Titusville to grab leases. But already the rush was on.

Forty-niners who had panned through the gold rush, and now swaggered to Oil creek expecting a rather pantywaist operation, complained that conditions were crazier than anything they had ever seen.

The frenzy was squeezed those first years into a greasy mud furrow not more than 20 miles long on Oil creek. Rich men, poor men, speculators, thieves, all swarmed over the two little villages of Titusville and Cornplanter, situated at either end.

Between the two towns, derricks went up everywhere. Axes whanged in the once serene valley. Trees fell and were hauled off green to slap up into new houses and free-and-easies where gamblers and soiled doves were already setting up shop.

Drillers' apprentices, or "toolies," wore railroad boots that cost $1.50 and could foot a fast hoedown to "Chase the Squirrel" or "Monkey Musk."

Toolies made $2 or $3 for a 12-hour shift and spent it freely. To accommodate both day and night shifts, saloons kept jumping around the clock, and there were always women handy.

Raftsmen who had prided themselves on their toughness found the oil-hauling teamsters even tougher. For years, raftsmen running logs downstream to Pittsburgh had stopped overnight at the riverside Moran house at Cornplanter. Now their main cargo was oil, but they were few compared to the teamsters whose numbers swelled to 4000.

Day after day, wagons loaded with oil barrels stretched in an endless chain along the quagmire roads from the wells to the nearest railroad depots, Garland and Union or Corry, or to the waiting barges at Cornplanter. Every piece of equipment and stick of furniture, the coal for engines and even the engines themselves had to be hauled into Oil creek by teams, through mud that was

Wholly unclassable
Almost impassable
Scarcely jackassable.

The teamsters grew arrogant. Once a group made desperate producers bid at auction for their services, and the highest bidder got his oil hauled at $5 a barrel for a six-mile trip.

Even drillers made only $4 or $5 a day. On the job, on the high stool in the derrick called the Driller's Throne, they were proud of the tricky skill of handling the tools and cable. The best ones seemed to know what was happening under ground, and whether they were close to a strike. To celebrate when a good well came in, the producer would buy his driller a fancy new outfit, with $12 Wisconsin boots, and the wide-brimmed hats that distinguished them from ordinary men in inverted soup bowl derbies. Right off, the driller would christen his hat with oily slush. If there was anything that marked a man as an amateur, it was to be immaculate—not a mudder.

That fall of 1859 the slick promoters and big money men who swarmed over the countryside were distressed to see the Titusville shoemaker, William Barnsdall, "kick down" the second well in the area without a single piece of imported machinery. To supply the power, Barnsdall used a crude hickory spring pole with stirrups operated by foot. It was hard work but cheap.

When Barnsdall got down a few inches below the depth of the Drake well, the waiting crowd of spectators were ready to give up their places at what seemed to be a certain flop. But he refused to quit, and 80 feet down he struck oil. Crowds lined up at the creek bank, waiting their turn to be ferried across by flatboat to see the marvel that yielded 10 barrels a day.

Of the earliest wells, the most spectacular was the Williams, which produced an average of 10 barrels an hour.

The serene little village of Titusville now looked as if some shanty town had been wrenched up in a hurricane and flung down helter-skelter among prim white clapboard houses. Along narrow plank sidewalks in a sea of sucking mire, land sharks lurked in offices that didn't yet have a roof, and seldom a solid floor for their high sounding propositions. On paper, everything looked foolproof. Nobody had yet discovered that one out of every three wells were "dusters"—that is, dry. By the summer of 1860, there were 600 companies incorporated in Pennsylvania alone, and probably four-fifths of these were phonies.

The farmers on Oil creek were almost the only ones who didn't need quinine. From the start they fared remarkably well against boomers, city financiers and local tycoons. Most of their land was already leased on a royalty basis, rather than sold outright.

For instance, Ham McClintock didn't bother putting down many wells. He let others take the risk and pay him royalties. He simply placed mattresses all over the floor of his house, five to each room. For 75 cents, benighted souls could sleep in the hayloft without a blanket. There were 60 wells going down on his place, and McClintock always had plenty of paying guests.

Some of the newly rich farmers continued to live in their dilapidated cabins, with rags and quilts hung at the windows in place of panes, and a limp calico curtain partitioning off a sleeping cubicle from the sitting room-kitchen. They got up at dawn, as always, and planted and plowed as if their lives depended on it. One of them, old John Buchanan, complained to a newcomer that he had been taken advantage of by sharpers, and finished sadly, "So here I am a poor man—worth barely a hundred thousand."

The oil seekers arrived in droves, "by rickety coach or rickety mare or on rickety legs." They came by water, too. Steamers like the Allegheny Belle, chugging up river from Pittsburgh, were loaded like cattle boats.

If you covered the last lap to Titusville by stagecoach, you arrived sore and bruised and with your pantaloons muddy to the hip, what with leaping out along the way to help pry the vehicle out of sockholes or push it up hills. When you finally staggered into a lobby and asked a hotel clerk for a room, and he said he would try to squeeze you in, you discovered he probably meant just that. He would push and nudge two recumbent bodies on the floor until a space was cleared.

No customs or castes were familiar. It was as if a portion of the earth had turned upside down to produce this bewildering new democracy, where no one could be judged by appearances. One critic remarked: "They don't have time to be aristocrats. They don't even have time to change their sheets." Another wrote a few years later: "This greasy specimen could by one stroke of his pen produce a paper of more value than all your wordly possessions, and that would be honored quickly by any great banking institution."

Ironically, one person who did not profit was Edwin Drake. In matters of finance, the colonel seemed forever inept. After four moderately prosperous years as an oil commission agent and justice of the peace in Titusville, he went to New York where he lost everything in an oil brokerage venture. Finally, in 1873 the state of Pennsylvania voted an annuity of $1500 to Drake or his widow. Unable to walk the last seven years of his life, he died in 1880.

St. Louisans Return From Trips Abroad

By Fay Profilet

MISS MARGARET WIGHTMAN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orrin S. Wightman Jr., 42 Glen Eagles drive, St. Louis Country Club grounds, Ladue; Miss Nancy Baker, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Adrian N. Baker, 12 Washington terrace, and Miss Blair Smith, daughter of Mrs. John J. Smith, 6232 Rosebury avenue, returned to St. Louis yesterday after a three-month holiday in Europe. Miss Carol Lammert Culver, who accompanied the group, joined her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bertram B. Culver Jr., at their summer home at Harbor Point, Mich. The young women toured England and Scotland before going to the Scandinavian countries. They then visited the principal cities of Germany, Austria, Switzerland and France.

Mrs. D. Brandford Blossom, 9685 Litzsinger road, Ladue, who has been in Europe for the summer, will return home today. Her daughter, Miss Sara Waterbury, who accompanied her, preceded her mother home to be a bridesmaid Saturday at the wedding of the former Miss Ann Lortz and Henry Barber Pflager II.

Judge and Mrs. Ivan Lee Holt Jr., 56 Kingsbury place, returned last week from an extended tour of Europe. With her daughter, Miss Janet Depping, and their son, Ivan Lee III, they are spending this week at their farm near Eolia, Mo. Miss Depping will depart next week for New York to be with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hoxie, until she resumes her studies at Vassar College.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Gentry Jr., 6627 Pershing avenue, University City, have returned from England and Scotland where they spent five weeks. They flew to London by jet and returned to Quebec on the Sylvania. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Coleman, 304 North Skinker boulevard, have also returned from a summer holiday. They vacationed for several weeks in Mexico City and nearby places of interest.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Elliott, 38 Rio Vista drive, Ladue, and their younger son, David, have returned from their annual summer holiday at Harwich Port, Mass., where they were guests at the Snow Inn. Also vacationing at the inn was Mrs. MacLean Hoggson of New York, the former Miss Janet Gardner of St. Louis.

To Enter Wellesley College

ELEVEN STUDENTS from St. Louis will be among the freshmen at Wellesley College who will arrive on the campus in Wellesley, Mass., in time for the beginning of freshmen week activities Monday, Sept. 21.

During the three days before classes begin, freshman will take part in an orientation program during which they will have an opportunity to meet the dean and other officers of the college.

St. Louis residents in the class will include: Miss Harriet Elizabeth Ames Bascom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Bascom, 9725 Litzsinger road, Ladue, who will leave St. Louis Sept. 15 and will motor east with her brother, C. Perry Bascom, a student at Harvard Law School; Miss Judith Fingert, whose father is Dr. Hyman H. Fingert, 12 Hortense place; Miss Virginia Hage, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hage, 10 Frontenac, Creve Coeur; Miss Linda Hess, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hess, 39 Brentmoor Park, Clayton.

Also entering Wellesley will be Miss Margaret Millstone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Millstone, 12 Cedar Crest road, Ladue; Miss Nancy Neilson, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. James C. Neilson, 6249 Pershing avenue, University City; and Miss Elizabeth Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Rogers, 55 Joy avenue, Webster Groves.

Other new Wellesley students from this area will include Miss Margaret Fleischer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Fleischer, 524 Warren avenue, University City; Miss Joan Julia Weber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orville O. Weber, 7410 Wellington avenue, University City, who was a National Merit Scholarship finalist; Miss Phyllis Langsam, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Langsam, 7616 York drive, Clayton; and Miss Jane Venable Shelton, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. George Riley Shelton, 41 Berkshire drive, Richmond Heights. Miss Neilson's mother is an alumna of Wellesley College.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar W. Rexford, 443 Jackson avenue, University City, have returned from a visit in New York. The Rexfords and their two young sons, spent the first two weeks of last month at Pentwater, Mich., where they were at the Ocean Beach Club.

Pre-Wedding Parties for Miss Hoagland

MANY PARTIES both here and in Kansas City, Mo., have been given for Miss Georgette Eugenia Hoagland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Edward Hoagland, 15 Parkland avenue, Kirkwood, and Donald Ross James, whose wedding will take place Saturday at Webster Groves Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Dr. George F. Sweazey will officiate at the 8:30 o'clock ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Hoagland will give a reception across the street in the Memorial Hall of First Congregational Church of Webster Groves.

Parties given in Kansas City included one given by the prospective bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert L. James, to introduce their future daughter-in-law to their friends.

Mrs. Brice R. Smith was hostess at a luncheon and shower Aug. 24 at her home, 506 North Crescent drive, Kirkwood. Aug. 25, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Graham, Miss Hoagland's brother-in-law and sister, gave a cocktail party at the Hoagland home. Mrs. Alan Whitaker and Mrs. Charles Gentry gave a shower Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Whittaker's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Clinton S. Gaines, 136 Mermod place, Kirkwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoagland will entertain out-of-town relatives at a dinner at Chalet de Normandie Thursday evening. Among the out-of-town guests will be two of the prospective bride's uncles and aunts, Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Reinecke of Fort Worth, Tex., and Dr. and Mrs. Claire E. Pike of Long Beach, Calif. Mr. and Mrs. James will give the rehearsal dinner the evening before the wedding at Algonquin Gold Club.

Miss Hoagland will have her sister, Mrs. Charles P. DeVaney of Westminster, Colo., the former Miss Mary Jane Hoagland, as her matron of honor. Bridesmaids will be, another sister, Mrs. Graham (Helen Louise Hoagland) and Miss Helen Bodine.

Mr. James will have Richard Haydon Jr. of Kansas City, as best man. Ushers will be Paul Williams, Detroit; John Collins, Bismark, Mo.; Paul Zoellner, Chicago, and Robert Bryant, Carrollton, Mo., all Phi Kappa Psi fraternity brothers at the University of Missouri, and Mr. Graham.

State Fair Winner

EXHIBITING her twice world's champion horse, Mark of Success, at the Illinois State Fair, Springfield, the week of Aug. 24, Miss Judy Bradshaw won the three gaited amateur stake for the third time. She is the daughter of Mrs. Preston J. Bradshaw of Gray Summit, and the late Mr. Bradshaw. Winning in the class of 1956, '58 and this year, she now holds three Governor William G. Stratton trophies, setting a record for this class. A class of 20 of the nation's top horses were in competition for the trophy.

Miss Bradshaw will show Mark of Success at the Indiana State Fair, Indianapolis, this week and the following week will exhibit her horse at the Kentucky State Fair, Louisville, where the world champions are selected. This will be the third time Miss Bradshaw will enter Mark of Success at the Kentucky fair. He was world's champion in 1956 and in '58.

Returning home yesterday from a two-week trip were Mr. and Mrs. Alvin F. Busse, 15 Devon road, Webster Groves. The travelers have been to Glacier National Park, Lake Louise, Banff and Jasper Lodge.

Their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Busse, 711 Hawbrook road, have returned from a visit with his sister, Mrs. Frederick Ballard and Dr. Ballard, who moved to Nashville, Tenn., from here recently.

Summer Travel For Families In Kirkwood

MR. AND MRS. Spencer H. Robinson, 2 Hawbrook lane, and their sons, George and Spencer Jr., returned home last week from a month at their cottage near Frankfurt, Mich.

Among their visitors was Karl Edward Saboe, son of Mrs. Nestor W. Riemeier, 9 Windsor lane.

Others who have returned from a northern vacation are Mr. and Mrs. Alexander M. Jones, and their children, Sandy and Ann Jones. Before departing for Crystal Lake, Mich., early in August, the Joneses moved from 12 Garden lane, to 650 East Monroe avenue.

Recent visitors here were Mr. and Mrs. Harold H. Levora and their children, Miss Peggy and Jim Levora, who have returned to their home in San Jose, Calif. Many parties were given for them while they were guests of Mrs. Levora's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Bartsch, 1754 Janet place.

Informal entertainment marks the visit of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Feucht, who with their two young sons, Fred Jr., and Erick, are here from Mt. Kisco, N.Y. Guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Berry, 410 East Madison avenue, they will depart for home Thursday.

The Berrys are planning a motor trip through New England next month.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Mason Richardson have returned home to Louisville, Ky., after spending ten days here with brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Granville Hawken, 418 East Madison avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Leyhe, 330 Gill avenue, and their daughters, Mary and Nancy Leyhe, have returned home from a holiday at Swiss Village, Estes Park, Colo.

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Wienecke, 725 East Monroe avenue, have returned home from a northern vacation. After spending two weeks at Gun Flint Lodge, Grand Marais, Minn., they went to Lake Leelanau, Mich. At the latter resort, they were joined by their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Hirschi, 310 Woodside drive, who have also returned home.

Martha Carr's OPINION

Nobody Believes Her Story

Dear Martha:

WE ARE A GROUP of young married people who went to school together and have stayed together. A year ago, our favorite tavern owner sponsored bowling leagues. We had a lot of fun. Then a month ago, my best girl friend went out of town with this man and didn't come back until the next day. She says she is innocent of any wrong doing but no one believes her. Now my husband and I are quarreling all the time. He says she cannot come to our home anymore. I say I have a right to choose my own friends. He says he will ask her to leave. We have two small children. I don't want a divorce or separation but we quarrel all the time. What is right?

Readers are requested to keep their letters short when writing to Martha Carr. For a personal reply inclose a self-addressed stamped envelope with the letter you send to Martha Carr, in care of the Post-Dispatch. Letters of a medical or legal nature cannot be answered.

WONDERING.

You have a right to choose your friends, but be sure you choose the right ones. Let her ruin her own marriage if she wishes, but don't let her ruin yours, too. Maybe your husband is being unfair, but, for heaven's sake, don't divorce him because of it. If she's innocent, it's too bad she has to suffer, but there are certain rules in this life that we have to follow, or pay the consequences.

Dear Martha:

MAYBE YOU CAN TELL ME, Martha, if I'm wrong. I am a widow, 37 years old, with one child. I have been going for a year with a bachelor 46 years old who lives at home with his mother. He wants to marry me, but says he can't until his mother dies because she is afraid to stay alone and he can't hire a housekeeper for her and still keep up an apartment for us. Martha, she's healthy and still active. She may be here for another 20 years. Is it worth my while to wait?

LONELY.

And turn into a cool ghoul, waiting and watching to see if she isn't showing signs of a general slowdown? No, if it's on that basis, he isn't worth waiting for. If he really wanted to marry, he would find a way without placing both himself and his fiancee in the position of wishing for someone's death.

IN ANSWER TO Billie Anne: According to the cake experts, there are approximately 10 pieces of cake to the pound. So if you are inviting 150 guests, you would need a 15-pound cake.

Are you planning a party for the youngest members of the household? Martha Carr's leaflet of party games for the kindergarten and primary crowd will help. It also includes suggestions for decorations, favors and invitations. Be sure to inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Eleanor Roosevelt

Need for Educated Citizens

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.

BECAUSE my mind has been so occupied with our Hyde Park school problems for the past few days, I have a few more things I should like to bring up.

It seems to me the average parent is more concerned about such things as transportation, cafeteria services and extracurricular activities than he is with what is taught his children in school.

MRS. ROOSEVELT

I suppose many parents feel subjects have changed so drastically since they went to school that they cannot help their children a great deal with their lessons, at least after they pass the early grades.

It is true methods have changed greatly in recent years, and the content of a school curriculum is very different. This content has to change from time to time to meet the needs of the world in which we live.

Twenty years ago the knowledge of languages seemed much less important than it is today. Today languages are probably one of the most important things for our young people to learn. And history and economics cannot be neglected, even if the major subjects as many people believe, are to be mathematics and science.

To really know the history of any country one must also know its literature, so today, I think, a child must have a broader general background than was necessary 25 years ago. This change in our needs intellectually has come because of the great changes in transportation and communication throughout the world.

Another factor is the two different philosophies of government that are now opposing each other and trying to gain supremacy. The basic difference, of course, is the consideration to be given to man as an individual. Under the Communist theory man exists to serve the state. Under the democratic theory the state exists to serve man.

You educate differently because you hold these different concepts. In our country, I think, our educators have an obligation to explain more fully than they do to the people, particularly the parents, what the reasons are that we need educated citizens today and why there must be great differences in the type of education we now offer our young people.

I have heard many older men and women say, "I got on very well with reading, writing and arithmetic. I only went to school for four years and I don't see that my children are getting anything much more worthwhile than I did."

If the children are not reaping more advantages, then it is because the parents had such limited backgrounds that they are not able to grasp and realize how differently their children need to be equipped to meet the world of today. They had better start out and improve their education as quickly as they can.

Bill Vaughan Says

THE CONTINENTAL LEAGUE is confident it will be able to get enough baseball players, and we hope it can find enough spectators? Whether there are enough adjectives to supply eight more sets of sportscasters remains to be seen.

THESE HUSBANDS who forgive their wives for trying to murder them kind of make the average man feel guilty for holding a grudge against sweetie pie because dinner was a half hour late one night last April.

LETTING the children stay up late can be dangerous, what with the old movies on TV. A father down the block wants to know what you do with a 9-year-old girl who is in love with the pre-war Mickey Rooney.

Joys, Trials of Housekeeping

By Adele Starbird

ADELE STARBIRD

SINCE I'VE BEEN housekeeping I've worked up a fine indignation against the woman who says apologetically when asked what she does, "Just a housewife!" Would Warren say, "Just the Chief Justice of the United States?" Would Einstein have said, "Just a mathematician?" Or Frank Lloyd Wright, "Just an architect?"

What the lady of the house should say as she rears back proudly and looks the pollster in the eye is, "A housewife, and can you match that?"

It is true, however, that I've developed a sort of double vision lately. There are times when I think what a wonderful occupational therapy there is in housework. Douglas Steere and the other Quakers are so right, as are the monastic orders, in prescribing manual work as an aid to spiritual peace. Those are the times when the kitchen is cleaned up, the beds are made, my nephew has burned the papers, and I'm at the sink tranquilly peeling potatoes for the next meal. Then I pity the poor professional woman.

That is not the whole picture. There are other times! The disposal balks and regurgitates coffee grounds into the sink; the cabinet drawer sticks fast; the bread has molded because of the rain; somebody—probably I—has upset the pan of milk I had put on the floor for Blue Boy; I take a guest into the living room to be confronted by a large pair of empty loafers in front of the couch, and little Stuart's toys on the coffee table.

It is then that I realize what a sheltered life I've led at the university, protected against all the harsher realities.

"Flatter a woman and she'll kill herself for you," is a true saying. Too bad more men don't know about flattery! My nephew, like his father and grandfather before him, has the art of verbal appreciation down to a fine point; it keeps me reconciled to dishpan hands. Even when he praises a dish that has required many hours of preparation by saying as he takes a second helping, "This is the kind of thing I like best, just very simple food," I can answer without irony, "Yes, I know. That's why I have it."

For I have learned one lesson from watching the mistakes of other housewives—it is "to assume a virtue if you have it not." The virtue I assume is casualness. I don't wring my hands, I don't demand approval and I don't ask anxiously if the pork steaks are too dry. I know that they are and I make a note to do them better the next time.

I've seen a woman ruin a dinner by her lamentations over a failure, or her reproaches if her husband lacked appetite, so that there could be no other conversation but his lying assurances that the potatoes were not burned, that he loved them burned, that he'd never eaten better potatoes, burned or unburned.

I suppose that is one place where the long discipline of a job stands one in good stead. Women who have been employed have been forced to learn not to make a personal issue out of daily occurrences. They don't demand constant reassurance, however much they may enjoy what comes their way. They know how restful it is to be impersonal.

TV Notes and Gossip

LAS VEGAS hotel stage hit, "Holiday in Japan," is being prepared as a television network spectacular this season. It is a musical comedy montage of stage art and a Japanese version of American music and dance.

ROBERT W. SARNOFF, board chairman of NBC, is on his way to Japan with an eye toward an exchange of television programs and talent.

"MIKE NICHOLS and Elaine May have bowed out of their scheduled NBC-TV Nov. 21 special following a disagreement with the producer over the show's format. They will appear on a CBS-TV special Dec. 3.

LEADERSHIP TRAINING in the Soviet Union will be the subject of "High Road" on ABC-TV Sept. 14. The program will use film from Russia to show how that country's youth is trained at Moscow's State University for leading jobs. The material was made available by Russia after six months of negotiations.

ELISHA COOK, who has appeared in numerous movies as a petty crook, has made the big-time, so to speak, in television. He will be the main "heavy" in the Sept. 10 episode of "Staccato" on KSD-TV at 7:30 p.m. John Cassavetes is the star of the new series.

THE PROBLEMS of space flight will be discussed by representatives of St. Louis industries that are engaged in space projects for the Government at 2:30 p. m. Saturday on KMOX-TV's "On Location." Researchers from Monsanto, Olin-Mathieson, Emerson Electric, Universal Match and McDonnell Aircraft will participate.

NAT (KING) COLE . . . Will be a guest on the Oct. 1 hour-long Pat Boone special shown on KTVI. Another singer, Fabian, also will perform.

Uncle Ray's Column

Life Process of Salpa

By Ramon Coffman

AFTER I WROTE one article about the salpa, it seemed that several questions remained. Today I shall give a few answers.

Q. In what parts of the ocean are salpas found?

A. In the Torrid Zone and in warmer parts of the North Temperate Zone. They like to spend their time in sunshine, and in daylight always seek the upper levels of the water. They are hard to observe because their bodies are transparent, and almost match the water.

Q. What food does the salpa have, and how does the food get to the intestines?

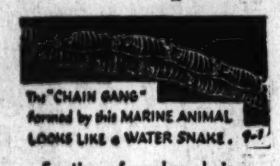
A. Water enters the opening at the front, then flows to the rear. Tiny forms of life exist in the water, and these are strained out and taken into the intestines.

Q. How does a salpa breathe without gills like those in a fish?

A. There are cells in the inside material which take free oxygen from the water.

Q. How does a salpa reproduce?

A. So-called "buds" are produced, and these develop into small animals with the general shape of the parent. The young ones cling together for a time, stretching out in a long chain.



Section of a salpa chain.

At length the chain breaks into parts. Each link becomes a salpa of a special kind. It produces only a single egg.

The egg hatches and grows into an animal like the grandparent. New buds are produced in due course, and the life process goes on and on.

We may hail salpas as remarkable animals. They manage to live without many of the organs possessed by fish.

Tonight's TV Preview

Wyatt Earp.—"Dodge City—Hail and Farewell." For series regulars only. Wyatt says goodby to Dodge and prepares to go to Tombstone as he begins his new season. Before leaving he treats his fans to a picnic of flying fists and flaming guns when he recalls the gay days of the past. Keep your eye on this show, because they recast their characters as they roll along, and you can't tell who's who without a scorecard. 7:30 p.m. KTVI, Channel 2.

Journey to Understanding, Ill.—This special will be primarily devoted to a kinescope of the TV show that was shown on BBC yesterday. The advance report is that it will be an informal talk between President Eisenhower and Harold Macmillan. Following the kinescope there will be an analysis by NBC reporter Morgan Beatty. 8:00 p.m., KSD-TV, Channel 5.

Andy Williams Show.—The wonderful world of LP's section tonight features in the middle of quickies like "Music for Screaming" and "Music for Non-Thinkers," a bit on Fred Astaire. The boy who dances it, Ken Berry, does a great Astaire. Also on tap on the best summer variety show are Stan Freberg and his friend, Orville, singer Carol Lawrence and the Mills Brothers. Numbers include "Clap Your Hands," "Bye Bye, Blackbird" and "Look for the Silver Lining" by the host; "Thou Swell" by Miss Lawrence and "Paper Doll" with the Mills Brothers. 9:00 p.m., KMOX-TV Channel 4.

Cookie Cue

Do you ever wonder whether to use a vegetable shortening or butter or margarine in cookies? The first is fine for cookies made with molasses, spices or peanut butter; when you are preparing a vanilla cookie you may want to use the latter for flavor.

Spadea's Personalized Pattern

Scientific Liquid Medication Works Fast To

Stops Scratching in Minutes

SULFODENE is an amazing scientific medication that kills fungus spores, the cause of scratching in 7 out of 10 cases.

Discovered by famous veterinarian, Dr. A. C. Merrick—SULFODENE works almost instantly to stop fungus itch (often called 'summer itch,' 'mange,' 'eczema,' or 'hot spots'). Quickly promotes healing. Even the most frenzied itching relieved instantly, and open sores heal over. Scales disappear! . . . hair grows back!
